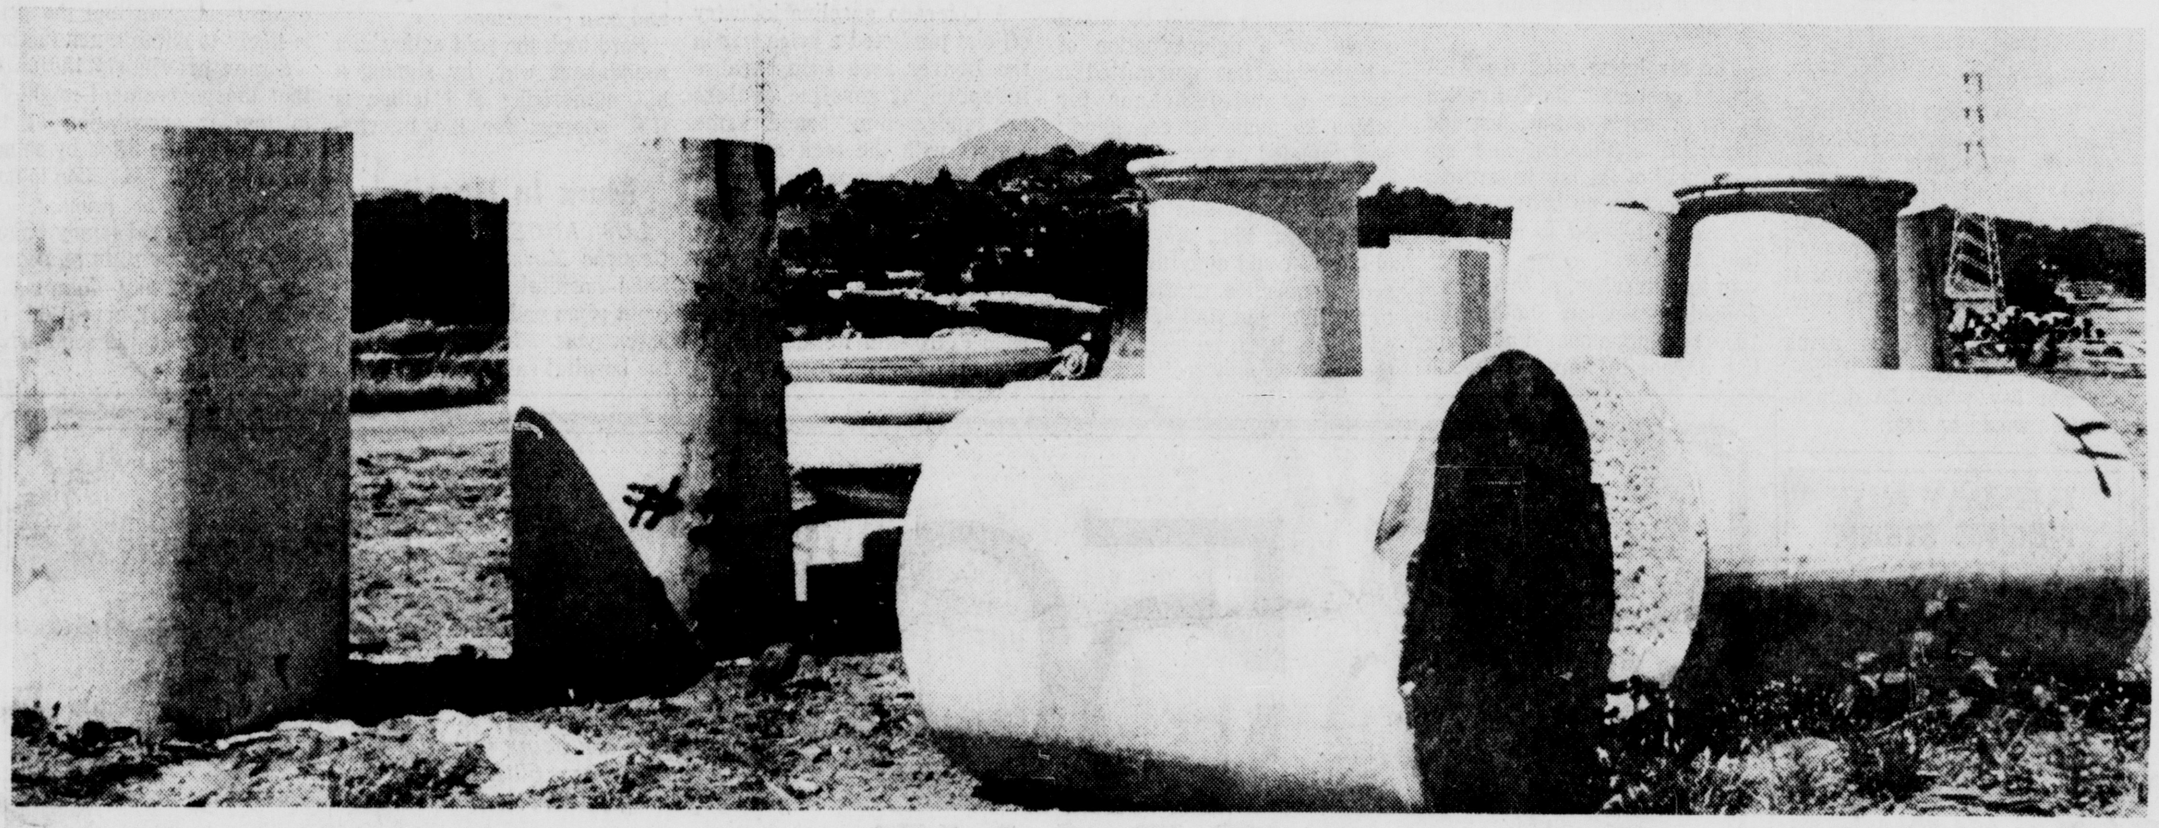
REMEMBRANCE OF THINGS PAST

Are these the noble stones of an antique forum waiting silently, brokenly mourning a time long past that can never come again? Well, yes and no. They testify not to the "glory that was Greece, the grandeur that was Rome," but to the charm that was the old county courthouse in San Rafael. They are the capitals (above) and pedestals (below) of the fluted columns that once adorned the front portico of the century-old building destroyed by fire in 1971. Now reposing in an East San Rafael field, their aura of antiquity — marred only slightly by utility towers in the background — was captured today by Independent-Journal photographer Bob Hax.



Turk Advance Is Continuing Across Cyprus

Surrender Of Island's Major Port Is Claimed

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Turkish forces rolled up most of the northeastern third of Cyprus today along the 65-mile "Attila line" and the Turkish Cypriot radio claimed the Greek Cypriot defenders of the island's major port of Famagusta had surrendered.

A U.N. spokesman, however, denied the claim. UPI correspondent Michael Keats reported fighting in the streets of Famagusta.

American-built F4 Phantom jets of the Turkish air force pounded Greek Cypriot positions in the Famagusta area and bombed near the northern port of Lefka, Keats reported. Keats said the jets reduced Famagusta's "Golden Mile" of resort hotels to flaming rubble.

Greece, powerless to intervene militarily against the Turks and furious over what Greeks widely considered a letdown by the United States, threatened to expel the 4,000 U.S. troops based in Greece, according to a high official in Athens.

Mortar and machinegun fire was still rattling in the Cypriot capital of Nicosia when acting Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides called an urgent meeting of his advisers. Greek officials insisted he was not on the verge of caving in to Turkish demands for a separate Turkish Cypriot enclave on the island.

In Turkey, an ebullient Premier Bulent Ecevit said the fighting on Cyprus was going "very well." Western diplomats said Turkey's aim was to win on the battlefield what it had been unable to accomplish at the abortive Geneva peace conference: to secure a third of the island for the Turkish Cypriots who number one-fifth of the island's 700,000 people.

In Washington, President Gerald Ford was reported keeping close tabs on the situation. However, the United States and Great Britain were reported to have decided to keep hands off Cyprus for the moment.

Even so, the U.S. guided missile cruiser Little Rock, flagship of the U.S. 6th Fleet, recalled its crew from shore leave and put to sea two weeks early for an undisclosed destination. The Soviet Union sent three gunboats through the

Korean Leader's Wife Is Slain

SEOUL (UPI) — A gunman killed the wife of South Korean President Park Chung-hee and a teen-aged schoolgirl today in an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Park as he delivered a nationally televised speech in a crowded theater.

The second of the gunman's four bullets struck Mrs. Park Young-soo, 49, in the head as she sat near her husband on the stage of the National Theater. She was taken to Seoul National University Hospital where doctors operated on her for six hours.

She died 8½ hours after the shooting, with Park and the couple's three children at her bedside.

After his wife was carried from the stage, Park rose and said, "Now I will continue my speech." The television cameras refocused and Park read the remainder of his prepared text without mentioning the shooting.

PARK YOUNG-SOO
Gunman's victim

Japanese police identified the gunman as Moon Sae-kwang, 22, a Korean living in Osaka, Japan, and a suspected member of a youth group opposed to the Park regime.

Moon was shot by security men and hospitalized. Chang Bong-hwa, 17, was killed by a stray bullet.

Korean news media said Moon carried a Japanese passport made out to a textile worker in Osaka. Japanese police began an investigation of how Moon obtained the passport.

The motive for the attempted assassination was not immediately known but recent measures to curb opposition to the

Younger Files Suit Against Oil Drilling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger filed suit today to block the U.S. government from approving oil drilling off Southern California until an environmental impact report is completed.

The Republican attorney general said in a statement: "The federal government should not proceed in that direction (oil drilling) until all relevant information is obtained so that an informed and enlightened decision can be made."

Mass Arrest Nets 47 In Sonoma

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The new Sonoma County Grand Jury last night finished two days of secret meetings and handed out 52 indictments that triggered the largest mass arrest of drug sellers in Northern California history, Sonoma County officials said today.

Forty three adults and four juveniles were arrested overnight by fast-moving special arrest teams of sheriff's deputies and Santa Rosa police. Arrests were expected today of the remainder of the 67 persons named in the indictments for drug violations and sale of stolen property, according to Sheriff Donald Striepeke, Dist. Atty. John Hawkes and Santa Rosa Police Chief Salvatore Rosano.

The sheriff told the Independent-Journal that "a great deal of paranoia is going to set in

Sausalito Dig Is Protested By Indians

Plans by the City of Sausalito to disinter remains in an Indian burial ground at Caledonia and Pine streets have been protested to county officials by a small group of American Indians.

Appearing before the county Human Rights Commission this week, the group of four urged county support of their efforts to block the archaeological dig which the city plans to finance prior to construction of a private parking lot.

If the dig must take place, they told the commission Tuesday, the bones and artifacts of their ancestors should be turned over for reburial at an appropriate site.

According to Douglas H. Bosco, director of human relations, the group also contends that the dig should be supervised by Indian representatives. They would take custody of the remains and turn them over to an unnamed Indian group.

The four speakers, who plan to appear at the Sausalito City Council meeting Tuesday, said the reburial should be under the guidance of a medicine man, Bosco added.

He said the commission agreed to do what it can to help the group get on the council agenda and to contact Indian Legal Aid in Berkeley.

The City Council recently rejected the advice of several archaeologists to simply cover the site and leave the remains untouched.

Councilmen agreed to a university student's request that they finance the $2,500 dig on condition all finds be turned over to the city.

There has been some talk of displaying the items in the new city hall when built.

The matter is pending, however, while the city researches whether it can legally finance the excavation of an archaeological site less than 300 years old.

"The group feels their ancestors' remains should be treated with the same dignity given reburials at regular cemeteries," Bosco said.

Nixon Called In Trial Of Ehrlichman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Nixon was subpoenaed today to appear as a witness at the Watergate cover-up trial by lawyers for his former aide, John D. Ehrlichman. It was the first legal action against Nixon since he resigned.

There was no date indicating when the subpoena would be served on Nixon but it ordered him to appear in U.S. District Court Sept. 9, the day the trial of six of his former aides and associates is scheduled to begin.

The subpoena came as special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski was reported to be studying the possibility of taking legal action against the former President. A spokesman for Jaworski's office had no

Sea Ranch Development Is Stymied

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In a precedent-setting decision, the California Coastline Commission yesterday denied an appeal by Sea Ranch, a community planned for 5,200 units, for exemption from the 1972 Coastal Preservation Act. (Another commission story, page 12.)

The action became a possible precedent for the fate of numerous similar large projects along the state's 1,072 miles of shoreline.

Sea Ranch was in progress before passage of the initiative act by the voters. Construction of 5,200 units in a choice scenic area had been previously approved by Sonoma County. At present, 1,762 lots have been developed, and homes have been built on 340 lots.

The regional coastal commission previously denied the huge project an exemption, and the state commission held 8-0 that the case presented "no substantial issue" requiring review on the state level.

A report by the staff of the state commission said one of the reasons for passage of the 1972 initiative was the growth of subdivisions such as Sea Ranch, which limit public access to ocean front, obstruct

Ford Sees Russians Easing Jewish Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford held a series of meetings today to measure the mood of the country. He indicated to a group of senators that Soviet emigration policy on Jews may be changing.

Between official duties and keeping up with the Cyprus situation, Ford continued his policy of inviting state, county and city leaders to the White House to hear their ideas.

Commissioner Stanley M. Smoot of Davis County, Utah, said most of a meeting by a group of county executives with Ford focused on revenue sharing to which Ford is strongly committed. County officials praised the openness of the Ford administration, just as mayors and governors did after similar sessions yesterday.

On this sixth day of the Ford administration:

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Ford told him and other senators at a breakfast meeting that the Soviet Union had indicated a changed attitude towards easing emigration restrictions on Russian Jews.

Ford indicated that he plans to announce his choice of a vice president some time in the coming weekend.

The House Banking Committee quickly approved the President's request for a new cost of living task force to spotlight economic excesses and scheduled it for floor action Monday.

In the vice president race, the names most often speculated on were former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and GOP National Chairman George Bush.

The President got to his office the earliest of any day yet — 7:25 a.m. EDT. He has been spending almost 12 hours a day at the office, and had a heavy schedule today, beginning with an 8 o'clock breakfast with Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. apparently to discuss the trade bill he wants Congress to approve soon.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Watergate Guard Is Honored

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Frank Wills, the unemployed security guard who discovered the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972, said last night he was "happy to open the eyes of America."

Wills

Wills, 26, was honored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which presented him the Martin Luther King Award at its 17th annual convention.

Wills, who has been rejected for five security jobs since leaving his $80-a-week job at the Watergate complex, said the Nixon resignation "was one of the best things that could happen. It sets an example that we should investigate people who are running and keep a continuous check."

Wills, described as "Watergate's Forgotten Hero" by the SCLC, said his friends had asked him to run for city council in Washington, D.C. but he declined.

Base Overrun

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces backed by tanks overran a military base 17 miles north of Saigon and attacked two district capitals near Da Nang today, breaking a week-long lull in the Vietnam ground war, military sources said.

The Saigon command said the attacks were beaten back and 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers were killed. The government said 15 of its own troops were dead.

Bomb Charge

CANBERRA (UPI) — The Australian government accused France today of setting off a fifth nuclear bomb in its current Pacific ocean testing series that has scattered radioactive fallout over Australian territory.

Foreign Affairs Minister Senator Don Willesee reiterated Australian concern at the nuclear atmospheric and called it a breach of international law.

He declined to give the date of the latest blast or name the source of information about it.

Transit Slash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Ford's backing, House Republicans promised an effort today to cut a $20.4 billion mass transit aid bill almost in half.

The transit bill, which also contains a section that would allow bigger trucks on the interstate highway system, is being termed a "budget-busting" bill by Republicans, who want to cut it to $11.2 billion.

About half the money in the bill would go for capital improvements and operation of transit systems in the nine cities that now have rail or subway commuter lines.

Rocket Attack

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Communist gunners today launched one of the heaviest rocket attacks of the year on Phnom Penh.

At least 35 Chinese-built 107mm rockets fell on the city and preliminary police reports showed seven persons were killed and 47 others wounded, most of them civilians.

The attack came shortly before President Lon Nol renewed his call for peace talks with the insurgents and asked for an end to the sufferings of the Cambodian people.

Town Kept Dark

BELFAST (UPI) — Half of the Northern Ireland town of Newry was without electricity today because maintenance crews refused to fix a power cable break after the outlawed Irish Republican Army threatened to shoot repairmen.

The IRA said electrical workers have helped the British army by turning off power in certain areas to provide a cover of darkness for British soldiers and threatened to kill repairmen.

The blackout in the town, 30 miles south of Belfast, affected over 700 homes and two hospitals. Town officials said the outage endangered patients' lives.

Kissinger Critic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, former leader of the militant Jewish Defense League, yesterday said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would be the target of a series of demonstrations because of Kissinger's handling of the Mideast crisis and his alleged failure to aid Soviet Jews.

"It's about time the myths of Kissinger as savior of Israel and the free world are punctured," Kahane declared as 100 chanting, singing and sign-carrying supporters pressed around him upon his arrival at Kennedy Airport from Tel Aviv.

Kahane, who faces arms smuggling charges in Israel, did not say when the demonstration would be held.

No Gas Price Dip Seen By Oil Company Officials

HOUSTON (UPI) — Officials of major oil companies today scoffed at predictions of a dip in gasoline prices in coming months of up to six or seven cents a gallon. But an independent producer was slightly more optimistic.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon predicted the drop in gasoline prices based on three conditions: that crude oil supplies continue to rise, that the Arab nations do not reduce production and that world market prices are not raised arbitrarily.

But officials of Exxon, Shell and Gulf oil companies said they doubted Simon's predictions would come true. However, George Mitchell, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said price decreases probably would be in the one to two cent per gallon range.

Simon told reporters in Washington that economic pressures could reduce petroleum prices by as much as $3 a barrel, which he translated into reductions of up to seven cents a gallon at service stations.

"Secretary Simon's estimate that gasoline prices might fall two or three cents a gallon for each dollar reduction in the weighted average price of all crude oil appears to be based on the assumption that the entire crude costs can be absorbed by one product —gasoline," a Gulf Oil spokesman said.

"Federal regulations do not permit this. Therefore, Gulf calculates that with gasoline amounting to just under half of its own refining output, a $1 per barrel drop in crude prices would lead to gasoline price reductions of about one cent per gallon. Much depends on world production levels and the cost of crude oil on the world market."

Shell and Exxon spokesmen said there are too many uncertainties in the foreign crude supplies and prices to make a solid prediction on price decreases.

"Since gasoline prices still are controlled by the Federal Energy Administration, any decrease in raw material prices will be reflected by lower product prices," the Shell spokesman said.

"Even if the conditions Mr. Simon cites prevails, Shell does not anticipate that a reduction would be in the magnitude of six to seven cents a gallon."

"There is a good chance there will be a small drop because the competition is coming on strong," Mitchell said. "With the tremendous price increases on the world market, there are surpluses of crude oil on short terms."

A Colorado gasoline industry official predicted a price war in the Denver area soon because independent gasoline dealers are underselling brand name outlets with the tacit approval of major oil companies.

"You bet there's a surplus of gasoline and it is going to unbranded dealers at less than wholesale," said Al Hein, executive vice president of the Colorado Petroleum Retailers Association.

Bar Opposition Seen For Nixon Immunity

HONOLULU (UPI) — The outgoing president of the American Bar Association is predicting approval of a resolution opposing legal immunity for former President Richard M. Nixon.

The resolution before the ABA's 340-member House of Delegates today does not mention Nixon by name. But President Chesterfield Smith said the measure resulted from Watergate disclosures and was drafted by a committee with Nixon in mind.

The resolution said, the ABA should continue "its dedication to the principle of fair, just and impartial application and enforcement of the law regardless of the position or status of any individual alleged to have violated the law."

In an interview, at the ABA's annual convention Smith said, "The resolution should not mention anyone by name. Although it is aimed at the revelations about Nixon, it enunciates a general principle of law."

Smith predicted that a majority of the members of the House of Delegates would approve the resolution, making it the official stand of the ABA. "But I've been wrong before," Smith said.

Another resolution calling upon the ABA to "resolve that the decision of the special prosecutor whether to prosecute Richard Nixon for crimes or misdemeanors should be based solely on a determination of whether he has committed a crime or misdemeanor for which he could be convicted" was rejected by the committee.

In its report, the committee, chaired by William R. Smith Jr., Tampa, Fla., said that resolution "would deny to the citizen in question considerations to which others similarly situated are entitled, no matter what their station may be."

End Near For Ban On Gold Ownership

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has taken one more step toward ending a 40 year ban on gold ownership by U.S. citizens.

Ford signed a law yesterday making it legal for Americans to buy and trade bullion as soon as the President gives the word, but no later than December 31, 1974.

It is an open question whether ending the ban will touch off a new wave of speculation or whether investors will greet the news with a big yawn. The price of gold has been rapidly rising and bullion appears to have become a speculator's fad and a way for investors to hold off inflation.

One New York corporation, Samuel Weiss Co., promptly announced that it has approval from the New York Stock Exchange to act as a bullion agent. It said it was going to make gold bars of ½, 1, 5, 10, 25 and 50 troy ounces.

Americans have been barred from owning and dealing in gold since 1934, in the law signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt taking the nation off the gold standard. Most other nations have no such restrictive law.

The only exception to the ban in this country is for industrial and artistic purposes and for personal use such as jewerly and coin collections.

Ford took the gold action in a roundabout way, by signing a bill authorizing $1.5 billion is U.S. support for the International Development Association, an agency of the World Bank that grants low interest loans to the most underdeveloped nations.

The gold ownership language was $8c9ngressional amendment to the IDA bill.

Last June, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said President Nixon intended to lift the gold ban before the end of the year if it would not create serious problems in international financial markets. Ford will likely follow this outline and give the go-ahead sometime prior to the Dec. 31 deadline.

On the free market, the price of gold soared past $200 an ounce earlier this year but has fallen since to about $152. There is speculation that investors who bought at less than $200 hope to use a new surge of buying by Americans to unload their holdings at a profit.

Others, however, say that gold is the only safe hedge against inflation and the price is likely to climb much further.

Simon previously indicated that the government might try to temper speculation at the time the ban is lifted by selling off some of its $45 billion in gold stockpiled in Fort Knox.

Since the world supply of gold is relatively small in relation to the demand, any dumping of official gold reserves on the world market could send prices plummeting.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Watergate Guard Is Honored

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Frank Wills, the unemployed security guard who discovered the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972, said last night he was "happy to open the eyes of America."

Wills

Wills, 26, was honored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which presented him the Martin Luther King Award at its 17th annual convention.

Wills, who has been rejected for five security jobs since leaving his $80-a-week job at the Watergate complex, said the Nixon resignation "was one of the best things that could happen. It sets an example that we should investigate people who are running and keep a continuous check."

Wills, described as "Watergate's Forgotten Hero" by the SCLC, said his friends had asked him to run for city council in Washington, D.C. but he declined.

Base Overrun

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces backed by tanks overran a military base 17 miles north of Saigon and attacked two district capitals near Da Nang today, breaking a week-long lull in the Vietnam ground war, military sources said.

The Saigon command said the attacks were beaten back and 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers were killed. The government said 15 of its own troops were dead.

Bomb Charge

CANBERRA (UPI) — The Australian government accused France today of setting off a fifth nuclear bomb in its current Pacific ocean testing series that has scattered radioactive fallout over Australian territory.

Foreign Affairs Minister Senator Don Willesee reiterated Australian concern at the nuclear atmospheric and called it a breach of international law.

He declined to give the date of the latest blast or name the source of information about it.

Transit Slash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Ford's backing, House Republicans promised an effort today to cut a $20.4 billion mass transit aid bill almost in half.

The transit bill, which also contains a section that would allow bigger trucks on the interstate highway system, is being termed a "budget-busting" bill by Republicans, who want to cut it to $11.2 billion.

About half the money in the bill would go for capital improvements and operation of transit systems in the nine cities that now have rail or subway commuter lines.

Rocket Attack

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Communist gunners today launched one of the heaviest rocket attacks of the year on Phnom Penh.

At least 35 Chinese-built 107mm rockets fell on the city and preliminary police reports showed seven persons were killed and 47 others wounded, most of them civilians.

The attack came shortly before President Lon Nol renewed his call for peace talks with the insurgents and asked for an end to the sufferings of the Cambodian people.

Town Kept Dark

BELFAST (UPI) — Half of the Northern Ireland town of Newry was without electricity today because maintenance crews refused to fix a power cable break after the outlawed Irish Republican Army threatened to shoot repairmen.

The IRA said electrical workers have helped the British army by turning off power in certain areas to provide a cover of darkness for British soldiers and threatened to kill repairmen.

The blackout in the town, 30 miles south of Belfast, affected over 700 homes and two hospitals. Town officials said the outage endangered patients' lives.

Kissinger Critic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, former leader of the militant Jewish Defense League, yesterday said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would be the target of a series of demonstrations because of Kissinger's handling of the Mideast crisis and his alleged failure to aid Soviet Jews.

"It's about time the myths of Kissinger as savior of Israel and the free world are punctured," Kahane declared as 100 chanting, singing and sign-carrying supporters pressed around him upon his arrival at Kennedy Airport from Tel Aviv.

Kahane, who faces arms smuggling charges in Israel, did not say when the demonstration would be held.

No Gas Price Dip Seen By Oil Company Officials

HOUSTON (UPI) — Officials of major oil companies today scoffed at predictions of a dip in gasoline prices in coming months of up to six or seven cents a gallon. But an independent producer was slightly more optimistic.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon predicted the drop in gasoline prices based on three conditions: that crude oil supplies continue to rise, that the Arab nations do not reduce production and that world market prices are not raised arbitrarily.

But officials of Exxon, Shell and Gulf oil companies said they doubted Simon's predictions would come true. However, George Mitchell, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said price decreases probably would be in the one to two cent per gallon range.

Simon told reporters in Washington that economic pressures could reduce petroleum prices by as much as $3 a barrel, which he translated into reductions of up to seven cents a gallon at service stations.

"Secretary Simon's estimate that gasoline prices might fall two or three cents a gallon for each dollar reduction in the weighted average price of all crude oil appears to be based on the assumption that the entire crude costs can be absorbed by one product —gasoline," a Gulf Oil spokesman said.

"Federal regulations do not permit this. Therefore, Gulf calculates that with gasoline amounting to just under half of its own refining output, a $1 per barrel drop in crude prices would lead to gasoline price reductions of about one cent per gallon. Much depends on world production levels and the cost of crude oil on the world market."

Shell and Exxon spokesmen said there are too many uncertainties in the foreign crude supplies and prices to make a solid prediction on price decreases.

"Since gasoline prices still are controlled by the Federal Energy Administration, any decrease in raw material prices will be reflected by lower product prices," the Shell spokesman said.

"Even if the conditions Mr. Simon cites prevails, Shell does not anticipate that a reduction would be in the magnitude of six to seven cents a gallon."

"There is a good chance there will be a small drop because the competition is coming on strong," Mitchell said. "With the tremendous price increases on the world market, there are surpluses of crude oil on short terms."

A Colorado gasoline industry official predicted a price war in the Denver area soon because independent gasoline dealers are underselling brand name outlets with the tacit approval of major oil companies.

"You bet there's a surplus of gasoline and it is going to unbranded dealers at less than wholesale," said Al Hein, executive vice president of the Colorado Petroleum Retailers Association.

THREE CONVENIENT LOCATIONS

BOMB INSURANCE — International Red Cross officials yesterday laid a homemade Red Cross flag on the roof of the Hilton Hotel in Nicosia, Cyprus, while searching the sky for signs of Turkish fighter-bombers that have devastated parts of the city. Two rockets narrowly missed the hotel, one of the Red Cross neutral zones on the war-divided island.

Dardanelles to reinforce its Mediterranean Fleet.

The United Nations Security Council scheduled its second urgent meeting in as many days to try to get the dispute off the battlefield and back to the conference table.

The escalation of the Cyprus crisis, which erupted one month ago today, was proving a windfall for the Soviets. At the outset, they had complained that the crisis was a plot to turn the island into a NATO base.

Instead, Greece pulled its armed forces out of NATO and found itself on the verge of war with its NATO ally, Turkey, much to the discomfiture of the United States, the kingpin of the Atlantic alliance.

The Turkish Cypriot radio monitored in Adana, Turkey, announced at 6.10 p.m. (11:10 a.m. EDT), "Famagusta has surrendered to our forces. The Turks of Famagusta are celebrating the victory."

The Turkish General Staff had announced earlier that its armed forces had knifed to the outskirts of the ancient town of Famagusta, Cyprus's only deepwater port, reduced to a smoking ghost town in 24 hours of fighting.

Acting Cypriot President Clerides convened his cabinet ministers in Nicosia. Speculation was rife that he would give up Turkish-held areas of the island.

In London, UPI diplomatic correspondent K.C. Thaler said the United States and Great Britain had agreed to put off any new quest for a settlement until the Turks stop fighting.

Thaler quoted a British government spokesman as saying, "There is no basis at present for pushing a new peace initiative in the escalated Cyprus conflict, nor are there any willing partners to participate in any such effort at this stage."

Britain and the United States agreed on their wait-and-see line in transatlantic telephone conversations between Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary James Callaghan and President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the officials said.

Diplomatic sources said it looked increasingly as if dividing the island into self-governingenclaves or even independent Turkish Cypriot and Greek Cypriot states would be the eventual outcome.

Petaluman Injured In Auto Wreck

A Petaluma mother was seriously injured and two other persons were slightly hurt in a two-car collision at 3:30 p.m. yesterday on Lakeville Road south of Petaluma, California Highway Patrol officers reported today.

A pickup truck driven by Dennis W. Richardson, 26, of Rio Vista, Solano County, drifted onto the shoulder, and Richardson overcorrected, hitting the oncoming, southbound car driven by Jo Ann J. Hartmann, 32, of 1661 Acapulco Court, Petaluma.

Hillcrest Hospital spokesmen said Mrs. Hartmann was in stable condition today in the intensive care unit, with both legs broken. Her daughter, Michelle, 3, and Richardson were treated and released.

Assassination Figure Clay Shaw Is Dead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Clay Shaw, who was tried and acquitted on charges filed by former District Attorney Jim Garrison he plotted to assassinate President John F. Kennedy, died early today apparently of cancer.

Shaw, 60, was at his home at the time of his death. He had been admitted to Ochsner Foundation Hospital several times since February when his illness was diagnosed as cancer. A hospital spokesman announced the death but said the cause had not been determined.

Shaw, the only suspect ever tried in the Kennedy assassination, was acquitted by a jury two years to the day after his arrest.

Garrison then tried to prosecute Shaw on a charge of perjury but the federal courts ruled against the district attorney.

Garrison was defeated for reelection last year and is now a candidate for the Louisiana Supreme Court.

CLAY SHAW
Dies in New Orleans

Shaw's $5 million lawsuit, naming Garrison and several wealthy businessmen who helped finance the Kennedy investigation in the 1960s, was due for hearings in federal court next month.

Shaw retired as director of the International Trade Mart at New Orleans two years before Garrison brought charges against him.

among drug dealers throughout Sonoma County" as a result of the arrests, which so far have been only in the Santa Rosa area.

Striepeke said that during the past two months undercover agents have bought drugs with a street sale value of more than $200,000. These included 100 drug transactions, largely heroin, and 15 purchases of stolen property, he said.

This evidence was presented to the grand jury that was empaneled only last week, resulting in the massive new crackdown.

The three officials said their effort was aided by special criminal justice grants from the state.

Four arrest teams began their sweep at 10:30 p.m. yesterday, minutes after Superior Court Judge Kenneth M. Eyemann signed the indictments. The teams worked until 6 a.m. there was "no shooting, no violence, no hassel" in any of the arrests, the sheriff said. "It went very smoothly."

The arrest teams were to spread out again this afternoon after a few hours' sleep, Striepeke said.

Sheriff's reserves headed by Capt. Galen Zumwalt of Petaluma transported the arrestees to the county jail in Santa Rosa throughout the night.

In a joint statement, the county and city officials said that "the number of grand jury indictments shows the depth of the narcotics problem in Santa Rosa and the county in general." They said all law enforcement agencies in the county are cooperating to halt sales of narcotics and restricted drugs.

"Our aim is particularly to go after dealers selling to junior high and high school students," the sheriff added.

Larkspur Man Is Hurt In Accident

James Radu, 17, of 24 Liberty Street, Larskpur, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with multiple fractures of the right leg.

Larkspur police reported that Radu's motorcycle collided with a car driven by Mary Ann Louise Gray, 32, of 21 Chanticleer Avenue, Larkspur, when she was backing out of her driveway at 8:05 a.m. yesterday. No citations were issued.

Tomales Bid Rejected By Commission

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — The California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission yesterday refused to hear an appeal by Herbert H. Angress to build a $2.5 million resort-lodge on Tomales Bay, ending a five-year fight by the West Marin dairyman to erect the project. (Another commission story, page 1.)

Ruling that no substantial issue existed, the state coastal commission let stand two earlier denials of a permit by the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

If the state legislature approves a pending appropriation, the Angress property and other Tomales Bay parcels will be acquired by the state for park use.

The regional commission turned down a second appeal by Angress July 12 to build a scaled down version of the condominium-resort. Angress refused an offer in January by the Audubon Canyon Ranch to buy his west Tomales Bay property for $24,301.

San Rafael Man Hurt In Crash

Edward F. Curtis, 46, of San Rafael was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with injuries received last night in a two-car accident on North San Pedro Road in San Rafael.

The Highway Patrol said Curtis' eastbound auto attempted to pass a car driven by Robert Lewis Dieffenbach, 26, also of San Rafael.

The Curtis car struck the left side of the Dieffenbach auto, jumped a curb, crashed into a utility pole and overturned, according to officers, who said Curtis was traveling at "a high rate of speed" when the accident occurred about 9:45 p.m.

San Rafael Architect's Plan Favored

A San Rafael architect's proposal for a long, narrow park alongside Washington Creek was favored last night by the Petaluma Park, Recreation and Music Commission over designs submitted by two other firms.

City recreation director James R. Raymond said the commission passed all three drawings on to the city council for a decision. Sid Lewin of San Rafael said his fee would be $1,500 for schematics and preliminary drawings of the design the commission favored. Other firms bid higher, up to $2,500, Raymond said.

None of the designers was asked to estimate construction costs, Raymond said. The land has been dedicated to the city by developers and would be improved with "bedroom tax" funds required from subdividers.

The city is considering installing a 4,000-foot-long bicycle path on one bank of the Washington Creek flood channel and a park ranging from 10 feet to 30 feet wide on the other bank, behind the Greenbriar and Washington Square developments.

The Petaluma Park, Recreation and Music Commission also:

BICYCLE PATHS — Was told that bicycling enthusiasts represented by Richard Courier and Irene Eisenhut will report to the commission Sept. 11 how local groups can assist in making a reality of the paths drawn in the city's master plan.

PICNIC — Postponed to Nov. 13 a decision on whether to restrict use of city picnic facilities to Petaluma groups only.

BOND ISSUE — Called for local organizations and citizens to help the city campaign for passage of a $2 million park bond on the Nov. 5 ballot.

ADJOURNMANET — Adjourned to Sept. 11.

The report said Shoreline Highway, which runs past Sea Ranch, was a valuable recreational asset in danger of being overwhelmed by residential traffic.

"Should the taxpayers of the entire state be asked to pay for improvement of Shoreline Highway, if the principal need for improvement is to better serve second home subdivisions?" the report asked.

Castle and Cooke Inc., the developer, and the Sea Ranch lot owners association, were expected to challenge the decision in the courts.

Park government have sparked protests at home and abroad.

In the past two months 194 persons have been convicted at special military trials of taking part in a plot to overthrow the Park government. Several of those convicted have been sentenced to death.

Park was half-way through his 20-minute speech commemorating the 29th anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan when the gunman rose from his front-row seat and opened fire, bringing screams from the 2,500 persons in the audience.

Mrs. Park was a quiet, unassuming first lady considered by many South Korean women to be a model of national beauty. She married Park in 1950 and once referred to herself as "a bride supervised by the whole nation."

NIXON

comment on Ehrlichman's move and declined to say whether Nixon would be called as a prosecution witness.

The subpoena, addressed to Nixon at the "Presidential Compound, San Clemente, Calif., read:

"You are hereby commanded to appear in United States District Court for the District of Columbia ... to testify on behalf of defendant John D. Ehrlichman."

It was signed by Ehrlichman's attorney, Andrew G. Hall, and copies of it were released in the federal courthouse in Washington.

Nixon was named as an unindicted coconspirator in the cover-up case but was not indicted by the grand jury because Jaworski said he did not believe such action could be taken against a president in office.

The grand jury indicted seven Nixon associates, including his two top aides, Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman, but charges against Charles W. Colson were later dropped when he pleaded guilty to charges in the Ellsberg break-in case.

Jaworski was to file late today his response to motions to postpone the trial. It was expected he would not oppose a brief delay to give his staff more time to study the latest batch of Nixon tapes.

Erhlichman, Haldeman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell have asked for a delay in the trial and a hearing is set for Monday before Federal Judge John J. Sirica.

Ehrlichman had tried to subpoena Nixon while he was still President, but at that time his lawyers argued he could not be compelled to appear while he was still in office.

Lawyers for Haldeman contended yesterday in asking for delay of the trial that the public has been so poisoned against him that no jury would find him innocent of Watergate crimes.

He said any prospective juror who could honestly say he knows nothing about Watergate or had formed no opinions in the case would be "so oblivious to national affairs" he would not be smart enough to serve on the jury.

Another defendant, former Nixon campaign lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson, filed papers opposing any delay. He asked instead that he be given a separate trial and that it be moved away from Washington.

Parkinson's lawyers said he has only a "peripheral attachment" to his codefendants, "all of whom are politicians" rather than practicing lawyers as he is, and four of whom he does not even know. He said his case could be wrapped up at a separate trial within a month.

The trial of the "Watergate Six" also includes Robert C. Mardian and Gordon Strachan.

Haldeman also argued that Nixon's release of the crucial June 23, 1972, tape of their discussion limiting the FBI's early Watergate investigation severely damaged his case.

"With the complete impregnation of the public mind by the continuous reporting of alleged proofs of guilt on the part of this defendant, a fair trial by an intelligent jury cannot be obtained at this time," Haldeman's lawyers said.

Marinite Injured In Collision

A San Rafael driver was seriously injured when his car slammed into a boat and camper truck parked alongside Highway 101 in Petaluma yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol said Ruby C. Philpott of Gilroy, Santa Clara County, had stopped the camper to trade seats with her husband when their boat and trailer were ploughed into by the auto driven by Jessie Rudolph, 51, of 15 Clyde Avenue, San Rafael. Rudolph suffered two broken legs and a broken wrist, according to Hillcrest Hospital spokesmen. He was transferred to Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco.

The accident at 5:15 p.m. a quarter-mile north of the Washington Street overpass shoved the outboard motor through the 24-foot cruiser's transom and drove the bow several feet into the camper, officers said. They were unable to question Rudolph about the cause of the accident.

Tomales Bid Rejected By Commission

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — The California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission yesterday refused to hear an appeal by Herbert H. Angress to build a $2.5 million resort-lodge on Tomales Bay, ending a five-year fight by the West Marin dairyman to erect the project. (Another commission story, page 1.)

Ruling that no substantial issue existed, the state coastal commission let stand two earlier denials of a permit by the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

If the state legislature approves a pending appropriation, the Angress property and other Tomales Bay parcels will be acquired by the state for park use.

The regional commission turned down a second appeal by Angress July 12 to build a scaled down version of the condominium-resort. Angress refused an offer in January by the Audubon Canyon Ranch to buy his west Tomales Bay property for $24,301.

San Rafael Man Hurt In Crash

Edward F. Curtis, 46, of San Rafael was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with injuries received last night in a two-car accident on North San Pedro Road in San Rafael.

The Highway Patrol said Curtis' eastbound auto attempted to pass a car driven by Robert Lewis Dieffenbach, 26, also of San Rafael.

The Curtis car struck the left side of the Dieffenbach auto, jumped a curb, crashed into a utility pole and overturned, according to officers, who said Curtis was traveling at "a high rate of speed" when the accident occurred about 9:45 p.m.

San Rafael Architect's Plan Favored

A San Rafael architect's proposal for a long, narrow park alongside Washington Creek was favored last night by the Petaluma Park, Recreation and Music Commission over designs submitted by two other firms.

City recreation director James R. Raymond said the commission passed all three drawings on to the city council for a decision. Sid Lewin of San Rafael said his fee would be $1,500 for schematics and preliminary drawings of the design the commission favored. Other firms bid higher, up to $2,500, Raymond said.

None of the designers was asked to estimate construction costs, Raymond said. The land has been dedicated to the city by developers and would be improved with "bedroom tax" funds required from subdividers.

The city is considering installing a 4,000-foot-long bicycle path on one bank of the Washington Creek flood channel and a park ranging from 10 feet to 30 feet wide on the other bank, behind the Greenbriar and Washington Square developments.

The Petaluma Park, Recreation and Music Commission also:

BICYCLE PATHS — Was told that bicycling enthusiasts represented by Richard Courier and Irene Eisenhut will report to the commission Sept. 11 how local groups can assist in making a reality of the paths drawn in the city's master plan.

PICNIC — Postponed to Nov. 13 a decision on whether to restrict use of city picnic facilities to Petaluma groups only.

BOND ISSUE — Called for local organizations and citizens to help the city campaign for passage of a $2 million park bond on the Nov. 5 ballot.

ADJOURNMANET — Adjourned to Sept. 11.

views from highways, and contribute to pollution.

The report said Shoreline Highway, which runs past Sea Ranch, was a valuable recreational asset in danger of being overwhelmed by residential traffic.

"Should the taxpayers of the entire state be asked to pay for improvement of Shoreline Highway, if the principal need for improvement is to better serve second home subdivisions?" the report asked.

Castle and Cooke Inc., the developer, and the Sea Ranch lot owners association, were expected to challenge the decision in the courts.

SLAIN

Park government have sparked protests at home and abroad.

In the past two months 194 persons have been convicted at special military trials of taking part in a plot to overthrow the Park government. Several of those convicted have been sentenced to death.

Park was half-way through his 20-minute speech commemorating the 29th anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan when the gunman rose from his front-row seat and opened fire, bringing screams from the 2,500 persons in the audience.

Mrs. Park was a quiet, unassuming first lady considered by many South Korean women to be a model of national beauty. She married Park in 1950 and once referred to herself as "a bride supervised by the whole nation."

NIXON

comment on Ehrlichman's move and declined to say whether Nixon would be called as a prosecution witness.

The subpoena, addressed to Nixon at the "Presidential Compound, San Clemente, Calif., read:

"You are hereby commanded to appear in United States District Court for the District of Columbia ... to testify on behalf of defendant John D. Ehrlichman."

It was signed by Ehrlichman's attorney, Andrew G. Hall, and copies of it were released in the federal courthouse in Washington.

Nixon was named as an unindicted coconspirator in the cover-up case but was not indicted by the grand jury because Jaworski said he did not believe such action could be taken against a president in office.

The grand jury indicted seven Nixon associates, including his two top aides, Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman, but charges against Charles W. Colson were later dropped when he pleaded guilty to charges in the Ellsberg break-in case.

Jaworski was to file late today his response to motions to postpone the trial. It was expected he would not oppose a brief delay to give his staff more time to study the latest batch of Nixon tapes.

Erhlichman, Haldeman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell have asked for a delay in the trial and a hearing is set for Monday before Federal Judge John J. Sirica.

Ehrlichman had tried to subpoena Nixon while he was still President, but at that time his lawyers argued he could not be compelled to appear while he was still in office.

Lawyers for Haldeman contended yesterday in asking for delay of the trial that the public has been so poisoned against him that no jury would find him innocent of Watergate crimes.

He said any prospective juror who could honestly say he knows nothing about Watergate or had formed no opinions in the case would be "so oblivious to national affairs" he would not be smart enough to serve on the jury.

Another defendant, former Nixon campaign lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson, filed papers opposing any delay. He asked instead that he be given a separate trial and that it be moved away from Washington.

Parkinson's lawyers said he has only a "peripheral attachment" to his codefendants, "all of whom are politicians" rather than practicing lawyers as he is, and four of whom he does not even know. He said his case could be wrapped up at a separate trial within a month.

The trial of the "Watergate Six" also includes Robert C. Mardian and Gordon Strachan.

Haldeman also argued that Nixon's release of the crucial June 23, 1972, tape of their discussion limiting the FBI's early Watergate investigation severely damaged his case.

"With the complete impregnation of the public mind by the continuous reporting of alleged proofs of guilt on the part of this defendant, a fair trial by an intelligent jury cannot be obtained at this time," Haldeman's lawyers said.

Marinite Injured In Collision

A San Rafael driver was seriously injured when his car slammed into a boat and camper truck parked alongside Highway 101 in Petaluma yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol said Ruby C. Philpott of Gilroy, Santa Clara County, had stopped the camper to trade seats with her husband when their boat and trailer were ploughed into by the auto driven by Jessie Rudolph, 51, of 15 Clyde Avenue, San Rafael. Rudolph suffered two broken legs and a broken wrist, according to Hillcrest Hospital spokesmen. He was transferred to Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco.

The accident at 5:15 p.m. a quarter-mile north of the Washington Street overpass shoved the outboard motor through the 24-foot cruiser's transom and drove the bow several feet into the camper, officers said. They were unable to question Rudolph about the cause of the accident.

An Outbreak Of Malaria Is Reported

MARYSVILLE (AP) — State and federal health officials say they are trying to stop an outbreak of malaria in three Northern California farm counties, the first such outbreak in the state since 1958.

Five cases of malaria have been reported recently in Butte, Sutter and Yuba counties, said Stephen Foster, a spokesman for the State Department of Health.

"They're attempting to track it down," he said. "Apparently, there is an individual or individuals who were infected while outside the country."

Authorities in the three-county area have been spraying in the area in an effort to eradicate the mosquitoes which health officials say have been spreading the disease.

"Our reason for being here is to attempt to find ways of controlling the mosquitos and prevent other persons from being infected," said Dr. Mitchell Singal of the state Department of Health.

Singal has been joined by Dr. Peter Shaw of the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. in the effort to wipe out the disease.

Bleak Prediction On Environment

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Supreme Court Associate Justice William O. Douglas says only local action can save the environment because the government is too big and complex to deal effectively with conservation measures.

"The country is on the verge of being put under the bulldozer, put through great rock crushers and being converted into an enormous pile of debris," the justice said in an interview yesterday.

DeMolay To Honor Mill Valley Advisor

Gibson L. Crawford of San Rafael will receive the Cross of Honor, the International Order of DeMolay's highest award, at 8 p.m. Aug. 25 at the Fairfax Masonic Lodge in Larkspur.

Crawford is being cited for his work as an advisory leader of the Mill Valley Chapter of DeMolay.

DeMolay is an organization affiliated with the Masons that is composed of young men ages 13 to 21 who perform community and civic service projects. A recent project, for instance, of one Marin chapter was to construct a footbridge across Redwood Creek at Muir State Beach.

Crawford, 52, has served on the Mill Valley chapter advisory council for six years as an advisor, chapter dad and past president. He assisted the chapter with their annual Christmas tree lot, ecology clean-up campaigns and other activities.

Crawford's other community activities include work with the boy scouts and the Marin Chapter of the American Cancer Society. He is a member of the Marin Shrine Club.

A past director and president of the San Francisco Life Underwriters Association, Crawford was a 1970 recipient of the Prudential Insurance Company's Civic Leader Award.

He's been a resident of Marin County for 18 years and now lives at 1081 Las Gallinas Avenue. Crawford is married and has two sons.

Arraignment Scheduled For Pair In Robbery

Two Novato men arrested in the aftermath of an armed robbery in front of a Sausalito nightspot yesterday were to be charged today in Marin Municipal Court, according to the Marin District Attorney's office.

One of the men, Douglas Lamar Woodard, 21, was taken into custody in front of the Boathouse restaurant after allegedly drawing a gun on a 30-year-old Sausalito woman.

The other man escaped when two passersby came to the aid of Beverly Rodgers, but Sausalito police tracked him down and arrested him about noon yesterday.

He was identified as Richard Thomas Berry, 21, of 5935 Redwood Highway.

Bail for both men was set at $10,000 and both remained in jail pending arraignment today.

CARACAS (UPI) — The Venezuelan government has proposed that every car in the nation's capital be kept off the streets one day a week.

Farm Labor Bill Moves To Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A farm labor bill giving Cesar Chavez a chance to revitalize the dwindling ranks of his United Farm Worker Union (UFW) today is before the full Assembly.

Despite opposition from growers and the Teamsters Union, which represents most farm laborers, the bill advanced from the Assembly Ways and Means Committee yesterdayon a narrow 12-6 bipartisan vote. Eleven votes were needed for passage.

No such bill has advanced this far in recent California legislative history. The measure (AB3370) allows secret union elections and secondary boycotts, one of the UFW's chief weapons.

Some 400 of Chavez' followers in the audience cheered when the vote was announced, but there was an absence of noisy demonstrations which marked an earlier hearing.

The bill would create a state Agricultural Workers Commission to oversee farm labor elections determining which union would represent workers.

The UFW had 320 growers and 55,000 workers under contract a year ago, but Teamster organizing initiatives have cut UFW ranks to 12,000 workers and 15 growers under contract.

Supported by Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy, the bill was authored by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles.

The legislation is patterned after the National Labor Relations Act, which does not cover farm labor. The bill allows "recognitional strikes" to force an election. But it does not cover secondary boycotts.

The bill was amended by the committee to outlaw for one year jurisdictional strikes by the defeated union and to permit Seventh Day Adventists, who do not believe in unions, to work without joining either organization.

Congress Speeding Ford Bill Through

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Banking Committee quickly approved today President Ford's request for a new cost of living task force to spotlight economic excesses and scheduled it for floor action Monday.

Turning back all attempts to go beyond the President's wishes, the committee approved 27 to 7 a bill almost identical to the one Ford asked for. Four liberal Democrats and three conservative Republicans voted against the bill.

Many members expressed skepticism that Ford's new task force, which would amount to a "jawboning agency," could do anything to slow inflation. Several Democrats urged that the bill not be changed because it could do neither harm nor good but Ford should be given his wish without congressional interference.

Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., urged the committee not to change Ford's request because "he believes it will work and I sincerely hope he is correct for the sake of the country." Patman, however, has expressed his doubts.

Congress handled the proposal with unusual haste, perhaps in deference to Ford. In his first policy speech Monday, Ford asked Congress to revive the council which expired last April 30, in a modified form. The Senate has already begun hearings.

The new task force would be composed of nine top Ford counselors and cabinet members plus a director to be appointed by the President.

It would review all areas of the economy, work with labor and management to improve collective bargaining, review federal programs and hold public hearings to spotlight excessive price or wage increases.

The task force would not have the powers —such as forcing rollbacks in wages and prices it thought inflationary — that former President Nixon's Cost of Living Counsel had.

The bill differs only slightly from Ford's original request. The committee added the secretary of commerce to the task force, required quarterly reports to Congress and terminated the task force as of June 30, 1976.

Mansfield Sets Senate Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield today established a longevity record for Senate leaders.

Mansfield has served as Senate Democratic leader for 13 years and 225 days.

The old record was held by Sen. Joseph T. Robinson, D-Ark., who served in the late 1920s and 1930s as both majority and minority leader.

Striking Firemen In San Mateo Meet Council

SAN MATEO (UPI) — Negotiators of striking San Mateo firemen met with the city council yesterday in the first face-to-face session between the two sides.

"We don't know if we accomplished a single thing," said lawyer Thornton C. Bunch in behalf of the firemen.

However, City Mgr. John Lilly said he thought the "clear the air" session was useful—at least for the fire fighters.

"Successful? It was from the union standpoint. For one hour and 45 minutes they talked to us about their story," he said.

The strike began nine days ago and firemen from the state Division of Forestry have since been manning city fire stations.

Early August Car Sales Reach Nine-Year High

DETROIT (UPI) — Buyers looking for bargains before prices shoot up $500 helped push early August new car sales a nine-year high and their best year-to-year performance since last September.

The four U.S. automakers reported yesterday that Aug. 1-10 sales were up 2.2 per cent from last year, the second 10- day period in a row that sales have topped the year-ago performances. That's a feat the automakers haven't been able to pull off since last summer before the energy crisis.

Some dealers reported high buyers' interest due to reports General Motors will hike prices of its '75 models by an average $500 and Ford by $418. Auto company sales executives said there was new consumer interest in the mid-and full-size cars that weren't selling during the winter gasoline crisis.

"The people we have coming in now are worried about the price increases," said Jim Gilmore, a Cadillac-Pontiac dealer in Kalamazoo, Mich. "I'm positive there will be a customer rebellion if prices keep increasing."

Paced by GM, which showed a 14.6 per cent gain over last year, the auto companies sold 207,624 cars, compared with 203,172 in the Aug. 1-10 period last year.

MAKES WAY FOR THE NEW

Workmen, manning cranes and bulldozers, remove slabs of concrete and twisted steel rods as the old Washington Street Highway 101 overpass in Petaluma is torn down. An adjacent, wider overpass with a lower slope was opened to traffic last weekend. The state Division of Highways reports that the northbound onramp to Highway 101 from Washington Street is closed through Aug. 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. as workmen rebuild the onramps.

Thunderstorms Batter Farmers

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Weather again has played the part of the villain in the continuing tale of farmers' woes, this time unleasing violence that destroyed eight graneries and damaged numerous other farm buildings in North Dakota.

Violent thunderstorms were widespread in parts of the Midwest and Southeast last night, adding to the problems of farmers who earlier took a beating from a severe drought.

The storms, which eventually diminished to only a few showers and isolated thunderstorms as the night progressed, spawned tornadoes which struck farms about 20 miles northeast of Jamestown, N.D.

The tornadoes destroyed at lease eight farm graneries and damaged several other graneries and farm buildings. However, there were no reports of injuries.

The thunderstorm activity in the Dakotas diminished early today and moved into Minnesota. There were scattered showers and thundershowers in eastern Kansas, southeast Nebraska, northern Oklahoma and western Missouri.

However, the rainfall did little to help farmers suffering extensive crop failures caused by the earlier drought.

At Tahoka, Tex., Lynn County agent Bill Griffin said yesterday dryland cotton farmers would survive this year's drought with the help of loans from banks and credit agencies. However, he said a repeat of the dry weather next season could force many of them out of business.

"Most of (the farmers) will get a crop of weeds," Griffin said. "They'll try to control the weeds through the summer then break the land up and get ready for next year. "Most of them will be around next year. Now if we had another (drought) next year, we'd lose a lot of producers."

Griffin said Lynn County, which produced 275,000 bales of cotton in 1973, will harvest only 50,000 bales this season.

But crops weren't all that suffered because of the drought. The Kansas State University Extension Service reported yesterday that a boom in Kansas farm land also has shriveled. The service said farm land prices soared 30 per cent in a 12-month period ending March 1, but slowed between April 1 and July 1, rising only 2 or 3 per cent.

Oklahoma Gov. David Hall, citing estimated losses of a half billion dollars in his state alone, yesterday asked the federal government to extend drought disaster designation to the entire state.

"The impact on the economy of Oklahoma is and will continue to be disastrous," Hall said.

He said Oklahoma oat production was down 59 per cent, barley 64 per cent, sorghum 27 per cent, wheat 14 per cent, hay 32 per cent and peanuts 18 per cent as compared with 1973.

Showers and thunderstorms also spread into western Montana, northern Colorado and southern New Mexico today. However, skies were clear over New England, the Great Lakes and much of the Ohio Valley.

Foes Of Vitamin Controls Are Gaining Backing In The Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Critics of the Food and Drug Administration's proposed vitamin controls appear to be finding some sympathy in the Senate for their drive to overturn regulations scheduled to take effect early next year.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who has lined up 44 of his fellow senators behind legislation to undo the FDA proposal, said yesterday the FDA is trying to play God with the nutritional rights of millions of Americans.

Proxmire, as well as health food store representatives, vitamin industry forces and others appear to have found an ally in Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., a member of the Senate's Health subcommittee which conducted hearings on the subject.

Schweiker repeatedly and closely quizzed FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt on the possibility that the regulations would mean some vitamins would be available only under a doctor's prescription. Schmidt steadfastly denied anything like that would happen, based on present knowledge.

The FDA wants to declare to be a drug any vitamin, food or food supplement containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any one vitamin, and to outlaw certain combinations of vitamins which it believes are irrational.

Once classified as a drug, vitamins could continue to be sold over the counter just as aspirin is, but they would also be subject to a safety and effectiveness review by an FDA panel which is examining all nonprescription drugs.

Vitamins could potentially wind up restricted to prescription, but Schmidt contended there is no reason now to suspect they would. He also contends forces opposing the regulations are using the prescription argument as a scare tactic to frighten consumers and stir up mail against the plan.

Goldwater Feels Bush Is Ahead

Columbia, S.C. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's "gut feeling" is that President Ford favors Republican National Chairman George Bush for the vice presidency.

The Arizona Republican, here to address a GOP dinner, said yesterday he could not explain why he thinks Bush is in the lead.

"I would call it just a gut feeling," he said.

Goldwater, commenting on reports that he is also in the running for the vice presidential spot, said he would accept any nomination from Ford.

Company Reports Supply Robbery

Metal grates valued at $2,025 and pipe valued at $562 were taken from the Freeman and Sondgroth Construction Co. storage yard between Atherton and Olive avenues, Novato, between June 17 and July 5, the company reported yesterday.

Foreman David G. Flores told Novato police the material was taken during a strike period and the loss wasn't discovered until inventory was completed.

San Rafael Man Held In Theft Case

A 22-year-old man, awaiting sentencing in Marin Superior Court for a trespass charge stemming from a burglary arrest last March, was again arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of stolen property.

Gregory Crawford Gocher, of no known address, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

San Rafael police said Gocher is suspected of stealing antiques from the San Rafael residence of his mother and selling them to a local store.

Gocher was arrested last March on suspicion of burglarizing a San Rafael home twice and was later convicted of misdemeanor trespassing. He will be sentenced on that charge Aug. 27 in Marin Superior Court.

Panama Students Pelt U.S. Embassy

PANAMA (AP) — Panamanian students stoned the United States Embassy here, smashing 80 windows as Panamanian national guard troops stood nearby directing traffic around the demonstrators.

Officials said the protest, which included banana peels thrown on the embassy's front steps, was against the refusal of an American banana company, United Brands, to pay the export tax levied by Panama, Costa Rica and Honduras.

An Embassy spokesman said a formal protest would be filed with the Panamanian government because of the demonstration yesterday.

An estimated 300 high school students gathered in front of the embassy and for 45 minutes protested peacefully. But as most of the students began to leave, some of the group tried to haul down the American flag in front of the building.

Failing to do so, the students sang the Panamanian national anthem, burned a crude reproduction of the U.S. flag and threw banana peels on the front steps.

At this point five national guardsmen who usually protect the embassy called in reinforcements but they did not try to break up the protest.

The embassy spokesman said no one inside the embassy was injured in the rock throwing spree. He said some of the rocks went through the windows of the office of Ambassador William Jorden.

MAKES WAY FOR THE NEW

Workmen, manning cranes and bulldozers, remove slabs of concrete and twisted steel rods as the old Washington Street Highway 101 overpass in Petaluma is torn down. An adjacent, wider overpass with a lower slope was opened to traffic last weekend. The State Division of Highways reports that the northbound onramp to Highway 101 from Washington Street is closed through Aug. 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. as workmen rebuild the onramps.

Thunderstorms Batter Farmers

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Weather again has played the part of the villain in the continuing tale of farmers' woes, this time unleasing violence that destroyed eight graneries and damaged numerous other farm buildings in North Dakota.

Violent thunderstorms were widespread in parts of the Midwest and Southeast last night, adding to the problems of farmers who earlier took a beating from a severe drought.

The storms, which eventually diminished to only a few showers and isolated thunderstorms as the night progressed, spawned tornadoes which struck farms about 20 miles northeast of Jamestown, N.D.

The tornadoes destroyed at lease eight farm graneries and damaged several other graneries and farm buildings. However, there were no reports of injuries.

The thunderstorm activity in the Dakotas diminished early today and moved into Minnesota. There were scattered showers and thundershowers in eastern Kansas, southeast Nebraska, northern Oklahoma and western Missouri.

However, the rainfall did little to help farmers suffering extensive crop failures caused by the earlier drought.

At Tahoka, Tex., Lynn County agent Bill Griffin said yesterday dryland cotton farmers would survive this year's drought with the help of loans from banks and credit agencies. However, he said a repeat of the dry weather next season could force many of them out of business.

"Most of (the farmers) will get a crop of weeds," Griffin said. "They'll try to control the weeds through the summer then break the land up and get ready for next year. "Most of them will be around next year. Now if we had another (drought) next year, we'd lose a lot of producers."

Griffin said Lynn County, which produced 275,000 bales of cotton in 1973, will harvest only 50,000 bales this season.

But crops weren't all that suffered because of the drought. The Kansas State University Extension Service reported yesterday that a boom in Kansas farm land also has shriveled. The service said farm land prices soared 30 per cent in a 12-month period ending March 1, but slowed between April 1 and July 1, rising only 2 or 3 per cent.

Oklahoma Gov. David Hall, citing estimated losses of a half billion dollars in his state alone, yesterday asked the federal government to extend drought disaster designation to the entire state.

"The impact on the economy of Oklahoma is and will continue to be disastrous," Hall said.

He said Oklahoma oat production was down 59 per cent, barley 64 per cent, sorghum 27 per cent, wheat 14 per cent, hay 32 per cent and peanuts 18 per cent as compared with 1973.

Showers and thunderstorms also spread into western Montana, northern Colorado and southern New Mexico today. However, skies were clear over New England, the Great Lakes and much of the Ohio Valley.

Foes Of Vitamin Controls Are Gaining Backing In The Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Critics of the Food and Drug Administration's proposed vitamin controls appear to be finding some sympathy in the Senate for their drive to overturn regulations scheduled to take effect early next year.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who has lined up 44 of his fellow senators behind legislation to undo the FDA proposal, said yesterday the FDA is trying to play God with the nutritional rights of millions of Americans.

Proxmire, as well as health food store representatives, vitamin industry forces and others appear to have found an ally in Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., a member of the Senate's Health subcommittee which conducted hearings on the subject.

Schweiker repeatedly and closely quizzed FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt on the possibility that the regulations would mean some vitamins would be available only under a doctor's prescription. Schmidt steadfastly denied anything like that would happen, based on present knowledge.

The FDA wants to declare to be a drug any vitamin, food or food supplement containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any one vitamin, and to outlaw certain combinations of vitamins which it believes are irrational.

Once classified as a drug, vitamins could continue to be sold over the counter just as aspirin is, but they would also be subject to a safety and effectiveness review by an FDA panel which is examining all nonprescription drugs.

Vitamins could potentially wind up restricted to prescription, but Schmidt contended there is no reason now to suspect they would. He also contends forces opposing the regulations are using the prescription argument as a scare tactic to frighten consumers and stir up mail against the plan.

Goldwater Feels Bush Is Ahead

Columbia, S.C. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's "gut feeling" is that President Ford favors Republican National Chairman George Bush for the vice presidency.

The Arizona Republican, here to address a GOP dinner, said yesterday he could not explain why he thinks Bush is in the lead.

"I would call it just a gut feeling," he said.

Goldwater, commenting on reports that he is also in the running for the vice presidential spot, said he would accept any nomination from Ford.

Company Reports Supply Robbery

Metal grates valued at $2,025 and pipe valued at $562 were taken from the Freeman and Songroth Construction Co. storage yard between Atherton and Olive avenues, Novato, between June 17 and July 5, the company reported yesterday.

Foreman David G. Flores told Novato police the material was taken during a strike period and the loss wasn't discovered until inventory was completed.

San Rafael Man Held In Theft Case

A 22-year-old man, awaiting sentencing in Marin Superior Court for a trespass charge stemming from a burglary arrest last March, was again arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of stolen property.

Gregory Crawford Gocher, of no known address, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

San Rafael police said Gocher is suspected of stealing antiques from the San Rafael residence of his mother and selling them to a local store.

Gocher was arrested last March on suspicion of burglarizing a San Rafael home twice and was later convicted of misdemeanor trespassing. He will be sentenced on that charge Aug. 27 in Marin Superior Court.

Panama Students Pelt U.S. Embassy

PANAMA (AP) — Panamanian students stoned the United States Embassy here, smashing 80 windows as Panamanian national guard troops stood nearby directing traffic around the demonstrators.

Officials said the protest, which included banana peels thrown on the embassy's front steps, was against the refusal of an American banana company, United Brands, to pay the export tax levied by Panama, Costa Rica and Honduras.

An Embassy spokesman said a formal protest would be filed with the Panamanian government because of the demonstration yesterday.

An estimated 300 high school students gathered in front of the embassy and for 45 minutes protested peacefully. But as most of the students began to leave, some of the group tried to haul down the American flag in front of the building.

Failing to do so, the students sang the Panamanian national anthem, burned a crude reproduction of the U.S. flag and threw banana peels on the front steps.

At this point five national guardsmen who usually protect the embassy called in reinforcements but they did not try to break up the protest.

The embassy spokesman said no one inside the embassy was injured in the rock throwing spree. He said some of the rocks went through the windows of the office of Ambassador William Jorden.

New Citizen Pleased With Adopted Nation

Elena Guiseppina Sessi, a native of Italy, thinks America is wonderful. "It's nice, nice, very good," she said, in broken English. "I like the people, the work, everything."

Mrs. Sessi was one of 23 residents of Marin and Southern Sonoma counties to be naturalized last month by the District Court in San Francisco.

She was born in 1911 in Ponte San Pietro Bergano, a small town in northern Italy.

Mrs. Sessi lived there most of her life and worked for 30 years in a cotton processing factory on the outskirts of town.

At the urging of an aunt, Maria Locatelli of Dos Palos, Merced County, Mrs. Sessi moved to America eight years ago. She stayed with the aunt for a little over a year and then moved to San Rafael, where a cousin, Teresa Carminati, introduced her to Artemide Sessi, a retired San Rafael barber.

The couple were soon married and have lived at 23 Clorinda Avenue in San Rafael ever since.

Other new citizens naturalized in the United States District Court are:

Reds Impressed By Crime Gear

MOSCOW (UPI) — Hundreds of Soviet policemen yesterday had their first look at Western crime detection equipment. They appeared impressed.

"Very interesting, very interesting," said a uniformed Moscow militiaman as he looked over a $15,000 American-built mobile crime laboratory at the opening day of "Krimtechnika-74."

The two-week exhibit, in which 60 firms from a dozen Communist and Western nations are participating, is the first of its kind in the Soviet Union.

Shortages Of Water Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department said yesterday its water management experts fear "significant water shortages" by the year 2,000 in the upper Colorado River basin.

Water supplies were studied there because of prospects of development of coal and oil shale deposits in Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico and Arizona.

Sure energy production developments guzzle water in enormous quantities and in the five state area over 30 major energy development projects are in operation, under construcion, or in planning and these will require the diversion of water .

"The surface water supply in the upper basin is already overappropriated, especially in Colorado and Utah," the department said.

"Demands for water for other uses such as municipal and industrial, agriculture and environmental purposes are also expected to increase greatly," the department said. "These competing uses in the area could result in significant water shortages by the year 2,000."

The department recommended that the states begin evaluation and planning.

Princess Anne Awarded Medal

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II today awarded her daughter Princess Anne a 24th birthday medal for "calm and brave" behavior during a shooting attempt to kidnap her five months ago.

The Queen made Anne a Dame Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order in recognition of her conduct during the March 20 incident in the Mall leading to Buckingham Palace.

Anne's husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, 25, was made a Commander of the Order. Rowena Brassey, Anne's lady in waiting who was in the royal car, became a member of the order, fourth class.

Ian Ball, a 26-year-old Londoner, was committed to a mental institution for the single-handed attempt to kidnap Anne for ransom.

THEY PAUSED FOR PRAYER

Two newly ordained women priests in the Episcopal church, Allison Cheek (standing at right) and Jeannette Ridlon Piccard (seated), yesterday attended a communion service held during a special session of the church's House of Bishops. The ordination of 11 women as priests in defiance of church orders has caused an uproar in the church and both sides presented their case yesterday to the special session. The bishops planned today to discuss what to do about four bishops who defied church hierarchy with the ordinations.

DENVER (UPI) — The new superintendent of the Air Force Academy, Maj. Gen. James P. Allen, says women aren't tough enough to be admitted into the nation's military academies. Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., says he's dreaming.

"I'm always amused when an academy superintendent, who is waited on hand and foot by military servants and is whisked about in limousines, starts talking about how tough the Air Force and the Air Force Academy is," she said Wednesday.

"He is living a myth," said Rep. Schroeder, a member of the House Armed Services subcommittee. "It is time it (the academy) was brought into the real world."

California Bid To Block Hotels Fails

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Bruce Thompson, despite a personal reluctance, yesterday rejected a California suit to stop construction of two hotel-casinos on the Nevada side at Lake Tahoe.

Thompson refused to issue a preliminary injunction to prevent work on Hotel Oliver and Tahoe Palace which are planned near Stateline. The owners of the hotel said work would start immediately.

Thompson agreed with arguments by attorneys for Oliver Kahle and Ted Jennings that a July vote by the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency left the proposals unresolved and therefore automatically approved.

Kahle's attorney Fran Breen told the court the TRPA compact requires a majority vote by both California and Nevada representatives to act. He said the 7-3 vote with all five Californians against and three Nevadans for allowing construction was legally no action at all.

Breen argued therefore the 60-day time limit for considering such proposals applies to both the hotels.

The State of California filed the suit after the vote by the TRPA.

Deputy California Attorney General Zan Henson said allowing the developers to begin grading on the properties would cause irreparable harm to the environment in the Tahoe basin—including the California side.

He said the 7-3 vote by the TRPA was a final action and that the 60-day approval clause does not apply.

"It's a very simple legal question whether or not the vote of the TRPA was final action or not," he said.

He said the hotel owners have promised to restore the sites if they lose in court. But he questioned how they could restore 150 full grown trees or a meadow.

"If the buildings are partially up, what relief is available to the plaintiffs then? The likelihood of a court ordering them to tear it down is somewhat tenuous," Henson said.

Breen argued, "They are taking a position that is exactly the same as ours with one exception. Three members from California —or Nevada — could stop any project.

Police To Ask Board For Vests

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The board of supervisors will be asked for $200,000 to equip policemen with bulletproof vests.

The city's police commission was unanimous yesterday in its decision to make the request.

Police Chief Donald M. Scott had asked that the vests be made standard equipment for policemen after a patrolman wearing one escaped serious injury although hit in the chest by a bullet fired at point-blank range.

Our Votes Increase Or Curb Inflation

Inflation has been our No. 1 domestic problem for quite a long time. Now that we are at last rid of Vietnam and Watergate, perhaps it will get the attention it deserves.

President Gerald Ford has served notice that it will get his attention as top priority item. And in his address to Congress on Monday night, he had some good advice for all of us: Don't vote for the big spenders.

MR. FORD, who is known as a "good party man," served notice that he considers a firm stand against increased government spending more important than party label. He said that in the upcoming congressional elections he will urge voters to support candidates, "Democrats or Republicans, conservative or liberal, who consistently vote for tough decisions to cut the cost of government, restrain federal spending, and bring inflation under control."

In saying this, he reached the heart of the problem; for we, the voters, are responsible for inflated government spending that is a primary cause of the steady shrink in the value of the dollar.

We are responsible for it because we vote into office men and women who won't make those though decisions, who instead promote special causes for the sake of votes.

THOSE SPECIAL causes always have appeal. Whether the money is for housing subsidies, open space purchase, expanded welfare benefits, handouts to the schools "to provide better education," or whatever, it is always appealing. It always has a constituency, as the politicans put it. That is why it is so tough for them to vote "no."

We are told that each program will enable the government to do something for us that we are unable to do for ourselves.

Unmentioned, however,is the fact that we are able to do less and less for ourselves because we must pay more and more for government. Unmentioned is the fact that deficit spending by the federal government causes a steady decline in the dollar's value, diminishing our savings, our real earnings — and, along with them, our ability to do things for ourselves.

ALL OF US should apply the same test that President Ford says he will apply — and not just to candidates at the federal level. Increased state and local taxes also cut into our ability to do things for ourselves.

Our incumbent candidate for Congress, John L. Burton, has a record as a big spending advocate while in the state legislature. Our incumbent state senator, Peter H. Behr, has a big spending record both as state legislator and as county supervisor. Assembly candidate Michael Wornum has a record for big spending as county supervisor.

Their opponents have not been in offices where they made the decisions on whether to spend for good causes (and votes) or to curb government spending for the sake of a stable economy. We need to put them "on the spot" to find out where they stand.

"It does no good to blame the public for spending too much when the government is spending too much," said President Ford in his address to Congress.

There is a corollary to that: It does no good to blame the government for spending too much if we keep returning to office those who promote and authorize such spending.

U.C. Regents Give Hitch Benefits Budget Denied

By EARL G. WATERS

Although regents and top management of the University of California have complained bitterly from time to time of the failures of Gov. Ronald Reagan and Finance Director Verne Orr to recognize the financial needs of the university, they have consistently acted in a manner not likely to win public sympathy for their complaints.

For instance, at their latest meeting the regents voted a 7.5 per cent salary increase for President Charles J. Hitch, although the salary increase for university employees voted by the Legislature, with the governor's approval, was only 5.4 per cent.

It is one thing to give an assistant professor earning $12,000 a year a 5.4 per cent raise to adjust for cost of living. That is only about five bucks a week after deductions. But for Hitch, whose $55,000 annual salary was already $6,000 more than that paid the governor, it means close to a $100 a week, which is more than many, paying the taxes to provide the salary, earn.

THOSE FAMILIAR with government know that the inequity doesn't stop with Hitch. Having raised his salary, it can be expected that similar raises, in excess of those granted the rank and file professors who do the primary job in education, will be accorded the rest of the university top brass.

These things might not be so much of an irritant to the public if everyone's salaries were keeping pace with inflation. It seems everyone is aware that this is not the case excepting those at the highest levels in the educational system.

Hitch and the regents constantly plead the need for more tax dollars to run the university. And each year the Legislature appropriates increasing amounts of tax dollars.

And it may be that the students are getting shorted in some areas of educational needs.

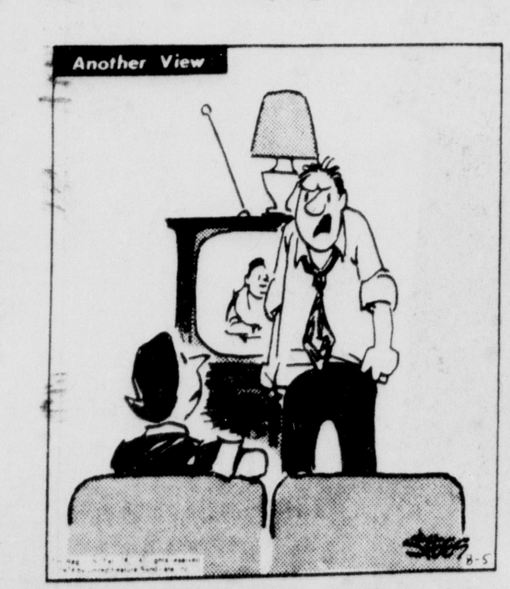
Still, when the university has, in addition to the half billion tax dollars annually appropriated by the Legislature, funds from endowments, grants and other sources nearly equal to those given by the state, the needs become a little difficult to understand.

THEY GO BEYOND understanding when the regents not only pass out salary raises to a privileged few, in excess of those given to all other employees, but divert endowment funds to bestow huge fringe benefits upon that chosen few after the Legislature had denied them.

For it was at that same meeting that the regents voted to use endowment funds to furnish Hitch and the chancellors free housing, servants and entertainment funds which had been slashed from the budget by the Legislature.

The question raised by this action is, what are the students to be deprived of by this diversion of endowment money? And, if it was not being used, why couldn't it have been earmarked for some of the things which the regents and Hitch are representing to the governor and the Legislature can't be done for the students because of a lack of funds?

The only conclusion to be drawn is that as far as Hitch and the regents are concerned, the top officials are not to be deprived anything, even though it means the educational needs of the students must be sacrificed.



"And now for my instant analysis of the world's news today."

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"With old inflation riding the headlines, I have read till I am bleary-eyed, and I can't get head from tails of the whole thing. We are living in an age of explanations, and plenty of them, too, but no two things that's been done to us has been explained twice the same way — by even the same man." — Jan 28, 1934.

Dippers Into Public Till Best Rewarded

With regard to the "Sacramento Scene — High-Pay Legislature," it has become a matter of survival and severance, not of the free, but of those in power.

If things were to go on as they have in the past, inflation, bust, and depression, one would see who was the best rewarded, those paid out of public treasuries, dippers, double dippers, and triple dippers; knights around the armored table.

We are threatened, and it is hell to be poor!

College Needs To Cut Down On Expenses

It was shocking to read that the College of Marin is going to require a tax hike of 3 cents per $100 assessed valuation over and above the enormous raise in the 1974 reappraisal of property by our county assessor. Much of Mill Valley property has been reappraised upward 40 per cent and more.

The result of this one item means that, to this taxpayer, the cost of the community college will increase by 65 per cent over last year — in actual dollars, $71.83 more per year.

It is time to tighten the requirements for students at the College of Marin. How about fulltime students being required to take a minimum of 15 units with grade accomplishments of gentlemenly C's? How about doing away with the munificent policy of allowing students to drop a course two weeks after the mid-semester grades are filed? How about allowing academic probation for one semester instead of two? These changes would discourage the vacationing student.

How about charging tuition for all part-time, unemployed students? How about those who attend courses for enrichment sharing in the actual cost of the course?. . .

Thoughtless Mob Will Pounce On Ford, Too

The shocking behavior of those people who played with firecrackers and danced on Pennsylvania Avenue after President Nixon's speech announcing his resignation should not surprise those of us whose sense of decency would not allow us to display such extremely bad taste, even if we shared their political views — which I do not.

They have always been around: they were the kind who mocked and spat on Jesus Christ and cast lots for His clothing as He hung on the cross; they were the kind who perpetrated the Salem witch trials. Ignorance is their forte and stupidity their bedfellow.

They hate greatness — probably because they are so small, intellectually and emotionally — and are never happier than when they can (in a group and seldom singly) step in and give a downed fighter another kick.

One thing is certain: they will be in there, pitching, the moment Gerald Ford makes a mistake — as he will, being only human.

Faith Is Restored As Truth Emerges

After reading Joan Smith's letter in the I-J (Aug. 7) in response to my letter of 7-31-74, I was going to sit down and answer each question posed to me. However, I think all I need ask her is I presume she wrote the letter prior to "her president's" startling revelations of Aug. 5.

As for your sympathy for my "situation" I have found the two cheapest commodities are sympathy and apathy.

It's one thing to wave the flag, "my countryman," but it's no excuse for being deaf, dumb, and blind to what's going on around you.

You're absolutely right, Joan Smith, my upset stomach has disappeared and I'm thankful. . . for this day of all days the truth is finally emerging! My faith has been restored.

Petaluma Sewer Charge Criticized

There is no law that says the city must furnish sewer service to those outside the city limits. So speaks the broken record at city hall. If ignorance is bliss, stupidity must be very painful.

Those of us who can read and can also find our way to the polls know that the people of the city pay a small part of the direct cost of the city sewer and plant. The rest of the bill is picked up by our Uncle Sam.

Ridicule of the high court's decisions by the city council and staff, collectively or individually, is out of order at all times. Yet city hall persistently and stubbornly tries to get around the court's order by tactlessly introducing a new ordinance which would demand more money from the people outside the city than the recently outlawed ordinance did. This is certainly nothing to be proud of.

An inconsiderate city manager who habitually places controversial issues at the end of the agenda should be highly reprimanded. (Some of us go to work early). . .

Isn't it interesting to note that some of these citizens pay less in total city taxes than members of Petalumans Unincorporated are requested to pay for sewer service alone?

Return To Economics Responsibility Of All

Labor unions now ask for a 19 per cent wage increase, justifying their demand on the increase in cost of living. What will they ask for tomorrow, when the dollar devaluates at the rate of 50 per cent per week?

Since the early '30s our educators have been teaching astronomics in place of economics. Under their theory a little inflation is good, and debt spending by Federal and local governments creates jobs and the general improvement of our society. As the debt grows larger, you don't worry because there is always more and more money in circulation, and the debts always stay in proportion to our ever cheaper dollar. So goes the spiral of astronomics. Unfortunately we are learning that a "little inflation" is like a dop addict taking "a little" heroin.

We should tell our teachers, asking for a 15 per cent wage increase, that this is no longer the fad and to get back to economics. Labor unions instead of asking for more and more, should spend their time, much more profitably, fighting increases in costs of spending. We have seen the success of housewives putting the damper on the price of beef by refusing to buy any more than the absolute minimum needs. This action puts back the value in the dollar. Our federal and local governments should postpone all new projects and programs that aren't absolutely necessary. No raises should be given to anyone, unless the intended recipients can show they are going to produce more than in the past for the same dollars expended. This holds the purchasing power of the dollar and goes under the old theory of economics. Only when we return to this sytem will we beat inflation. It is the responsibility of all of us and not a particular segment of our society.

Hutchinson Tower Enchanting Landmark

In looking over some old I-J's after returning from a recent vacation, I ran across your article on the Hutchinson Quarry tower. My wife and I have been enchanted with this structure ever since moving to Marin County. In fact, we have a magnificent colored pen-and-ink drawing of it crafted by a close friend who is an artist.

We would like to add our names to what we hope is a long list of people interested in preserving this charming piece of Americana.

Nations Participate In U.N. But Refuse To Pay Dues

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The countries of the world point to their participation in the United Nations to suggest their own humanitarian impulses.

But when it comes to paying the U.N. assessed dues, it is another matter.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' fiscal watchdog agency, recently undertook a review of United Nations' finances and U.S. efforts to help correct the situation.

It found that as of the end of last year, 92 nations owed more than $204 million in assessments, $132 million for the world organization's peacekeeping activities in the Middle East and the Congo in the mid1950s and early 1960s.

PEACEKEEPING, OF COURSE, has been the U.N. activity most people have pinned their hopes on.

But when the organization levied the assessments, several nations questioned their legality and, despite a ruling in the U.N.'s favor by the International Court of Justice, continued to refuse to pay.

In addition, another $72 million in outstanding dues relates to late payments and withholdings by members for some regular budget items to which they object.

Attempts to solve the problem from within the U.N. organization date to 1965, but have not yet been successful and, according to the GAO, "the majority of the membership has ignored the charter provision regarding their collective responsibility for the U.N. obligation."

IN ITS REPORT, which was focused primarily on the U.S. role in efforts to alleviate the United Nations' financial problems, the GAO generally praised the U.S. efforts carried out through the State Department.

But the two agencies did disagree over the use of the collective responsibility clause of the U.N. charter in relation to financial difficulties.

"Inasmuch as a political accommodation will probably be required to settle the withholding controversy," the GAO said, "we recommend that the secretary of state, in any such accommodation, call upon all United Nations members to reaffirm the basic principle of collective responsibility."

But as long ago as 1965, the United States expressed its own reservation to the collective responsibility clause.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT has been pushing internal budgeting improvements, and, independently of the GAO, been pushing for reform at the United Nations.

But, as both the GAO and State agreed, unless the principle of collective financial responsibility is honored, the United Nations' survival "as a fiscally viable organization is seriously prejudiced."

Latest Khadafy Turnabout Aligns Libya With USSR

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the kaleidoscopic events of the Middle East, none has turned more dizzily than the affairs of Libya since the takeover by revolutionary young officers led by Col. Moammar Khadafy.

Since September, 1969, Khadafy has proclaimed unity with, among others, Egypt, the Sudan, Tunisia, Malta and Uganda.

Best publicized of these love affairs was the proclamation of unity with Egypt announced in a joint communique on Aug. 2, 1972. It declared that Khadafy and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had agreed on the union of their two countries.

YET WHAT DID WE HEAR on Aug. 7, 1974, two years later almost to the day?

Sadat is accusing his erstwhile friend of plotting to blow up the presidential retreat in Mersa Matruh on the Mediterranean, of plotting to kill a prominent Egyptian journalist and of demanding return of French-built Libyan Mirage jet fighter bombers stationed in Egypt.

A stiff note from Sadat to Khadafy noted the seeming close coordination between plans to blow up the Mersa Matruh guest house with word circulated by Libyan information sources that a coup might be expected in Egypt on July 23.

AS EGYPT HAS SWUNG away from both Libya and the Soviet Union toward closer ties with the United States, Libya and the Soviets have moved closer together despite bitter ideological differences. Simultaneously, Khadafy's accusations against the United States have grown more shrill.

How long this new romance will last is a logical matter for speculation.

Khadafy frequently has annoyed Moscow with his denunciations of Soviet policies in the Middle East and of many Marxists.

He supported Sudanese President Jaffar Nimeiry against an abortive Communist coup in the Sudan and condemned the Soviet Union as a "colonialist power" for its support of India against Pakistan in the Bangladesh war. As a show of disapproval he recalled his ambassador to Baghdad after signing of the Iraq treaty of friendship with Moscow.

Despite these barbs there was good reason for Moscow's enthusiastic response to Khadafy's unexpected overtures.

LONG BEFORE MOSCOW gained its first real foothold in the Middle East with the distribution of arms to the Arab nations, it had sought to make Libya a base for its operations in the Eastern Mediterranean.

After World War II the Soviets sought to become one of the occupying powers in former North African Italian colonies. Among them was Libya. That move was blocked by the western allies.

In March, 1972, the Libyans and Russians signed an economic and technical agreement which really never got off the ground.

In May of this year, on Khadafy's initiative, they tried again.

In a joint communique they pledged "every assistance" to the Palestine guerrillas. It furthered Soviet moves to retain influence in the Middle East against American initiatives. And it gave support to Khadafy's hatred of Israel.

Presumably the agreement also included undefined technical aid for Libya and perhaps some military aid in return for an increase in sale of Libyan oil to the east European Communist bloc.

Thar's Gold In Them Thar Streets Of San Francisco

(Reprinted from The Wall Street Journal)

When gold was discovered at Sutter's mill in the Sacramento valley, men deserted their families, sailors jumped ship, and even women and children left home to rush to California's gold fields. Very few '49'ers ever struck it rich, though, and even John Sutter was ruined after hordes of prospectors destroyed his property. But the gold strike quickly transformed the sleepy settlement of San Francisco into a brawling, robust city of more than 25,000.

Yet if San Francisco's streets were not exactly paved with gold, there are riches there after all — at least for those who sweep them. Because of a provision in the city charter tying street sweepers' salaries to those of construction and industry in the area, San Francisco's street sweepers will be earning $17,000 annually by next June. According to Associated Press, artists, students, laborers and housewives are among the 750 daily applicants and inquirers eager to get in on the bonanza.

We would imagine the city's 230 street sweepers are counting their blessings, content that all things come to those who wait. Meanwhile, though, it doesn't hurt any to have influential friends in city hall.

CAPITOL QUIPS

The Committee for Fairness to the President can relax now, but it should never go out of business entirely.

President Ford is counting heavily on his friendships in Congress. Remember when LBJ thought he could do that?

Before the change at the White House, there was a news report of a man walking a tight wire between two buildings. A lot of people immediately assumed it was Gerald Ford.

High-sounding organizations make elections confusing. How can we choose between one candidate's Committee for Better Government and another's Honest Citizens' League of Patriots?

Our Votes Increase Or Curb Inflation

Inflation has been our No. 1 domestic problem for quite a long time. Now that we are at last rid of Vietnam and Watergate, perhaps it will get the attention it deserves.

President Gerald Ford has served notice that it will get his attention as top priority item. And in his address to Congress on Monday night, he had some good advice for all of us: Don't vote for the big spenders.

MR. FORD, who is known as a "good party man," served notice that he considers a firm stand against increased government spending more important than party label. He said that in the upcoming congressional elections he will urge voters to support candidates, "Democrats or Republicans, conservative or liberal, who consistently vote for tough decisions to cut the cost of government, restrain federal spending, and bring inflation under control."

In saying this, he reached the heart of the problem; for we, the voters, are responsible for inflated government spending that is a primary cause of the steady shrink in the value of the dollar.

We are responsible for it because we vote into office men and women who won't make those though decisions, who instead promote special causes for the sake of votes.

THOSE SPECIAL causes always have appeal. Whether the money is for housing subsidies, open space purchase, expanded welfare benefits, handouts to the schools "to provide better education," or whatever, it is always appealing. It always has a constituency, as the politicans put it. That is why it is so tough for them to vote "no."

We are told that each program will enable the government to do something for us that we are unable to do for ourselves.

Unmentioned, however,is the fact that we are able to do less and less for ourselves because we must pay more and more for government. Unmentioned is the fact that deficit spending by the federal government causes a steady decline in the dollar's value, diminishing our savings, our real earnings — and, along with them, our ability to do things for ourselves.

ALL OF US should apply the same test that President Ford says he will apply — and not just to candidates at the federal level. Increased state and local taxes also cut into our ability to do things for ourselves.

Our incumbent candidate for Congress, John L. Burton, has a record as a big spending advocate while in the state legislature. Our incumbent state senator, Peter H. Behr, has a big spending record both as state legislator and as county supervisor. Assembly candidate Michael Wornum has a record for big spending as county supervisor.

Their opponents have not been in offices where they made the decisions on whether to spend for good causes (and votes) or to curb government spending for the sake of a stable economy. We need to put them "on the spot" to find out where they stand.

"It does no good to blame the public for spending too much when the government is spending too much," said President Ford in his address to Congress.

There is a corollary to that: It does no good to blame the government for spending too much if we keep returning to office those who promote and authorize such spending.

U.C. Regents Give Hitch Benefits Budget Denied

By EARL G. WATERS

Although regents and top management of the University of California have complained bitterly from time to time of the failures of Gov. Ronald Reagan and Finance Director Verne Orr to recognize the financial needs of the university, they have consistently acted in a manner not likely to win public sympathy for their complaints.

For instance, at their latest meeting the regents voted a 7.5 per cent salary increase for President Charles J. Hitch, although the salary increase for university employees voted by the Legislature, with the governor's approval, was only 5.4 per cent.

It is one thing to give an assistant professor earning $12,000 a year a 5.4 per cent raise to adjust for cost of living. That is only about five bucks a week after deductions. But for Hitch, whose $55,000 annual salary was already $6,000 more than that paid the governor, it means close to a $100 a week, which is more than many, paying the taxes to provide the salary, earn.

THOSE FAMILIAR with government know that the inequity doesn't stop with Hitch. Having raised his salary, it can be expected that similar raises, in excess of those granted the rank and file professors who do the primary job in education, will be accorded the rest of the university top brass.

These things might not be so much of an irritant to the public if everyone's salaries were keeping pace with inflation. It seems everyone is aware that this is not the case excepting those at the highest levels in the educational system.

Hitch and the regents constantly plead the need for more tax dollars to run the university. And each year the Legislature appropriates increasing amounts of tax dollars.

And it may be that the students are getting shorted in some areas of educational needs.

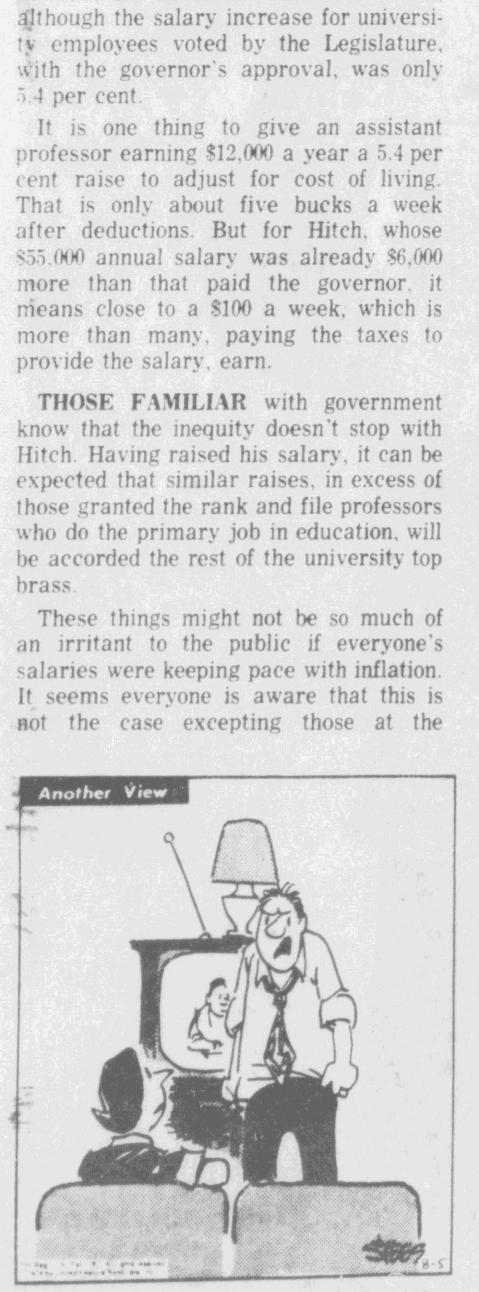
Still, when the university has, in addition to the half billion tax dollars annually appropriated by the Legislature, funds from endowments, grants and other sources nearly equal to those given by the state, the needs become a little difficult to understand.

THEY GO BEYOND understanding when the regents not only pass out salary raises to a privileged few, in excess of those given to all other employees, but divert endowment funds to bestow huge fringe benefits upon that chosen few after the Legislature had denied them.

For it was at that same meeting that the regents voted to use endowment funds to furnish Hitch and the chancellors free housing, servants and entertainment funds which had been slashed from the budget by the Legislature.

The question raised by this action is, what are the students to be deprived of by this diversion of endowment money? And, if it was not being used, why couldn't it have been earmarked for some of the things which the regents and Hitch are representing to the governor and the Legislature can't be done for the students because of a lack of funds?

The only conclusion to be drawn is that as far as Hitch and the regents are concerned, the top officials are not to be deprived anything, even though it means the educational needs of the students must be sacrificed.



"And now for my instant analysis of the world's news today."

Dippers Into Public Till Best Rewarded

With regard to the "Sacramento Scene — High-Pay Legislature," it has become a matter of survival and severance, not of the free, but of those in power.

If things were to go on as they have in the past, inflation, bust, and depression, one would see who was the best rewarded, those paid out of public treasuries, dippers, double dippers, and triple dippers: knights around the armored table.

We are threatened, and it is hell to be poor!

College Needs To Cut Down On Expenses

It was shocking to read that the College of Marin is going to require a tax hike of 3 cents per $100 assessed valuation over and above the enormous raise in the 1974 reappraisal of property by our county assessor. Much of Mill Valley property has been reappraised upward 40 per cent and more.

The result of this one item means that, to this taxpayer, the cost of the community college will increase by 65 per cent over last year — in actual dollars, $71.83 more per year.

It is time to tighten the requirements for students at the College of Marin. How about fulltime students being required to take a minimum of 15 units with grade accomplishments of gentlemenly C's? How about doing away with the munificent policy of allowing students to drop a course two weeks after the mid-semester grades are filed? How about allowing academic probation for one semester instead of two? These changes would discourage the vacationing student.

How about charging tuition for all part-time, unemployed students? How about those who attend courses for enrichment sharing in the actual cost of the course?. . .

Thoughtless Mob Will Pounce On Ford, Too

The shocking behavior of those people who played with firecrackers and danced on Pennsylvania Avenue after President Nixon's speech announcing his resignation should not surprise those of us whose sense of decency would not allow us to display such extremely bad taste, even if we shared their political views — which I do not.

They have always been around: they were the kind who mocked and spat on Jesus Christ and cast lots for His clothing as He hung on the cross; they were the kind who perpetrated the Salem witch trials. Ignorance is their forte and stupidity their bedfellow.

They hate greatness — probably because they are so small, intellectually and emotionally — and are never happier than when they can (in a group and seldom singly) step in and give a downed fighter another kick.

One thing is certain: they will be in there, pitching, the moment Gerald Ford makes a mistake — as he will, being only human.

Faith Is Restored As Truth Emerges

After reading Joan Smith's letter in the I-J (Aug. 7) in response to my letter of 7-31-74, I was going to sit down and answer each question posed to me. However, I think all I need ask her is I presume she wrote the letter prior to "her president's" startling revelations of Aug. 5.

As for your sympathy for my "situation" I have found the two cheapest commodities are sympathy and apathy.

It's one thing to wave the flag, "my countryman," but it's no excuse for being deaf, dumb, and blind to what's going on around you.

You're absolutely right, Joan Smith, my upset stomach has disappeared and I'm thankful. . . for this day of all days the truth is finally emerging! My faith has been restored.

Petaluma Sewer Charge Criticized

There is no law that says the city must furnish sewer service to those outside the city limits. So speaks the broken record at city hall. If ignorance is bliss, stupidity must be very painful.

Those of us who can read and can also find our way to the polls know that the people of the city pay a small part of the direct cost of the city sewer and plant. The rest of the bill is picked up by our Uncle Sam.

Ridicule of the high court's decisions by the city council and staff, collectively or individually, is out of order at all times. Yet city hall persistently and stubbornly tries to get around the court's order by tactlessly introducing a new ordinance which would demand more money from the people outside the city than the recently outlawed ordinance did. This is certainly nothing to be proud of.

An inconsiderate city manager who habitually places controversial issues at the end of the agenda should be highly reprimanded. (Some of us go to work early). . .

Isn't it interesting to note that some of these citizens pay less in total city taxes than members of Petalumans Unincorporated are requested to pay for sewer service alone?

Return To Economics Responsibility Of All

Labor unions now ask for a 19 per cent wage increase, justifying their demand on the increase in cost of living. What will they ask for tomorrow, when the dollar devaluates at the rate of 50 per cent per week?

Since the early '30s our educators have been teaching astronomics in place of economics. Under their theory a little inflation is good, and debt spending by Federal and local governments creates jobs and the general improvement of our society. As the debt grows larger, you don't worry because there is always more and more money in circulation, and the debts always stay in proportion to our ever cheaper dollar. So goes the spiral of astronomics. Unfortunately we are learning that a "little inflation" is like a dop addict taking "a little" heroin.

We should tell our teachers, asking for a 15 per cent wage increase, that this is no longer the fad and to get back to economics. Labor unions instead of asking for more and more, should spend their time, much more profitably, fighting increases in costs of spending. We have seen the success of housewives putting the damper on the price of beef by refusing to buy any more than the absolute minimum needs. This action puts back the value in the dollar. Our federal and local governments should postpone all new projects and programs that aren't absolutely necessary. No raises should be given to anyone, unless the intended recipients can show they are going to produce more than in the past for the same dollars expended. This holds the purchasing power of the dollar and goes under the old theory of economics. Only when we return to this sytem will we beat inflation. It is the responsibility of all of us and not a particular segment of our society.

Hutchinson Tower Enchanting Landmark

In looking over some old I-J's after returning from a recent vacation, I ran across your article on the Hutchinson Quarry tower. My wife and I have been enchanted with this structure ever since moving to Marin County. In fact, we have a magnificent colored pen-and-ink drawing of it crafted by a close friend who is an artist.

We would like to add our names to what we hope is a long list of people interested in preserving this charming piece of Americana.

Nations Participate In U.N. But Refuse To Pay Dues

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The countries of the world point to their participation in the United Nations to suggest their own humanitarian impulses.

But when it comes to paying the U.N. assessed dues, it is another matter.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' fiscal watchdog agency, recently undertook a review of United Nations' finances and U.S. efforts to help correct the situation.

It found that as of the end of last year, 92 nations owed more than $204 million in assessments, $132 million for the world organization's peacekeeping activities in the Middle East and the Congo in the mid1950s and early 1960s.

PEACEKEEPING, OF COURSE, has been the U.N. activity most people have pinned their hopes on.

But when the organization levied the assessments, several nations questioned their legality and, despite a ruling in the U.N.'s favor by the International Court of Justice, continued to refuse to pay.

In addition, another $72 million in outstanding dues relates to late payments and w thholdings by members for some regular budget items to which they object.

Attempts to solve the problem from within the U.N. organization date to 1965, but have not yet been successful and, according to the GAO, "the majority of the membership has ignored the charter provision regarding their collective responsibility for the U.N. obligation."

IN ITS REPORT, which was focused primarily on the U.S. role in efforts to alleviate the United Nations' financial problems, the GAO generally praised the U.S. efforts carried out through the State Department.

But the two agencies did disagree over the use of the collective responsibility clause of the U.N. charter in relation to financial difficulties.

"Inasmuch as a political accommodation will probably be required to settle the withholding controversy," the GAO said, "we recommend that the secretary of state, in any such accommodation, call upon all United Nations members to reaffirm the basic principle of collective responsibility."

But as long ago as 1965, the United States expressed its own reservation to the collective responsibility clause.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT has been pushing internal budgeting improvements, and, independently of the GAO, been pushing for reform at the United Nations.

But, as both the GAO and State agreed, unless the principle of collective financial responsibility is honored, the United Nations' survival "as a fiscally viable organization is seriously prejudiced."

Latest Khadafy Turnabout Aligns Libya With USSR

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the kaleidoscopic events of the Middle East, none has turned more dizzily than the affairs of Libya since the takeover by revolutionary young officers led by Col. Moammar Khadafy.

Since September, 1969, Khadafy has proclaimed unity with, among others, Egypt, the Sudan, Tunisia, Malta and Uganda.

Best publicized of these love affairs was the proclamation of unity with Egypt announced in a joint communique on Aug. 2, 1972. It declared that Khadafy and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had agreed on the union of their two countries.

YET WHAT DID WE HEAR on Aug. 7, 1974, two years later almost to the day?

Sadat is accusing his erstwhile friend of plotting to blow up the presidential retreat in Mersa Matruh on the Mediterranean, of plotting to kill a prominent Egyptian journalist and of demanding return of French-built Libyan Mirage jet fighter bombers stationed in Egypt.

A stiff note from Sadat to Khadafy noted the seeming close coordination between plans to blow up the Mersa Matruh guest house with word circulated by Libyan information sources that a coup might be expected in Egypt on July 23.

AS EGYPT HAS SWUNG away from both Libya and the Soviet Union toward closer ties with the United States, Libya and the Soviets have moved closer together despite bitter ideological differences. Simultaneously, Khadafy's accusations against the United States have grown more shrill.

How long this new romance will last is a logical matter for speculation.

Khadafy frequently has annoyed Moscow with his denunciations of Soviet policies in the Middle East and of many Marxists.

He supported Sudanese President Jaffar Nimeiry against an abortive Communist coup in the Sudan and condemned the Soviet Union as a "colonialist power" for its support of India against Pakistan in the Bangladesh war. As a show of disapproval he recalled his ambassador to Baghdad after signing of the Iraq treaty of friendship with Moscow.

Despite these barbs there was good reason for Moscow's enthusiastic response to Khadafy's unexpected overtures.

LONG BEFORE MOSCOW gained its first real foothold in the Middle East with the distribution of arms to the Arab nations, it had sought to make Libya a base for its operations in the Eastern Mediterranean.

After World War II the Soviets sought to become one of the occupying powers in former North African Italian colonies. Among them was Libya. That move was blocked by the western allies.

In March, 1972, the Libyans and Russians signed an economic and technical agreement which really never got off the ground.

In May of this year, on Khadafy's initiative, they tried again.

In a joint communique they pledged "every assistance" to the Palestine guerrillas. It furthered Soviet moves to retain influence in the Middle East against American initiatives. And it gave support to Khadafy's hatred of Israel.

Presumably the agreement also included undefined technical aid for Libya and perhaps some military aid in return for an increase in sale of Libyan oil to the east European Communist bloc.

Thar's Gold In Them Thar Streets Of San Francisco

(Reprinted from The Wall Street Journal)

When gold was discovered at Sutter's mill in the Sacramento valley, men deserted their families, sailors jumped ship, and even women and children left home to rush to California's gold fields. Very few '49'ers ever struck it rich, though, and even John Sutter was ruined after hordes of prospectors destroyed his property. But the gold strike quickly transformed the sleepy settlement of San Francisco into a brawling, robust city of more than 25,000.

Yet if San Francisco's streets were not exactly paved with gold, there are riches there after all — at least for those who sweep them. Because of a provision in the city charter tying street sweepers' salaries to those of construction and industry in the area, San Francisco's street sweepers will be earning $17,000 annually by next June. According to Associated Press, artists, students, laborers and housewives are among the 750 daily applicants and inquirers eager to get in on the bonanza.

We would imagine the city's 230 street sweepers are counting their blessings, content that all things come to those who wait. Meanwhile, though, it doesn't hurt any to have influential friends in city hall.

Ford Assures Continuation Of Gastronomical Detente

One of Gerald Ford's first acts as president was to ask Paul Delisle to stay on as maitre d' of the Sans Souci Restaurant. As most people know, all the important government decisions are made at lunch time at the Sans Souci, and the president felt it was essential to an orderly transition of government that no personnel changes should take place at the restaurant.

A White House aide told me: "We feel that Paul will serve us with the same loyalty that he served previous administrations. The whole world is watching what we do, and I can't think of a better way of instilling confidence than Paul remaining in this key post in government."

MANY AMBASSADORS who eat at the Sans Souci expressed delight at the news that the president asked Paul to stay on. "We don't know President Ford," one told me, "but we do know Paul and we can deal with him. I have already cabled my government that Mr. Delisle will keep his maitre d' post, and despite the changeover in government, our country can still be assured of a table."

Lawyers and high officials of the media were also pleased that Paul would stay on. One leading pundit said: "In this grave hour of crisis the country needs continuity. By asking Paul to keep his position Mr. Ford is saying, 'No matter what happens America will survive.' "

As soon as the announcement was made I went over to see Paul to congratulate him on the appointment.

He read a statement. "I am proud and humble that the White House would ask me to remain in office. I promise to see that nothing but the prices will change at the Sans Souci. Despite the anguish of the past year and the shock that everyone has undergone, we must never forget government officials still have to eat. We have to forget the past and look to the future. The Sans Souci stands ready to face the challenge. I will now take questions."

"PAUL, IT SEEMS to me your major problem is going to be to take care of President Ford's aides who work at the White House. How will you be able to do this?"

"It will be hard at first because I won't know who they are. Unless they make the reservation in the name of the White House, I may make a mistake and turn them away, but as time goes on I will know where the power is and adjust my reservation list accordingly."

"But can you handle all this new business?"

"I believe I can. Many of the former Nixon aides are no longer in Washington, for one reason or another, so their tables will be filled by the new regime."

"Will you still accept reservations from former Nixon people who have not been sent away?"

"Of course. They may have to wait until the present White House staff is fed, but as long as I am maitre d' anyone who worked in the White House and can still afford it will be welcome. I still have customers from the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, although they no longer have decision-making powers, they get the same food as everybody else."

"ONE LAST question. Some of the plotting of Watergate and the coverup took place at the Sans Souci. Did the FBI ever question you about what you knew?"

"Yes, but I couldn't give them much help. Every time they asked me about someone I always replied, 'That wasn't my table.' "

Nixon Phones Ford To Laud His Speech

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Ford telephoned former President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday night to thank him for a message of congratulations on Ford's address to Congress, it was disclosed yesterday.

It was their first chat since Nixon resigned last Friday and flew to his San Clemente home while Ford was being sworn in to succeed him.

Jerry terHorst, Ford's press secretary, said in Washington that Ford made the telephone call to Nixon from his home in Alexandria, Va., and that the conversation lasted more than 15 minutes.

The former pesident watched the Ford address Monday night on television and afterwards sent a message of congratulations to him.

Nixon has not appeared publicly since he came Friday to what formerly was known as the Western White House. One change that has occurred is that Nixon has lost his former private beach to surfers.

Labor Relations Committee Has A New Chairman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy yesterday named Assemblyman Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, chairman of the labor relations committee.

Greene, a black, replaced McCarthy as head of the Assembly committee.

"In Bill Greene the legisnture has a man sensitive to the needs of the working man," McCarthy said. "He is also a man who can and will, with experience, move to solve the growing labor problems of minorities and women."

Greene was a key vote in McCarthy's speakership fight with Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., a San Francisco black Democrat.

Beef Prices Remain Below Last Year

DENVER (UPI) — Retail beef prices rose an average of 11 cents a pound in 19 American cities in the past month but were still below the levels of a year ago, the American National Cattlemen's Association reports.

Ground beef and chuck roast prices rose six to eight cents a pound and steak prices advanced nine to 15 cents a pound during the month, ANCA President Gordon van Vleck said. Van Vleck said the recent drought and factors hanging over from last year's price controls have caused the rise in prices of beef cattle. The drop in corn production probably will send prices still higher, he said.

I still have customers from the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, although they no longer have decision-making powers, they get the same food as everybody else."

"ONE LAST question. Some of the plotting of Watergate and the coverup took place at the Sans Souci. Did the FBI ever question you about what you knew?"

"Yes, but I couldn't give them much help. Every time they asked me about someone I always replied, 'That wasn't my table.' "

Nixon Phones Ford To Laud His Speech

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Ford telephoned former President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday night to thank him for a message of congratulations on Ford's address to Congress, it was disclosed yesterday.

It was their first chat since Nixon resigned last Friday and flew to his San Clemente home while Ford was being sworn in to succeed him.

Jerry terHorst, Ford's press secretary, said in Washington that Ford made the telephone call to Nixon from his home in Alexandria, Va., and that the conversation lasted more than 15 minutes.

The former pesident watched the Ford address Monday night on television and afterwards sent a message of congratulations to him.

Nixon has not appeared publicly since he came Friday to what formerly was known as the Western White House. One change that has occurred is that Nixon has lost his former private beach to surfers.

Labor Relations Committee Has A New Chairman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy yesterday named Assemblyman Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, chairman of the labor relations committee.

Greene, a black, replaced McCarthy as head of the Assembly committee.

"In Bill Greene the legisnture has a man sensitive to the needs of the working man," McCarthy said. "He is also a man who can and will, with experience, move to solve the growing labor problems of minorities and women."

Greene was a key vote in McCarthy's speakership fight with Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., a San Francisco black Democrat.

Beef Prices Remain Below Last Year

DENVER (UPI) — Retail beef prices rose an average of 11 cents a pound in 19 American cities in the past month but were still below the levels of a year ago, the American National Cattlemen's Association reports.

Ground beef and chuck roast prices rose six to eight cents a pound and steak prices advanced nine to 15 cents a pound during the month, ANCA President Gordon van Vleck said. Van Vleck said the recent drought and factors hanging over from last year's price controls have caused the rise in prices of beef cattle. The drop in corn production probably will send prices still higher, he said.

11 Are Killed In Illinois, Texas Fires

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Fires killed seven persons in a farmhouse in rural Illinois today and four persons in a frame boarding house at Fort Worth, Tex.

Five of the victims at a twostory wooden farmhouse near Flanagan, Ill., were children, sheriff's officers said.

Coroner Keith Von Qualen identified the dead as Michael Kovacievich, 26, his wife Gloria, son David, 2, daughter Kimberly, 7 weeks, three cousins of the Kovacievich family, Michael Koepke, 14, his brother Mark, 11, both of New Lenox, Ill., and Timothy Gotch, 11, of Rome, Ill.

The victims in Texas, all middle-aged or elderly men, were not immediately identified.

Yukon Indians Coin Names For Settlers

WHITE HORSE, Y.T. (UPI) — In the Chinook language the word 'chee' means new or fresh and the word 'chako' means to come. Thus, the word cheechako was applied to newcomers in the Yukon at the time of the Klondike gold rush of 1898.

It was generally agreed that a cheechako who had seen the winter ice come and go on the Yukon River was entitled to be called a sourdough, or veteran of the North Country.

Haig Will Remain As Ford Aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided to keep Alexander M. Haig as White House chief of staff. The new President also asked all holdover Nixon Cabinet members to remain but a close associate said it was believed about half of them would be replaced by the end of the year.

Press Secretary Jerry terHorst said yesterday Ford had asked Haig to stay on "for the duration" —meaning indefinitely —and that Haig had agreed to "stay aboard."

Sources familiar with planning in the new Ford administration said there were indications that some members of Ford's old vice presidential team who have moved to the White House were wary of Haig's power, but that Ford already had learned to rely on Haig and was comfortable with him.

One source said that the first Cabinet member expected to leave was HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger, and budget direector Roy Ash was also expected to go shortly.

The source said Ford would make replacements gradually —that he wants his own Cabinet but that no one would be summarily dismissed.

"Ford is a very compassionate man," the source said. "The President wants to avoid the appearance of bloodbath, and he would not want it to seem that he is dumping anybody."

The source said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was considered "the only indispensable member of the Cabinet."

Shepherd Will Not Fight Dismissal

By PAT ANGLE

The executive director of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency and Housing Authority said yesterday he has no plans to fight his dismissal from the housing authority post.

Wallace K. Shepherd was fired from that job Tuesday by a 4-1 vote of the authority board. He will, however, continue in the redevelopment agency post.

(Because of a technical problem, the story reporting Shepherd's firing did not appear in all copies of yesterday's Independent-Journal.)

"It was an irresponsible act," Shepherd said of his ouster. "There's no telling what's behind it. The only thing that came out at the meeting (at which he was fired) was that I was a strong administrator.

"If I was fired for doing my job, well, that's OK."

Shepherd said he feels "obligated" to the county of Marin because "I owe the county a great deal for giving me an opportunity to prove my worth."

(No formal charge has been brought against the executive director. However, board member Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. said Shepherd refused to admit that the authority board, not himself, is reponsible for making policies. He also charged that Shepherd created antagonism on the board, was an inadequate administrator and was arrogant in dealing with the authority's low-income tenants.)

Shepherd said he currently is considering several job offers from agencies engaged in housing and community development.

But he also noted he is "enthusiastic" about a proposal by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to merge the housing authority and redevelopment agency.

"One of my dreams and major objectives has been a housing and community development agency run by the county, under the authority of the board of supervisors," he said.

Supervisors already have declared their intent to assume control of both agencies and will consider the matter more fully in late September or early October.

Shepherd told the Independent-Journal he had worried that the controversy surrounding him on the housing authority board might jeopardize the planned consolidation.

"I wrote to Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere on Aug. 4 and told him I was willing to resign from the housing authority. I also told the board that I was willing to resign."

(Shepherd said it is possible that he could be a candidate for the job of director of the agency which would be formed by the merger, but added: "I really don't know about that yet.")

Shepherd said he also told Roumiguiere that he was determined to "divest myself of responsibility" for certain recent actions of the housing authority board "over which I cannot exercise any effective control."

He told the I-J the authority board has taken actions "which I consider detrimental to the authority's best interests," but declined to specify what those were.

Meanwhile a spokesman for the redevelopment agency board — which supports the executive director — said that agency plans to continue its lawsuit to block the authority's unilateral firing of Shepherd without the consent of redevelopment board members.

"Our position hasn't changed," said Chairman Collie B. Gaines.

Under a long-standing policy Shepherd served both agencies at the joint pleasure of the respective boards. The housing authority abrogated that policy last month, but the redevelopment agency claims it had no right to do so.

Shepherd has been executive director of the two agencies since December of 1970. He has worked for the housing authority since 1968.

He and his wife, Artimae, and three children live in Novato.

Sex Attack Admitted By Novatan

A Novato ex-Marine pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to raping a 15-year-old Inverness girl and received a one-year sentence in Marin County Jail.

George Roland Call, 39, a 20-year veteran of both the Marines and the Army, also was placed on five years' probation and was ordered to take part in counseling and therapy.

Judge Charles Read Best said Call's assault on the girl, to whom he gave a ride April 27, "appeared to be an isolated incident."

Instead of taking the girl to Inverness, Call stopped his car on the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road and attacked her.

Judge Best dismissed two other counts, a second rape charge and kidnaping, against Call, a Mare Island Naval Shipyard worker.

Jones Released

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Composer Quincy Jones was released yesterday from Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where he was treated for 10 days for a urinary tract disorder, a hospital spokesman said.

SHADOWS ON THE SUBJECT

Most of us were brought up photographically on the old saw of having the sun peering over our shoulders and shining directly on the subject. If we look into our viewfinders and see heavy black shadows, we have a tendency to give up.

The fact is, shadows can help give you your very best pictures. They emphasize details and textures, add drama and impact to ordinary scenes, and become an interesting additional element in the composition of the picture.

One reason we can forget the old rule and shoot pictures in shadows is that modern films have such a wide latitude compared to the comparatively insensitive films of the past which needed all the light they could get. With today's sensitive films you can capture detail in shadows that would have seemed impenetrable a photographic generation ago.

Speaking of films, you'll find the right film for your particular needs when you come to us. Stock up now, where you always find everything photographic.

MEETS MAYORS — President Gerald Ford (second from right at table) received a pledge yesterday that mayors would sacrifice some city programs in the fight against inflation for a voice in drafting the federal budget. Among the 14 mayors attending the meeting were San Francisco's Joseph Alioto (at Ford's right) and Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley (at Ford's left).

Weird Device Falls From The Sky

Look, up in the sky . . .It's a bird . . . it's a plane . . . it's . . no, wait, it's a sonar depth charge.

Or maybe it's a sonar sounding device, or a sonar buoy. The military isn't exactly sure.

Whatever it is, it fell into a Lagunitas yard, and the bomb disposal squad at the Presidio of San Francisco doesn't exactly know what to do with it.

At 11:45 a.m. Sunday, Paul Berensmeier of Lagunitas looked up into the sky and there it was, a three-foot cylinder with a propeller on the end, plunging to earth.

It hit the ground with a thump in a neighbor's back yard right next to the woodpile and about 25 feet from where Berensmeier was standing.

A deputy sheriff came to look at the thing and found a serial number.

After a few telephone calls, the deputy had the answer: it was a sonar depth charge apparently dropped from a Navy plane.

The Presidio bomb squad was called to take the device away, but offered no explanation of how it came to fall from the sky.

Neither could public information officers for the Sixth Army in San Francisco and the Alameda Naval Air Station.

The air station spokesman said it sounded like a sonar buoy, a nonexplosive device dropped by an airplane to detect submarines.

He allowed as how it could have been dropped by accident by a Naval Reserve plane in a flight over Marin.

The Army spokesman said members of the bomb squad aren't familiar enough with Navy equipment to tell if the gadget is a sonar depth charge or a sonar sounding device — the difference being that the former has an explosive charge and the latter does not.

If the Navy or the Coast Guard doesn't claim the device before the end of the week, bomb squad personnel will blow it up, he said.

Meanwhile, the sonar depth charge, or sounding device, or buoy, sits quietly in a bunker at the Presidio, waiting for its owner to step forward.

Ford Impresses Mayors In White House Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty mayors and governors, normally wary as alley cats let into the kitchen, went to the White House to talk to President Ford yesterday and came out purring like kittens.

"The difference in this meeting (and the past) was the difference between the sun shining and a drab day," said Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania after 15 governors of both parties met with the President.

"We were impressed with his openness and honesty," Democratic Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans told reporters on the White House lawn after Ford's separate session with a bipartisan group of mayors. "The warmth was a refreshing change over what we have had in the past."

"We feel very, very good that there is a man in the White House who is listening to the cities," said San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto after a one-hour session with Ford.

Alioto, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, led a 16-member delegation into the conference with Ford.

Alioto and Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley sat on either side of the President as they discussed the plight of the nation's cities.

"It didn't make any difference whether we were Republicans, Democrats or independents, this was a new start," Alioto said afterward.

The two meetings were more than political "stroking" sessions. By all accounts, Ford made it clear he would support the multibillion dollar general revenue sharing program the governors and mayors have come to count on to balance their budgets, and that he would work to cut red tape in the transfer of funds from Washington to the states and cities.

Ford also talked about the economy, and according to Gov. Calvin Rampton, Democrat of Utah, made it clear "he had no magic formula to turn off the spigot of double-digit inflation."

That impressed Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, chairman of the Democratic Governors' Conference: "I like the fact that he was honest about it." Anderson said bipartisan cooperation with the new President was likely "as long as he maintains this openness."

Mayor Keneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., a black Democrat, said he outlined his city's use of revenue sharing funds to reduce property taxes, and "the President said he wanted to use the Newark figures as an example of the effective use of general revenue sharing."

But everything was not rosy agreement. Democratic Mayor Abraham Beame of New York, while calling Ford's demeanor "very encouraging, very open—he wants to help," expressed concern that the President wanted cuts in federal mass transit subsidies that were far below what his city needed.

"He is not thinking in the same dollar amounts we are," Beame said.

Republican Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia said Ford "cut the cloth square," and called the meeting excellent.

Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, chairman of the GOP Governors Conferences, said he told the President his state was burdened by excessive recordkeeping under revenue sharing. "He got the message," Dunn said.

Shapp said he told Ford states had to deal with as many as 60 federal agencies on energy matters. "The President made a note of that," Shapp said. "I think that situation may change."

Phantom Cat Finally Caught

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Miss Phantom stepped into a baited trap in the city's new theater Tuesday, ending the Calico cat's lengthy career as a prowler.

Miss Phantom had lurked in the hall several months before the building was opened to the public in June.

"She was a very clever cat. You would see her outside when all the doors were locked and the next minute she would be inside," said one employee.

Miss Phantom will be put up for adoption.

First Lady To Select A Secretary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford was expected to select Nancy Howe, who used to sell White House guide books, as her personal secretary.

Mrs. Howe, of Lynchburg, Va., has been working with Mrs. Ford since last fall at the start of Gerald Ford's vice presidency. The new first lady has not yet announced the names of other staff members.

She was busy packing the family's personal belongings to move into the White House on Monday. Ford has been commuting to the White House daily from his Alexandria, Va., home.

Susan Ford, 17, was the first member of the family to finish her packing. She is going on vacation next week and won't get settled in the White House until after she returns.

Mrs. Ford is doing her own packing of the family's personal belongings. But the government movers are expected to come in to transport the major furnishings.

Weird Device Falls From The Sky

Look, up in the sky . . .It's a bird . . . it's a plane . . . it's . . no, wait, it's a sonar depth charge.

Or maybe it's a sonar sounding device, or a sonar buoy. The military isn't exactly sure.

Whatever it is, it fell into a Lagunitas yard, and the bomb disposal squad at the Presidio of San Francisco doesn't exactly know what to do with it.

At 11:45 a.m. Sunday, Paul Berensmeier of Lagunitas looked up into the sky and there it was, a three-foot cylinder with a propeller on the end, plunging to earth.

It hit the ground with a thump in a neighbor's back yard right next to the woodpile and about 25 feet from where Berensmeier was standing.

A deputy sheriff came to look at the thing and found a serial number.

After a few telephone calls, the deputy had the answer: it was a sonar depth charge apparently dropped from a Navy plane.

The Presidio bomb squad was called to take the device away, but offered no explanation of how it came to fall from the sky.

Neither could public information officers for the Sixth Army in San Francisco and the Alameda Naval Air Station.

The air station spokesman said it sounded like a sonar buoy, a nonexplosive device dropped by an airplane to detect submarines.

He allowed as how it could have been dropped by accident by a Naval Reserve plane in a flight over Marin.

The Army spokesman said members of the bomb squad aren't familiar enough with Navy equipment to tell if the gadget is a sonar depth charge or a sonar sounding device — the difference being that the former has an explosive charge and the latter does not.

If the Navy or the Coast Guard doesn't claim the device before the end of the week, bomb squad personnel will blow it up, he said.

Meanwhile, the sonar depth charge, or sounding device, or buoy, sits quietly in a bunker at the Presidio, waiting for its owner to step forward.

Ford Impresses Mayors In White House Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty mayors and governors, normally wary as alley cats let into the kitchen, went to the White House to talk to President Ford yesterday and came out purring like kittens.

"The difference in this meeting (and the past) was the difference between the sun shining and a drab day," said Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania after 15 governors of both parties met with the President.

"We were impressed with his openness and honesty," Democratic Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans told reporters on the White House lawn after Ford's separate session with a bipartisan group of mayors. "The warmth was a refreshing change over what we have had in the past."

"We feel very, very good that there is a man in the White House who is listening to the cities," said San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto after a one-hour session with Ford.

Alioto, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, led a 16-member delegation into the conference with Ford.

Alioto and Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley sat on either side of the President as they discussed the plight of the nation's cities.

"It didn't make any difference whether we were Republicans, Democrats or independents, this was a new start," Alioto said afterward.

The two meetings were more than political "stroking" sessions. By all accounts, Ford made it clear he would support the multibillion dollar general revenue sharing program the governors and mayors have come to count on to balance their budgets, and that he would work to cut red tape in the transfer of funds from Washington to the states and cities.

Ford also talked about the economy, and according to Gov. Calvin Rampton, Democrat of Utah, made it clear "he had no magic formula to turn off the spigot of double-digit inflation."

That impressed Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, chairman of the Democratic Governors' Conference: "I like the fact that he was honest about it." Anderson said bipartisan cooperation with the new President was likely "as long as he maintains this openness."

Mayor Keneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., a black Democrat, said he outlined his city's use of revenue sharing funds to reduce property taxes, and "the President said he wanted to use the Newark figures as an example of the effective use of general revenue sharing."

But everything was not rosy agreement. Democratic Mayor Abraham Beame of New York, while calling Ford's demeanor "very encouraging, very open —he wants to help," expressed concern that the President wanted cuts in federal mass transit subsidies that were far below what his city needed.

"He is not thinking in the same dollar amounts we are," Beame said.

Republican Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia said Ford "cut the cloth square," and called the meeting excellent.

Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, chairman of the GOP Governors Conferences, said he told the President his state was burdened by excessive recordkeeping under revenue sharing. "He got the message," Dunn said.

Shapp said he told Ford states had to deal with as many as 60 federal agencies on energy matters. "The President made a note of that," Shapp said. "I think that situation may change."

Milk Price Hearing Is Requested

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A resolution calling on the Reagan administration to conduct public hearings on the price of milk was approved yesterday by the Senate Rules Committee.

Consumer advocates, who sought the measure, said it could lead to evidence that state-controlled milk prices should be reduced.

But the author of the proposal (SR114), Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, acknowledged the possibility that the hearings could reveal the need for even higher milk price levels.

The measure was sent to the floor on a 3-1 vote.

It was opposed by the state Grange on grounds there already have been "many" such hearings.

"There is no indication in the foreseeable future of any reduction in these costs. In fact, costs are rising," said Grange spokesman Herman Grabow.

Consumer activists led by Roy Alper of the California Citizens Action Group had appealed directly to the Department of Food and Agriculture for the hearings, but were turned down.

A similar resolution is pending before the Assembly.

Talks Continue In Transit Strike

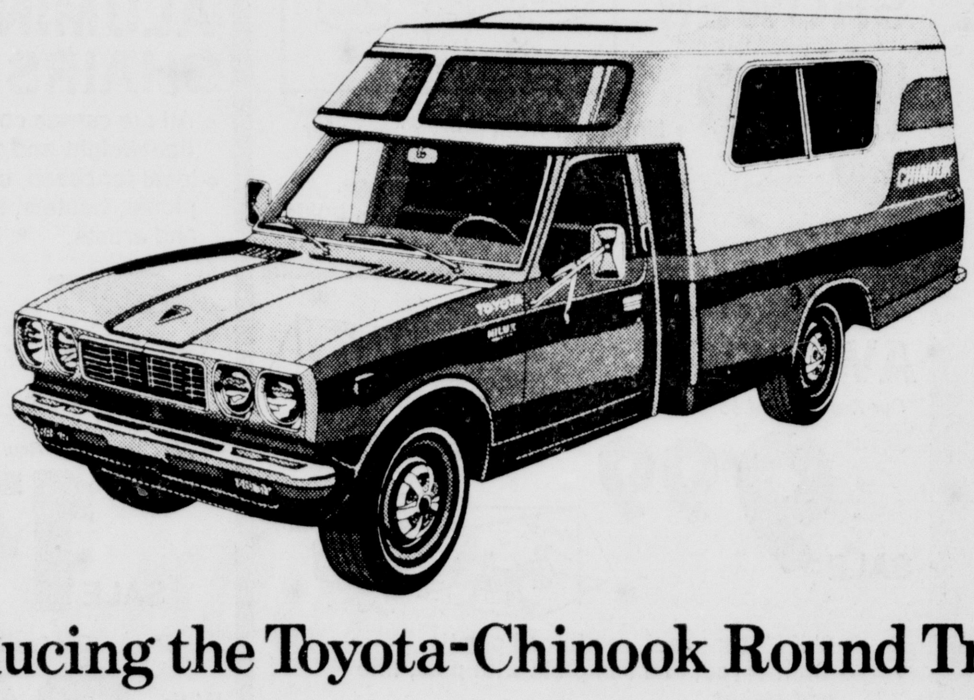
OAKLAND (UPI) — Negotiators for the AC Transit District and striking bus drivers met for nearly three hours yesterday in an attempt to end a 46-day walkout.

State Conciliator Tom Nicolopulos said he had been meeting separately with the two sides for several days in an effort to resume face-to-face talks.

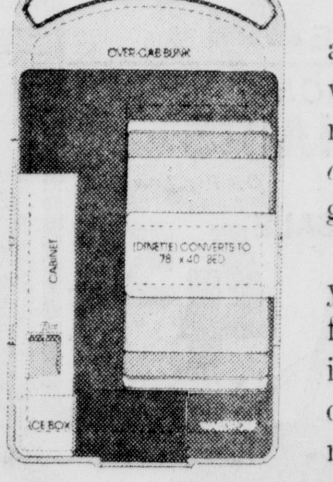
A tentative contract agreed upon by the bargaining teams has been twice rejected by rank-and-file members of Division 192 of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

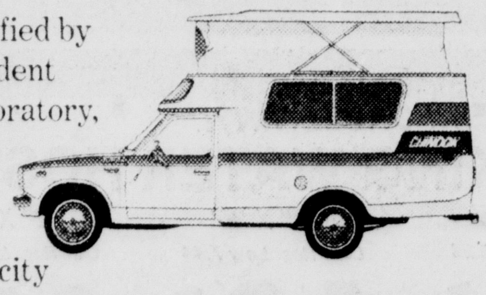
Now you can go to Santa Cruz or the Russian River or Clear Lake and get back again.

On one tank of gas.*



Introducing the Toyota-Chinook Round Tripper.





It takes you just about anywhere within a 120 mile radius and back again! On one 13.7 gal. tank of gas.

That's something you wouldn't expect from a bigger camping vehicle. But this one gets over 19 miles per gallon!

(Tests, verified by an independent testing laboratory, were conducted over mountain roads, city streets and freeways in Southern California.)

Yet, you still get the basics you expect in the bigger vehicles. Like a sink. A dinette. An ice box. Carpeting. And a couple of beds.

It's fully integrated, too. Just walk back through the cab and pop up the top for over six feet of headroom.

*Distances were measured, according to the AAA, from city hall to city hall by the most direct route. Actual gas mileage, of course, depends on personal driving habits and road conditions.

EYEING THE RECORD

Muscles taut and his Scottish kilt a swirl, backsmith Arthur Rowe of Yorkshire, England, prepares to launch a 56-pound iron ball. Rowe, the braemar champion with a throw of 33 feet, 6.5 inches, will compete at the 109th annual Scottish Gathering and Games Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 at the Santa Rosa fairgrounds. Other events will include piping and drumming exhibitions, massed pipe bands, highland dancing, drum major contests, tug of war, foot races, and other competition. Gates open at 9 a.m. Tickets are $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Milk Price Hearing Is Requested

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A resolution calling on the Reagan administration to conduct public hearings on the price of milk was approved yesterday by the Senate Rules Committee.

Consumer advocates, who sought the measure, said it could lead to evidence that state-controlled milk prices should be reduced.

But the author of the proposal (SR114), Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, acknowledged the possibility that the hearings could reveal the need for even higher milk price levels.

The measure was sent to the floor on a 3-1 vote.

It was opposed by the state Grange on grounds there already have been "many" such hearings.

"There is no indication in the foreseeable future of any reduction in these costs. In fact, costs are rising," said Grange spokesman Herman Grabow.

Consumer activists led by Roy Alper of the California Citizens Action Group had appealed directly to the Department of Food and Agriculture for the hearings, but were turned down.

A similar resolution is pending before the Assembly.

Talks Continue In Transit Strike

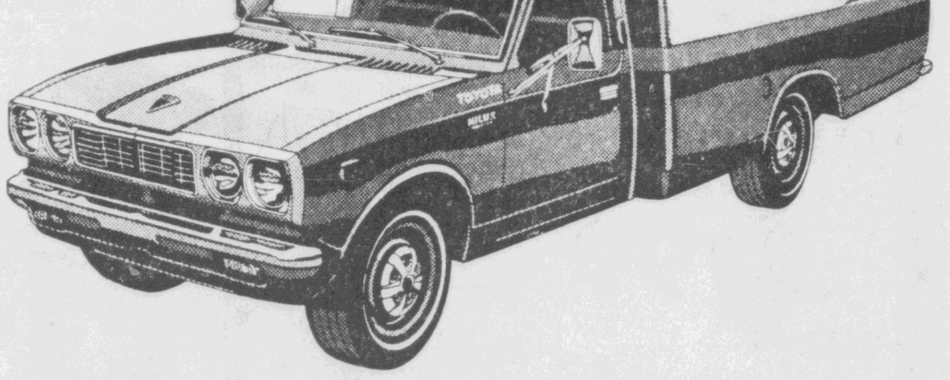
OAKLAND (UPI) — Negotiators for the AC Transit District and striking bus drivers met for nearly three hours yesterday in an attempt to end a 46-day walkout.

State Conciliator Tom Nicolopulos said he had been meeting separately with the two sides for several days in an effort to resume face-to-face talks.

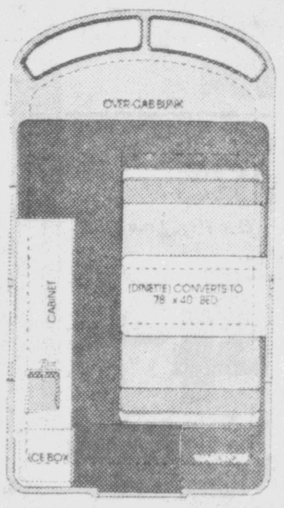
A tentative contract agreed upon by the bargaining teams has been twice rejected by rank-and-file members of Division 192 of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

Now you can go to Santa Cruz or the Russian River or Clear Lake and get back again.

On one tank of gas.*

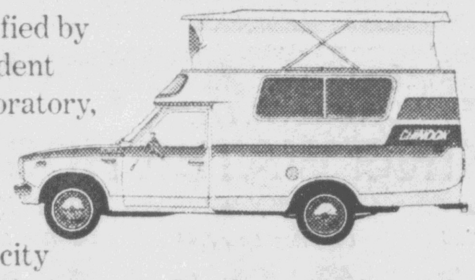


Introducing the Toyota-Chinook Round Tripper.



It takes you just about anywhere within a 120 mile radius and back again! On one 13.7 gal. tank of gas.

That's something you wouldn't expect from a bigger camping vehicle. But this one gets over 19 miles per gallon!



(Tests, verified by an independent testing laboratory, were conducted over mountain roads, city streets and freeways in Southern California.)

Yet, you still get the basics you expect in the bigger vehicles. Like a sink. A dinette. An ice box. Carpeting. And a couple of beds.

It's fully integrated, too. Just walk back through the cab and pop up the top for over six feet of headroom.

*Distances were measured, according to the AAA, from city hall to city hall by the most direct route. Actual gas mileage, of course, depends on personal driving habits and road conditions.

Fashion Experts Say Miniskirt Is Dead

By GAY PAULEY
By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The miniskirt is dead, say many fashion experts in Paris, Rome, London and New York. But, devotees are fighting back.

The mini's epitaph seemed to be written in London, where the short, short skirt originated 10 years ago, when the C and A group of clothing stores, which sold 18,000 minis a day at the height of the fashion, said the style was finished.

"NO WAY," said a typical male, Mike Timko, 20, in San Francisco.

"I don't believe hemlines will go down," said Sharon Alwart, 30, of Appleton, Wis., a secretary visiting New York. "Too many American women are too free in their ideas. They'll wear what they like. American women are more liberated than other women."

Lucille Richards, a clothing store owner in New York, said she doubted the longer skirts would be popular because they are "just not a flattering length for most women. They're ugly."

IN U.S. CITIES and resorts, the mini seemed very much alive, at least for the summer. It may be the last gasp.

This year's fall and winter collections from Paris, Rome and New York definitely drop the hemlines below the knee. UPI Correspondent Aline Mosby in Paris reported that French girls hardly ever wear minis now, although Scandinavian and German girls do.

"I haven't been able to sell a mini in over a year," said the operator of a Chicago women's apparel shop which caters to women from 18 to 85.

"THE LENGTH now is right around the knees. I bought some calf-length midcalf for fashion items only, but I expect they will be shortened to the knee before they sell."

"I always have liked the short look," said Courreges, whose hemlines rest at the top of the knee in his new collection. "It's younger."

Courreges doesn't have any minis for fall and winter but he does not include midcalf hemlines either.

"LONG SKIRTS are here but actually this doesn't mean the mini is dead," said Patricia McColl, who is based in Paris with Women's Wear Daily.

"That's old-fashioned thinking, to say that one thing is in or out. Women are liberated now and they can wear what they want to when they want to. You can hardly say a fashion is dead."

Muriel Sinclair, of Joseph Magnin Co., San Francisco, said even young people now "have definitely swung to longer skirts.

"But miniskirts are still available and are still sold (although) not the real mini-mini, short-shortie skirts of the 60's."

Edith Gillespie, a New York housewife, figured now was a bad time to tamper with lengths.

"With inflation so bad, not many women will want to invest a lot of money in a whole new set of clothes," she said.

TWO PROGRAMS

Quilting Art To Be Shared

By BETTY FROST

In the old days in Hawaii, individualized quilt designs were so jealously guarded that the women who created them would hang them on the clothesline lining side out, so they couldn't be copied.

Deborah Kakalia, Hawaiian quilting expert now visiting in Marin, finds the openness of quilting enthusiasts here remarkable. "It is so nice for everyone to share this knowledge," she said.

Mrs. Kakalia is sharing her knowledge of Hawaiian quilting at programs today and tomorrow at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. The programs — from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. — are sponsored by the Mill Valley Quilt Authority.

MARIN'S FABRIC houses are dazzling, the quilter said, with a far greater variety of cloth available than in Honolulu. She has bought many yards of cotton and polyester cotton to take home for her own use.

The process of reverse applique observed here was also new to her, since Hawaiians create their quilts by the applique process, often using only two colors. The whole business of patchwork, used by thrifty American colonists and pioneers to give bits of leftover fabric a new usefulness, is outside the Hawaiian experience, she said. When she goes home, she will experiment with designs using scraps.

Wives of missionaries began teaching island women to sew in the 1820's. The small supply of calico print scraps which the New England women had brought with them soon ran out. Bolts of bright colored cloth were available, and this may account for the unified designs where large motifs in applique are set upon a bed-size square of cotton.

"THE 'KAPA KWICKI,' (quilted blanket) uses traditional designs that relate to the Hawaiian royal family," Mrs. Kakalia explained. In creating an individualized folk art, the women used flower and lei motifs, the Spanish comb traditionally worn by the queen, a crown, the Hawaiian coat of arms, the lamp on the palace grounds, and such natural subjects as the 'maile lei,' a vine used in royal ceremonies.

The central design is outlined with quilting stitches symbolizing ocean waves, and is frequently completed with a decorative border.

The Hawaiian flag also has special significance. When the last royal ruler, Queen Liliuokalani was deposed and imprisoned in 1893, the Hawaiian flag could to longer be flown. Women of Hawaii, working in secret, created many quilts to preserve the treasured national emblem.

"It is 'kapu' (forbidden) to sit on a flag quilt, or on any of the symbols of royalty worked into a quilt," the visitor said. "However it is considered good luck for a family member to sleep under such a quilt."

AS A PERSON of Hawaiian ancestry, Mrs. Kakalia is entitled to membership in two Hawaiian societies, the Koahumanu (which means feathered cape) for women, and the Hale o Na Alii (the House of Royalty Lodge) for both men and women. These groups are dedicated to preserving the old customs.

At home, she is a teacher of quilting and also designs and makes quilts for clients. Her skills are all the more remarkable, since she taught herself to quilt after she was 40 years old.

"Many of my friends had inherited quilts," she revealed, "but I knew I would have to make my own heirlooms."

Since it is traditional for each member of the family to be given a personalized quilt, and Mrs. Kakalia has seven children and 20 grandchildren, she is continually working on those heirlooms.

SHE HOPES her Marin friends will begin with the "ulu" or breadfruit design. The breadfruit is a sign of progress, and means, "if you make one quilt, you will make another," according to island lore.

The question Mrs. Kakalia is most frequently asked here is, "Why do you need quilts in Hawaii where the weather is so warm?"

"We are used to a warm temperature in the islands, and when it goes below 70 degrees, we feel the cold," is her answer.

Apparently the coverlet filled with cotton batting is just the right weight to ward off the chill from Pacific breezes and tropical rain squalls.

School For Children With High Potential

"Hands On," school for high potential children, will open Sept. 10 in Mill Valley, at the United Methodist Church.

Open house for parents interested in enrolling their children in the new school will be held Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the church. On display will be students working with computers, animals and science equipment, some of the tools to be used at Hands On.

Hands On, said one of its organizers, is a school that will be a "real hands on experience where students learn by doing." Using the "finest equipment available" and teachers with expertise in their fields, the school hopes to foster individualized thinking, said Jessie Harsham of Tiburon, president of the Board of Trustees and one of the organizers of College for Kids at the College of Marin.

The school for youngsters 5 to 9 years of age was designed especially for the high potential, intelectually gifted or very creative child, said Mrs. Harsham.

The curriculum will include "all the normal subjects that every child is required to take" in school, "but that's the beginning," she said. A student will have the opportunity at Hands On to delve deeply into a subject that really excites him, she said. "There's no strict time schedule, she continued. Students will be able to learn at their own rate through individualized teaching.

Mrs. Harsham estimates that there are 5,000 children in the county that have an IQ of at least 132," a figure by which the state defines a gifted child. "We do practically nothing for the high potential child" who can be our new leaders, she said.

Students at the new school, said Mrs. Harsham, will be taught to "live in the real world": for example, they will study the local system of justice by visiting juvenile hall and police stations, later discussing their observations.

"(If you) give kids what they want," she said, "(they can) grab and run with it."

The school is also relying on parent participation and one of the requirements is parent involvement with the school at least once a month.

Elaine Reber of Greenbrae is educational director and one of the three teachers, her specialty being computers, computer math and physical science. Chris Johnson-Lyons of Nicasio will teach biology, social science and "Surviving in Marin," a class on backpacking and exploring the county. A third teacher is yet to be selected.

Besides the teachers, a student teacher and a parent, Mrs. Harsham said guest "teachers" will come each day drawing from such fields as astronomy, gymnastics and music.

TWO PROGRAMS

Quilting Art To Be Shared

By BETTY FROST

In the old days in Hawaii, individualized quilt designs were so jealously guarded that the women who created them would hang them on the clothesline lining side out, so they couldn't be copied.

Deborah Kakalia, Hawaiian quilting expert now visiting in Marin, finds the openness of quilting enthusiasts here remarkable. "It is so nice for everyone to share this knowledge," she said.

Mrs. Kakalia is sharing her knowledge of Hawaiian quilting at programs today and tomorrow at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. The programs — from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. — are sponsored by the Mill Valley Quilt Authority.

MARIN'S FABRIC houses are dazzling, the quilter said, with a far greater variety of cloth available than in Honolulu. She has bought many yards of cotton and polyester cotton to take home for her own use.

The process of reverse applique observed here was also new to her, since Hawaiians create their quilts by the applique process, often using only two colors. The whole business of patchwork, used by thrifty American colonists and pioneers to give bits of leftover fabric a new usefulness, is outside the Hawaiian experience, she said. When she goes home, she will experiment with designs using scraps.

Wives of missionaries began teaching island women to sew in the 1820's. The small supply of calico print scraps which the New England women had brought with them soon ran out. Bolts of bright colored cloth were available, and this may account for the unified designs where large motifs in applique are set upon a bed-size square of cotton.

"THE 'KAPA KWICKI,' (quilted blanket) uses traditional designs that relate to the Hawaiian royal family," Mrs. Kakalia explained. In creating an individualized folk art, the women used flower and lei motifs, the Spanish comb traditionally worn by the queen, a crown, the Hawaiian coat of arms, the lamp on the palace grounds, and such natural subjects as the 'maile lei,' a vine used in royal ceremonies.

The central design is outlined with quilting stitches symbolizing ocean waves, and is frequently completed with a decorative border.

The Hawaiian flag also has special significance. When the last royal ruler, Queen Liliuokalani was deposed and imprisoned in 1893, the Hawaiian flag could to longer be flown. Women of Hawaii, working in secret, created many quilts to preserve the treasured national emblem.

"It is 'kapu' (forbidden) to sit on a flag quilt, or on any of the symbols of royalty worked into a quilt," the visitor said. "However it is considered good luck for a family member to sleep under such a quilt."

AS A PERSON of Hawaiian ancestry, Mrs. Kakalia is entitled to membership in two Hawaiian societies, the Koahumanu (which means feathered cape) for women, and the Hale o Na Alii (the House of Royalty Lodge) for both men and women. These groups are dedicated to preserving the old customs.

At home, she is a teacher of quilting and also designs and makes quilts for clients. Her skills are all the more remarkable, since she taught herself to quilt after she was 40 years old.

"Many of my friends had inherited quilts," she revealed, "but I knew I would have to make my own heirlooms."

Since it is traditional for each member of the family to be given a personalized quilt, and Mrs. Kakalia has seven children and 20 grandchildren, she is continually working on those heirlooms.

SHE HOPES her Marin friends will begin with the "ulu" or breadfruit design. The breadfruit is a sign of progress, and means, "if you make one quilt, you will make another," according to island lore.

The question Mrs. Kakalia is most frequently asked here is, "Why do you need quilts in Hawaii where the weather is so warm?"

"We are used to a warm temperature in the islands, and when it goes below 70 degrees, we feel the cold," is her answer.

Apparently the coverlet filled with cotton batting is just the right weight to ward off the chill from Pacific breezes and tropical rain squalls.

School For Children With High Potential

"Hands On," school for high potential children, will open Sept. 10 in Mill Valley, at the United Methodist Church.

Open house for parents interested in enrolling their children in the new school will be held Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the church. On display will be students working with computers, animals and science equipment, some of the tools to be used at Hands On.

Hands On, said one of its organizers, is a school that will be a "real hands on experience where students learn by doing." Using the "finest equipment available" and teachers with expertise in their fields, the school hopes to foster individualized thinking, said Jessie Harsham of Tiburon, president of the Board of Trustees and one of the organizers of College for Kids at the College of Marin.

The school for youngsters 5 to 9 years of age was designed especially for the high potential, intelectually gifted or very creative child, said Mrs. Harsham.

The curriculum will include "all the normal subjects that every child is required to take" in school, "but that's the beginning," she said. A student will have the opportunity at Hands On to delve deeply into a subject that really excites him, she said. "There's no strict time schedule, she continued. Students will be able to learn at their own rate through individualized teaching.

Mrs. Harsham estimates that there are 5,000 children in the county that have an IQ of at least 132," a figure by which the state defines a gifted child. "We do practically nothing for the high potential child" who can be our new leaders, she said.

Students at the new school, said Mrs. Harsham, will be taught to "live in the real world": for example, they will study the local system of justice by visiting juvenile hall and police stations, later discussing their observations.

"(If you) give kids what they want," she said, "(they can) grab and run with it."

The school is also relying on parent participation and one of the requirements is parent involvement with the school at least once a month.

Elaine Reber of Greenbrae is educational director and one of the three teachers, her specialty being computers, computer math and physical science. Chris Johnson-Lyons of Nicasio will teach biology, social science and "Surviving in Marin," a class on backpacking and exploring the county. A third teacher is yet to be selected.

Besides the teachers, a student teacher and a parent, Mrs. Harsham said guest "teachers" will come each day drawing from such fields as astronomy, gymnastics and music.

Parents Probably Overreact To Hammer Home A Lesson

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My two girlfriends and I were sleeping out in our backyard when two guys came over to see us. All we did was talk but my parents came out and discovered them there and got very upset.

They say we invited the boys over, when actually we just accidentally mentioned we were sleeping out when we saw them earlier that day.

Our parents figure they know "exactly what we were thinking" because "they were once that age." They say the boys will make up ugly rumors and our reputations will be ruined. When we just talked?

We know we should have told Mom and Dad when the guys showed up and then it would have been okay because we wouldn't have been "sneaking" as they say. What we can't understand is, if they'd let the boys visit, knowing they were there, why did they get so pushed out of shape, finding out for themselves?

Now we're restricted indefinitely, as our parents say they've lost all faith in us.

How can we get their trust back and prove we aren't "bad girls?" — INNOCENT BUT CONVICTED

I BUT C:

I think your parents may be acting more shook than they actually are to make sure you remember their number one slumber party rule: no boys allowed, especially through the back gate or over the fence!

They know you "just talked" (so did my parents when I was giving junior high school sleep-outs and somehow a boy or two always managed to find out when and where). But as chaperons for you girls, they can't take chances.

Let them know you see their side and they'll soon be trusting you again. (I doubt that they ever stopped). — SUE

DEAR IN. BUT CON.:

Ah, those junior high slumber parties. . .and the worries we chaperoning parents suffered! We knew that if other parents learned boys "had been sneaking around," we'd be blamed. . .and we also knew they'd try to jump the fence, without much argument from the girls. Not that the girls were "bad," but having your slumber party crashed was a safe and daring adventure. It gave you status with the kids.

I'll bet your mother remembers when she and her teen friends "just accidentally mentioned they were sleeping out, to a couple of guys". . .and how her folks reacted! — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I feel lost, unwanted, rejected, not needed. I never contemplated suicide before but there's a first time for everything. I guess maybe I was a big mistake.

When I was a little girl I was quiet and shy but happy. Why am I so miserable now? I was never popular with the kids and not well known by boys. I feel as if I'm invisible. I'm there but no one sees me or cares to try. They're all too busy to bother with a nobody like me. My parents say they care and they try but I still feel like an empty shell, with no personality, nothing. . .

I think I need psychiatric help but we can't afford it. What can I do? — NO ONE SPECIAL

DEAR SPECIAL:

More than anything else, you need friends! We believe you could find them if you'd join a group that specializes in helping teens. You'll find such groups in churches, youth centers, the YWCA, hobby clubs. But you must make the first move — with your parents' backing. It won't be so hard after you realize how many other kids feel invisible, too.

P.S. If you'll send us your name and address, we'll forward the mail that will surely come in answer to your letter. Our readers never let a lonely person down! — HELEN AND SUE

JAMMING — Jan Tangen, professional guitarist and guitar teacher for the past 10 years, sharpens his technique during a practice session at his San Rafael home. Tangen is the founder of Family Light Music, a new school opening in Sausalito that will offer courses in the myriad styles of contemporary music, from rock to jazz to blues and country.

Music Community Backs School

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Music: Discuss contemporary styles and Marin County has to crop up. There probably are more rock and pop musicians per square foot here than anywhere else.

So it's a wonder that none has done it before, establish the kind of music school that can provide a focus, a cultural and intellectual center, for all this energy and talent to come together. A place where musicians can feel comfortable sharing their skill, experience and ideas.

Perhaps it has been tried, but the kind of money and organizational ability required for such a project has not been there. Musicians, for the most part romantics like other artists, deal in fluff, dreams, abstractions. They push air around. Whatever self discipline and management power they possess usually is spent keeping their own act together.

So it is with a considerable degree of enthusiasm that the local pop music community is getting behind a new venture: Family Light Music School.

The physical facility itself is taking shape on Harbor Drive in Sausalito, where workmen and acoustical engineers are dividing up a former design studio into classrooms, practice rooms and offices.

Family light brochures are seemingly everywhere that a musician or aspiring musician might be found, from music stores to bars and restaurants.

What is impressive is the ambition of this effort. Promotional material lists 60 teachers. Instrumental instruction will include piano, flute, saxaphone, fiddle, violin, cello, classical harp, voice, lute, zither, dulcimer, mandolin, Indian woodwinds, percussion and, of course, guitar, including bass, pedal steel and dobro in styles ranging from rock, blues and jazz to bluegrass and country.

Pamela Polland, professionally known as singer Melba Rounds, will teach the art of performing. Frank Kofsky, with a doctorate in jazz history, will lead a course in black music history. Agent and manager Diane Sward will dissect the music business.

Also planned are courses in disc jockeying and recording techniques and even a class for roadies, those unsung heroes who transport from gig to gig the amplifiers, instruments, microphones and other gear that a modern rock band requires.

The list goes on and on. Behind all this is Jan Tangen, a 28-year-old guitarist who has been performing and teaching since his college days in Berkeley 10 years ago.

Tangen, a slight, wiry fellow with a Fu Manchu Moustache and enough nervous energy to power a set by the Rolling Stones, says the problem with most music schools is that they are, frankly, straight. Generally, they aren't the kind of places that a working musician learning his craft playing the dance club circuit, for example, can step in and teach a course, take a few himself and talk shop with other players in the same circles.

There are exceptions, Blue Bear Waltzes in San Francisco, primarily a rock and blues school, and the Ali Akbar school in Fairfax, specializing in Indian music. But the directors of these have purposely limited their scope.

Tangen's motto, inscribed meticulously with a fountain pen in the looseleaf notebook he carries to keep track of his ever mounting appointments, is that "there are no limits." He truly seems to believe it, as the array of courses in his school catalog suggests, and, more importantly, seems to infect those around him with his optimism and confidence.

Over the past year, he has arranged the financing, found a building "that felt right for a music school" and developed most of the curriculum, assisted by Ginger Lee, a former dancer who most recently sharpened her administrative and business talents marketing women's fashions.

Tangen, of San Rafael, was reared in Marin, graduating from San Rafael High School. As a boy, he was introduced to rock music through Elvis Presley, as so many his age were, and received his first guitar as a barmitzvah present.

After high school, it was off to Berkeley, where he studied history at the University of California, dabbled in radical politics and discovered the blues.

It wasn't long before he abandoned plans to become a lawyer, moved to Washington, D.C., and studied guitar under jazz great Charlie Byrd.

Since returning to the Bay Area in 1966 he has continued to refine his chops as a member of several musical groups, including a four-month stint with Sylvester and His Hot Band. Most recently, he played with a band called Change with brothers David and Jon Fromer, the latter best known as the host of "Git Box Tickle," a Bay Area television show aimed at introducing children to music through guitar playing and songs.

Jon Fromer will teach children's guitar classes at Family Light, whose faculty is expanding daily, according to Tangen. "At first," he explains, "we decided the courses and tried to find the best teachers we could. Then musicians started calling me, even before we had a building, with offers to teach this or that. The enthusiasm is overwhelming and it keeps spreading. The school name is totally appropriate. It really has become a musical family venture."

Private lessons are under way and group instruction is scheduled to begin sometime in September, when renovation of the school building is finished.

Already there are plans to open a nightclub, Family Lighthouse, which will showcase student talent, and to expand the school to include dance and other arts.

"Projects like this usually do go broke," Tangen acknowledges. "But this can't miss," he says with a confidence he credits to Erhardt Seminar Training (est). "There's so much happening, it's hard just keeping a lid on it."

Baton Twirlers Spin In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If you somehow got the idea that twirling a baton and tossing it high in the air is something that belongs in a nostalgia movie, then step into the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

The United States Twirling Association is holding its Grand National Competition here, with 3,500 twirlers from across the country, and some from Europe and Japan.

Maybe their mothers were dreaming of happier days gone by when they started these kids in the suburban twirling school. But the lithe young ladies and young men who strut and twist as they zip their silver batons through the air are putting as much enthusiasm into their work as anybody did in the good old days.

"This is the biggest meet yet," says Jack Crum, head of the association. "It's getting bigger all the time."

Crum says nobody really knows how many boys and girls are in baton twirling around the country but he said it is the biggest youth activity next to scouting.

Contestants spend months practicing, maybe six or eight hours a day, getting ready for the nationals. Then they have two minutes on the floor before the judges.

Tiffany Lee, a pretty blonde 8-year-old twirler from Indianapolis, Ind., squats on the floor in her pink spangled tights. She has a tiny silver crown on her head. She is about to get her two minutes.

Three other little girls rush up to Tiffany and hand her a vase with three carnations in it. Then each clasps her little finger in Tiffany's little finger. That's the good luck gesture among twirlers.

Is dropping the baton a tragedy for a twirler?

"It's only five-tenths of a point," says Barbara Monte De Rey, of Sacramento, Calif., the mother of twirler Maria De Rey, 7. "They are judged on the variety of their routine, the difficulty, speed, smoothness and showmanship —20 points for each."

The most disastrous event of the meet so far happened to Kira Cutler, 9, of Sacramento. She was in her final spin, her baton flying. In the last intense maneuver to catch it, Kira fell and broke an arm.

That was two points against her. She will be back next year.

FAMILY

"Herbie Rides Again" — Helen Hayes, an eccentric granny in distress, aided by an old Volkswagen in this Disney sequel to the "Love Bug." Fun for all.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Ben" — The further adventures of Ben, a highly intelligent rat adopted by a sickly young boy. Several men are slain by Ben and 4,000 trained rats finally meet their doom. May appeal to children more than adults.

"Brother Sun, Sister Moon" — A film about St. Francis of Assisi and the founding of the Franciscan Order in 1200 A.D. Picturesque and dramatically portrayed.

"Claudine" — Diahann Carroll and James Earl Jones star in romantic comedy that depicts black family life with honesty, wit and compassion. Frank dialogue and a lot of cursing.

"Cops and Robbers" — Skillful comedy of cops turned robbers. You may end up rooting for the bad guys if your morals don't get in the way.

"Play It Again Sam" — A one-joke comedy about a movie buff. Most of the humor stems from Woody Allen's constant self-deprecation. Amusing take-offs on old movies. (mature teens)

"Three Musketeers" — A spirited production of the classic story of bravery and intrigue. Very entertaining. Some sex and violence.

"T. R. Baskin" — Candice Bergen as an unhappy girl whose cynical wit doesn't disguise her dread of ultimate disappointment. A semi-comedy of little value. Some nudity. (Not for youth under 15.)

"Uptown Saturday Night" — Delightful ghetto comedy with a distinguished cast, headed by Cosby, Belafonte, Poitier and Flip Wilson. Strong visual humor. Some coarse language.

"Arnold" — Well-acted but tedious comedy rehash of old mystery formula in whicha group of greedy heirs get knocked off. Cursing, partial nudity.

"For Pete's Sake" — Barbara Streisand in a mediocre slapstick comedy. Borrowing money to help her husband she gets involved in prostitution, cattle-rustling, etc. to repay her debt. Questionable humor, black ethnic and black macabre comedy. Cursing. (Over 17)

"The Sting" — Two 1930 con-men set out to ruin a powerful Chicago racketeer. Entertaining for the mature. Cursing, violence.

"Vanishing Point" — A film as boring as it is pointless. Much sex, nudity, violence and cursing. (Over 16)

ADULTS ONLY

"Blazing Saddles" — A wildly inventive assault on every cliche in the Western movie business. A ribald, knowingly sly, bawdy comedy. Offensive language. Definitely not for children or adolescents.

"Buster & Billie" — A sordid story of a 1948 high school boy and girl. Should have been a love story but turns into a savage human drama, showing gang rape, violence, murder and nudity. (Box Office)

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles Chinatown of 1937. Good cast and costuming. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Death Wish" — Western good guys and bad guys theme. Vigilantes, violence and gun culture explored. Charles Bronson gives it popular appeal.

"The Exorcist" — A nonsensical, stomach-turning, horror tale of a 12-year-old girl possessed by the devil. For adults with strong stomachs, weak minds. All others no.

"New Centurions" — Based on the best-seller about the Los Angeles police force. Violence, nudity, crime and cursing.

Old Adobe Fiesta Set In Petaluma

The 13th annual Old Adobe Fiesta Sunday in Petaluma will offer a full day of food, games, entertainment and education and even a real, live wedding, according to Ross Smith, president of the fiesta.

The courtyard of the 140-year-old adobe building constructed by Gen. Mariano G. Vallejo will be filled with demonstrations of pioneer and Indian arts and crafts ranging from Pomo Indian basketweaving and breadmaking to silversmithing and spinning.

Throughout the day, local service clubs, youth groups and charitable organizations will man food, games and sales booths in the eucalyptus grove across Adobe Road from the landmark. Thousands of Petalumans and visitors from all over the Bay Area are expected to attend, Smith said. Both parking and admission to the fiesta will be free.

Smith gave the following timetable for the fiesta:

SATURDAY

In the evening — the time's not certain — the old sailing scow Alma will arrive from San Francisco at the Petaluma River turning basins to be moored there until Sunday evening.

SUNDAY

7 a.m. to 1 p.m. — Adobe Lions Club pancake and ham breakfast at Walnut Park, D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South. The $1.50 price will benefit Lions' service projects.

11 a.m. — Horseshoe pitching contest, eucalyptus grove, Old Adobe monument. Signups for both men and women start at 10 a.m.

11 a.m. — Eating contests, sack races and costume contest for youngsters and adults.

Noon to 4 p.m. — Demonstration of Indian and pioneer arts and crafts in courtyard of the adobe.

Noon — Traditional deep pit barbecue served by Nicasio Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, eucalyptus grove.

1 p.m. — Wedding of Michael Alexander and Diana Waggoner in the adobe courtyard, anyone dressed in 19th century costume may attend.

3 p.m. — Judging of whiskerino contest.

Thin Man Escapes From Hospital Cell

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — A 36-year-old inmate starved himself for five months until he was thin enough to slip through the bars of his cell and escape from a psychiatric hospital.

A hospital official said the man filed off a single iron bar to flee the institution where he was under observation after being convicted of 18 break-ins.

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles Chinatown of 1937. Good cast and costuming. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Death Wish" — Western good guys and bad guys theme. Vigilantes, violence and gun culture explored. Charles Bronson gives it popular appeal.

"The Exorcist" — A nonsensical, stomach-turning, horror tale of a 12-year-old girl possessed by the devil. For adults with strong stomachs, weak minds. All others no.

"New Centurions" — Based on the best-seller about the Los Angeles police force. Violence, nudity, crime and cursing.

Old Adobe Fiesta Set In Petaluma

The 13th annual Old Adobe Fiesta Sunday in Petaluma will offer a full day of food, games, entertainment and education and even a real, live wedding, according to Ross Smith, president of the fiesta.

The courtyard of the 140-year-old adobe building constructed by Gen. Mariano G. Vallejo will be filled with demonstrations of pioneer and Indian arts and crafts ranging from Pomo Indian basketweaving and breadmaking to silversmithing and spinning.

Throughout the day, local service clubs, youth groups and charitable organizations will man food, games and sales booths in the eucalyptus grove across Adobe Road from the landmark. Thousands of Petalumans and visitors from all over the Bay Area are expected to attend, Smith said. Both parking and admission to the fiesta will be free.

Smith gave the following timetable for the fiesta:

SATURDAY

In the evening — the time's not certain — the old sailing scow Alma will arrive from San Francisco at the Petaluma River turning basins to be moored there until Sunday evening.

SUNDAY

7 a.m. to 1 p.m. — Adobe Lions Club pancake and ham breakfast at Walnut Park, D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South. The $1.50 price. will benefit Lions' service projects.

1 p.m. — Wedding of Michael Alexander and Diana Waggoner in the adobe courtyard, anyone dressed in 19th century costume may attend.

3 p.m. — Judging of whiskerino contest.

Thin Man Escapes From Hospital Cell

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — A 36-year-old inmate starved himself for five months until he was thin enough to slip through the bars of his cell and escape from a psychiatric hospital.

A hospital official said the man filed off a single iron bar to flee the institution where he was under observation after being convicted of 18 break-ins.

SHORING UP A SLIPPING HILLSIDE

A bulldozer crawls over the skinned face of a crumbling hillside that has threatened to swallow the Fountain Motel, on Shoreline Highway at the entrance to Tennessee Valley. Underground water has been removed by installation of subdrains, according to the county public works department, and earthmovers are busy grading and pushing loose soil back into place. Massive movement of the bank occurred in 1970, and again last winter, forcing the motel owners to undertake the current work on repairing the slide. Some of the earth is being dumped in a nearby quarry site.

Candidate Van Camp Feels Office Is Too Partisan

The Republican candidate for California secretary of state believes the office should be made non-partisan.

It is entirely too partisan now, contends Brian R. Van Camp, who was in San Rafael this week to set up his Marin County campaign.

"Jerry (Edmund G. Brown Jr.) Brown has used the office for his own partisan political purposes," Van Camp charged. Further, he declared, he asked Brown Jr., the secretary of state, to have his own campaign expenditure statements processed by the attorney general, but Brown refused.

"He certifies his own filings, and then uses the contributor lists of other candidates in his own campaign for governor," Van Camp alleged in an interview.

Van Camp's November opponent will not be Brown, who is seeking the governorship, but March K. Fong, Chinese-American assemblyman from Oakland best known for her campaign against pay toilets.

But Van Camp contends that the secretary of state, who is in charge of California's election machinery, should be elected on a non-partisan basis, as is the superintendent of public instruction. The same proposal has been made by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

BRIAN R. VAN CAMP
Decries partisanship

Besides conducting elections, the secretary of state has charge of such things as processing filings of corporation papers. Under Brown's operation, the office's efficiency has suffered until such processing (formerly completed in a matter of days) now takes several months, Van Camp claimed. He would restore efficiency, and do it without increasing personnel, he declared.

Although born in Kansas, Van Camp has been a Sacramento resident since the age of 6. He is a graduate of University of California at Berkeley (where he was student body president) and U.C.'s Boalt Hall School of Law.

He served as a deputy in the state attorney general's office following his admission to the bar, then was attorney for the Sacramento Redevelopment Agency. He joined Governor Reagan's administration in April 1970, as assistant secretary of business and transportation, and was appointed acting secretary the following February.

In August 1971, at age 31, he was named state commissioner of corporations — the youngest person ever to hold that position in California. He resigned that office to campaign for secretary of state.

In 1973, Van Camp won the "Young Man of the Year" award of Active 20-30 International. He and his wife, Moni, have two daughters, aged 10 and 11.

Attorney Peter B. Brekhus is chairman of Van Camp's Marin campaign committee. Allan Herzog and James Dawson are in charge of finance; Gerald J. Hood, speakers' bureau, and Wendy Johnston, publicity. No Marin County headquarters is planned.

Killer Storm In Venezuela Losing Force Over Mountains

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Alma swept over northwestern Venezuela and began spending its strength against the mountain peaks today after claiming 48 lives and driving hundreds of persons from their homes.

Officials in Caracas said most of those routed from their houses lived along the eastern coast of Venezuela, where some of the smaller airports were forced to close for several hours as the storm passed.

Meteorlogical authorities in Caracas said the winds dropped to gusts during the night and that by noon the storm will have left the mainland.

Romulo Marin of the Venezuelan Air Force weather office said there were reports of damage to housing in the Guiria area. He said the roofs of some houses were torn off and some trees uprooted.

At 9 a.m. EDT the disorganized center of the storm was estimated just east of Lake Maracaibo and was moving west at 28 miles an hour.

Forty-seven of the deaths attributed to Alma occurred when an airliner crashed Wednesday on the resort island of Margarita, off the Venezuelan coast. The other victim was killed when the storm swept across the island of Trinidad with 55 m.p.h. winds.

Officials at the National Hurricane Center in Miami downgraded the storm to a tropical depression today after top sustained winds dropped to 35 m.p.h., with gusts of 45 m.p.h.

Forecasters said no change in intensity was expected during the day but warned the system might become better organized tonight as it moves off the coast of Columbia into the southwestern Caribbean.

"Gale force winds extend outward about 75 miles in the northern semicircle, but only a short distance to the south," forecasters said. "Some further loss in strength is likely as the storm moves over the mountains."

The 9 a.m. advisory warned of locally heavy rains and strong gusty winds along the coast of Venezuela and northeastern Colombia with flash flooding in the mountains.

Small craft were warned to remain in port.

Gale warnings were discontinued for the Netherlands Antilles islands of Bonaire, Curacao and Aruba, but remained in effect for the Paraguana Peninsula in Venezuela and the Guajira Peninsula in Colombia.

The storm center was passing 60 miles eastward yesterday when a Linea Aeropostal Venezolana turboprop airliner crashed into a hill on the Venezuelan island of Margarita while circling the Polamar airport, apparently unable to land due to near zero visibility.

"The only factor that could have caused it was bad weather in the region," said an airport radio operator. "Visibility was almost zero and the plane was circling the field when the accident occurred."

Alma's death toll rose to 48 when a housewife in central Trinidad was fatally slashed by a sheet of galvanized iron as her home collapsed around her. Several other persons were injured on Trinidad and damage was heavy.

Hurricane forecaster Paul Hebert in Miami said that in addition to its rapid movement, Alma's course is unusual.

It is at a very low latitude. Very few storms move along the coast like that.

"Alma is barely a tropical storm. What is unusual is that it has maintained itself at the rapid speed of 20 to 25 miles an hour. It is likely that the rapid speed has kept the storm from intensifying," Hebert said.

He said if the present course is maintained, the storm will strike the Venezuelan mountains. "It certainly won't intensify, it might weaken, it has a lot of land to cross. But it is possible for the storm center to stay over land and still have gale winds over the (Netherlands Antilles) islands."

If it continues westward beyond the Venezuelan peninsula, "it can reorganize. We have had cases where storms have done this, others fall apart," he said.

Alma is the first tropical storm since the 1974 hurricane season began June 1. It was first spotted Tuesday morning by a U.S. Navy hurricane hunter plane from Puerto Rico.

Fairfax Budget At $765,157

The Fairfax Town Council, again wrestling with a proposed budget for 1974-75, has boosted the spending program by $78,320.

The proposed budget now stands at $765,157, up from last year's $719,774. The proposed fiscal plan, merely a compilation of departmental requests, originally totaled $931,506.

The council Tuesday night cut $12,000 from various accounts in the street, police and fire departments, then added $90,320, according to Mayor Frank J. Egger.

The hike came as councilmen included in the plan funds to finance an employee wage and fringe benefit package, as well as a street overlay project, an open space plan and other matters.

Included in the hike is a $11,000 allocation to clean up a deficit in the corporation yard account due to overspending over the past two years the mayor said.

"Maybe the spending (for the corporation yard) was justified but the deficit was never brought to our attention" by former administrator Robert E. Crowe, Egger said.

Egger said the budget may require the council to boost last fiscal year's tax rate of $1.80 per $100 of assessed valuation by five cents.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall to again review the spending program, Egger said.

Fairfax Town Council Votes To Support Growth Committee

The Fairfax Town Council last night voted 4-1 to support a committee working on a growth control ordinance for the upper Ross Valley.

But it had strong reservations about creation of another "layer of bureaucracy" in a proposed residential review board for the city and unincorporated area which would include San Anselmo, Sleepy Hollow, Oak Manor and Fairfax to White's Hill. Local control rather than growth control was the issue.

Mayor Frank J. Egger, who has met with the committee, said that such a review agency would not force a town to accept a development it didn't want.

But councilman Jean Marie Mahoney, who opposed committee support, said, "I'm opposed to overlays of agencies. We all have general plans now. We do co-operate with our neighbors now. I see consolidation of Marin County as one city and I don't happen to like it."

Councilman Albert E. Gately agreed. "Growth control is probably something we will need in the future, but I don't see why we need another layer of administration. If any of it is a mandatory thing, it will get a poor reception from me." He opposed passing city authority to an area-wide review board.

Egger and councilman Priscilla C. Gray said cooperation in planning and growth control could be beneficial. A possible pooling of area services such as refuse compacting might be explored, Mrs. Gray suggested.

The council consensus was that it might approve its own growth control ordinance if a suitable proposal could be adapted from the residential review board study committee.

The Fairfax Town Council also:

Younger Balks At TV Debate

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Plans for a live televised face-to-face debate between candidates for state attorney general have been scraped because of Republican incumbent Evelle J. Younger's refusal to participate, television Station KNXT said yesterday.

The station extended invitations to candidates in statewide races offering free debate time to be carried throughout the state by CBS-TV affiliates.

Younger's opponent in the race, Democrat William A. Norris, had accepted the invitation.

Weight Loss Clinics Face Lawsuit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Medical Weight Loss, Inc., a statewide chain of weight reducing clinics, is charged with the "unlicensed practice of medicine" in a suit filed by the state Board of Medical Examiners.

"Our position is that medicine is being practiced by lay individuals," Deputy Atty. Gen. Jeff Miller of San Diego said yesterday. He has led an investigation against Medical Weight Loss, owned by Darrell P. Simpson, and another firm, the Simeon Weight Clinics Foundation.

A court hearing is scheduled Sept. 6 to determine whether Medical Weight Loss and two associate firms, Medical Weight Control and Paramedco, should be prohibited from advertising and conducting their controversial "HCG" treatments until the lawsuit is resolved.

The lawsuit, filed this week in Superior Court, is supported by a statement from Dr. Gregory Camp of Palo Alto, who managed five of Simpson's clinics in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Camp sued Simpson last June for $3 million, contending Simpson interfered with the clinics' operations.

Although born in Kansas, Van Camp has been a Sacramento resident since the age of 6. He is a graduate of University of California at Berkeley (where he was student body president) and U.C.'s Boalt Hall School of Law.

He served as a deputy in the state attorney general's office following his admission to the bar, then was attorney for the Sacramento Redevelopment Agency. He joined Governor Reagan's administration in April 1970, as assistant secretary of business and transportation, and was appointed acting secretary the following February.

In August 1971, at age 31, he was named state commissioner of corporations — the youngest person ever to hold that position in California. He resigned that office to campaign for secretary of state.

In 1973, Van Camp won the "Young Man of the Year" award of Active 20-30 International. He and his wife, Moni, have two daughters, aged 10 and 11.

Attorney Peter B. Brekhus is chairman of Van Camp's Marin campaign committee. Allan Herzog and James Dawson are in charge of finance; Gerald J. Hood, speakers' bureau, and Wendy Johnston, publicity. No Marin County headquarters is planned.

Killer Storm In Venezuela Losing Force Over Mountains

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Alma swept over northwestern Venezuela and began spending its strength against the mountain peaks today after claiming 48 lives and driving hundreds of persons from their homes.

Officials in Caracas said most of those routed from their houses lived along the eastern coast of Venezuela, where some of the smaller airports were forced to close for several hours as the storm passed.

Meteorological authorities in Caracas said the winds dropped to gusts during the night and that by noon the storm will have left the mainland.

Romulo Marin of the Venezuelan Air Force weather office said there were reports of damage to housing in the Guiria area. He said the roofs of some houses were torn off and some trees uprooted.

At 9 a.m. EDT the disorganized center of the storm was estimated just east of Lake Maracaibo and was moving west at 28 miles an hour.

Forty-seven of the deaths attributed to Alma occurred when an airliner crashed Wednesday on the resort island of Margarita, off the Venezuelan coast. The other victim was killed when the storm swept across the island of Trinidad with 55 m.p.h. winds.

Officials at the National Hurricane Center in Miami downgraded the storm to a tropical depression today after top sustained winds dropped to 35 m.p.h., with gusts of 45 m.p.h.

Forecasters said no change in intensity was expected during the day but warned the system might become better organized tonight as it moves off the coast of Columbia into the southwestern Caribbean.

"Gale force winds extend outward about 75 miles in the northern semicircle, but only a short distance to the south," forecasters said. "Some further loss in strength is likely as the storm moves over the mountains."

The 9 a.m. advisory warned of locally heavy rains and strong gusty winds along the coast of Venezuela and northeastern Colombia with flash flooding in the mountains.

Small craft were warned to remain in port.

Gale warnings were discontinued for the Netherlands Antilles islands of Bonaire, Curacao and Aruba, but remained in effect for the Paraguana Peninsula in Venezuela and the Guajira Peninsula in Colombia.

The storm center was passing 60 miles eastward yesterday when a Linea Aeropostal Venezolana turboprop airliner crashed into a hill on the Venezuelan island of Margarita while circling the Polamar airport, apparently unable to land due to near zero visibility.

"The only factor that could have caused it was bad weather in the region," said an airport radio operator. "Visibility was almost zero and the plane was circling the field when the accident occurred."

Alma's death toll rose to 48 when a housewife in central Trinidad was fatally slashed by a sheet of galvanized iron as her home collapsed around her. Several other persons were injured on Trinidad and damage was heavy.

Hurricane forecaster Paul Hebert in Miami said that in addition to its rapid movement, Alma's course is unusual.

It is at a very low latitude. Very few storms move along the coast like that.

"Alma is barely a tropical storm. What is unusual is that it has maintained itself at the rapid speed of 20 to 25 miles an hour. It is likely that the rapid speed has kept the storm from intensifying," Hebert said.

He said if the present course is maintained, the storm will strike the Venezuelan mountains. "It certainly won't intensify, it might weaken, it has a lot of land to cross. But it is possible for the storm center to stay over land and still have gale winds over the (Netherlands Antilles) islands."

If it continues westward beyond the Venezuelan peninsula, "it can reorganize. We have had cases where storms have done this, others fall apart," he said.

Alma is the first tropical storm since the 1974 hurricane season began June 1. It was first spotted Tuesday morning by a U.S. Navy hurricane hunter plane from Puerto Rico.

Closed Meeting Law Goes Before Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate moved yesterday towards eliminating another bulwark of legislative secrecy — closed meetings of two-house conference committees where the final form of bills often is shaped.

The rules committee approved on a 4-0 vote and sent to the full Senate two measures (SB2467) and (SCR149) which would assure the news media, but not the general public, access to the traditionally private sessions.

The proposals were offered by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, the dean of the Legislature.

After 34 years in the Senate, Collier said, "I've come to the conclusion it doesn't make too much difference" whether or not committees are closed.

That was a sharp turnabout for the powerful finance committee chairman, who was until recently a critic of trends to open up more of the legislative process.

Conference committees, where lawmakers thrash out the differences between Senate and Assembly versions of bills, often are held on short notice in the rear of the chambers, or sometimes blossom into lengthy closed-door sessions.

Major legislative proposals usually are negotiated and resolved in conference.

It was originally proposed by Collier that the public be allowed into all conference meetings. But it was reduced to reporters only because of concern that making accommodations for the public would consume too much legislative time.

Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, said finding a special room where the public could attend would slow legislative work, especially during the frantic last days of a session.

The only conference committee now open to the media or public is the special committee on the budget.

If Collier's measures were enacted, committees still could meet privately to discuss personnel matters and lawmakers could go behind closed doors for party caucuses.

Hypnotist Ruled Incompetent

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Night club hypnotist Ronald Dante, former husband of actress Lana Turner, has been ruled mentally incompetent, for the time being, to stand trial for attempted murder.

A superior court judge granted Dante's own request to be placed in psychiatric care for 30 days, and scheduled another comptency hearing for Sept. 16. Dante is charged with trying to hire a killer to slay a rival hypnotist, Michael Dean of La Jolla.

Committee Report: Nixon Lied and Violated Laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its final act on impeachment, the House Judiciary Committee concludes that Richard M. Nixon left the presidency for good reasons —he lied, violated laws and subverted the Constitution.

The charges are spelled out in a report the panel will submit to the full House next week, explaining the actions it took on impeachment the past 10 months, laying out the evidence supporting the three articles of impeachment it adopted and offering conclusions on guilt. Nixon, faced with the certainty that he would be impeached and removed from office, resigned last week.

"For more than two years, the President engaged in a course of conduct which involved deliberate, repeated and continued deception of the American people," the report said.

The committee members have until the end of today to submit any additional or differing views to the report, which exists only in draft form. The 193-page draft was circulated to the 38 committee members late yesterday.

Nixon violated federal laws, the report said, "by engaging in a course of conduct or plan designed to delay, impede, and obstruct the investigation of unlawful entry, on June 17, 1972, into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee; and to conceal the existence and scope of other unlawful covert activities."

That course, the report said in a conclusion justifying the 27-11 committee vote on July 27 for Article One charging obstruction of justice, "caused illegal surveillance for political purposes, and the concealment of responsibility for that surveillance, obstruction of justice, perjury, destruction of evidence —all of which are crimes."

Such conduct, the report said, was "to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice and subversive of our Constitution..."

The draft outlined the evidence supporting the abuse of powers article adopted by a 28-10 committee vote and said, "The pattern of conduct charged in Article Two constitutes a repeated and continuing misuse of the powers of the presidency..."

It added: "The abuse of a President's power poses a serious threat to the lawful and proper functioning of the government and the people's confidence in it. It was for just such presidential misconduct that the impeachment power was included in the Constitution."

So that future Congresses would have the power to carry through with the impeachment process, the report stated its case for adopting Article Three by a 21-17 vote, charging Nixon with failing to comply with committee subpoenaes.

"Unless the defiance of the committee's subpoenas under these circumstances is considered grounds for impeachment," the report said, "it is difficult to conceive of any President acknowledging that he is obligated to supply the relevant evidence necessary for Congress to exercise its constitutional responsibility in an impeachment proceeding.

"If this were to occur, the impeachment power would be drained of its vitality. Article Three, therefore, seeks to preserve the integrity of the impeachment process itself and the ability of Congress to act as the ultimate safeguard against improper presidential conduct."

The report, handiwork of special counsel John M. Doar, will be submitted to the House next week as if Nixon had not resigned and impeachment were still going on. The House had planned to take up the articles next Monday, but now there are no plans for either approval or disapproval of the report.

Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., has emphasized repeatedly that the report establish for history that the articles of impeachment were justified. "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow people will look back on how we handled this," he said.

Bill Revived To Allow Larger Trucks On Nation's Highways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to allow bigger trucks on the interstate highway system, once thought dead for this session of Congress, has been revived by the public works committees in both House and Senate.

The House committee has attached both big truck and wider bus measures to a $20.4 billion mass transit bill tentatively scheduled for debate today. The Senate Public Works Committee has agreed on a separate big truck bill.

The American Automobile Association wrote all House members, urging defeat of the section which would increase truck weights and lengths. "Available evidence indicates that large trucks pose a grave threat to the safety of all drivers," said AAA official John de Lorenzi.

Rep. William Harsha, R-Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Public Works Committee, argued that larger trucks would mean fewer trucks on the road, contributing both to safety and environmental considerations.

The House bill would increase the present maximum truck weight of 73,280 pounds to about 90,000 pounds, which would have to be spread along the axles of a truck according to a "bridge formula." Maximum axle weights would be increased from 18,000 pounds to 20,000 pounds for a single axle and from 32,000 pounds to 34,000 pounds for a tandem axle. For the first time, there would be a federal length limit of 65 feet, although states could set shorter lengths.

In addition, maximum bus width would increase from 96 inches to 102 inches.

The Senate Public Works bill would deal only with truck weights, adopting the same axle weights as the House bill but with a maximum weight of 80,000 pounds.

Harsha, House GOP Leader John Rhodes of Arizona and GOP policy committee chairman Barber Conable of New York said in a joint news conference that they supported the heavier truck weights.

The news conference was called mainly to denounce the mass transit bill as inflationary. Rhodes said he would recommend a presidential veto unless the dollar amount of the bill was not trimmed substantially. Republicans plan to offer amendments cutting the bill almost in half — to $11.2 billion.

Bill Is Signed Which Increases Congress' Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has signed a bill providing the $708 million needed to keep Congress and its agencies operating through the current fiscal year.

The Legislative Branch Appropriations Act, signed yesterday, will provide an increase of $46.9 million for Congress over the amount appropriated in fiscal year 1974.

The Senate will get a boost of $9.5 million and the House an increase of $11 million.

The increases will go for federal contributions to employe health insurance, expansion of House and Senate staffs and increased pay costs.

Governor Plans Mendocino Trip

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan will visit Round Valley Indian Reservation in Mendocino County and the Modoc County Fair in Cedarville Aug. 22, his office said yesterday.

Reagan has not visited the scenic Round Valley area since he rejected a water development plan in 1969 that proposed construction of a dam at Dos Rios on the Eel River Watershed.

If built, the dam would have flooded parts of Round Valley and the reservation. Reagan plans to meet with reservation leaders.

There's a smile on the way.

We have a very special restaurant. It's very beautiful, without sideshows. And very delicious, without bills that give you the feeling you also bought dinner for the people at the next table. Your drink is made the way you'd make it yourself. Your waitress is unusually courteous. And your steak tastes as if the chef overheard the exact way you said "medium rare." Enjoy superb steaks and beef recipes. Or fine seafoods like Medallions of Lobster en Brochette (tiny "slipper" lobster tails skewered and lightly breaded) served with mushroom buttons and drawn butter, or tender Abalone delicately sauteed in butter and crowned with toasted almonds.

Drink and dine on couches and chairs so relaxing you'll think you're dining in a comfortable living room. In fact, the only thing that may remind you that you're not in a fine home is the bill. But it's a very gentle reminder.

Belligerent Talk Dies Down

It's Time For Business At All Training Camps

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

All the belligerent talk by both striking players and coaches seems to have died down and it's business as usual in the National Football League camps.

Yesterday was the reporting date set by the NFL Players Association to begin a 14-day cooling off period in hopes of bringing about a contract settlement. And there were few problems as most camps reported a good number of veterans reporting or planning to report soon. Talks are scheduled to resume today in Washington.

Twenty-seven striking Atlanta veterans reported and Coach Norm Van Brocklin said there would be no animosity toward the striking players and the regulars would start Saturday night's pre-season game with Cincinnati in Atlanta.

"All of what has been said and done was forgotten when they walked through that door today," said Van Brocklin.

At Houston, one incident did occur as outspoken striker Fred Willis carried the ball and was met by linebacker Al Cowlings, a strike breaker who reported earlier this week. Cowlings shouted at Willis, the two came face-to-face but no punches were thrown.

The honking of car horns signaled the arrival of a caravan of Minnesota Viking veterans at their training camp at Mankato State College. Thirty veterans showed up at the same time, traveling in a long string of vehicles from Bloomington, Minn., where they had been working out daily as a unit at a high school field.

The only experienced player not in camp was all-pro tackle Alan Page, a member of the negotiating committee, who will be in Washington today.

"Now's the time to get ready for another season," said quarterback Fran Tarkenton. "It's great to get back."

Coach Bud Grant wanted no part of the strike dispute.

SID GILLMAN
No easy game

"I haven't asked anybody if they're going to leave in two weeks," He said. "I have no control over it. I'm a coach, not an owner. My job is to get the players in shape for a game."

Matson, the Bengals' player rep, said, "we've decided to forget about the whole thing and just play football. There comes a point when you've got to shrug things off. It's arrived."

Gillman, who angered Houston players by cutting seven veterans early this week, claims he's not running for most popular man in camp.

"This is not an easy game we're in," he said. "It is not calculated to win popularity contests. You try to win. (Vince) Lombardi didn't lead any popularity contest. They say they hate (Tom) Landry, but all Landry does is win. They say they hate (Don) Shula, but all Shula does is win. I don't know, what is the answer?"

Don Shula, coach of the World Champion Miami Dolphins, showed no signs of retribution toward the 12 returning veterans, but no mercy either. He put them through two sessions under the broiling Florida sun.

Larry Csonka, the Super Bowl most valuable player who will play his last season for Miami this year, showed up with a cold and made what he hopes is his final statement on jumping leagues.

"I would like just one year, for crying out loud, to play football without all the side issues like strike and contract hassles and whatever else has been going on," he said. "I'm going to play the best football I possibly can and so will Jim (Kiick) and Paul (Warfield). I'm going to play my guts out, not because I owe the Dolphins anything, but because I have the pride to want to win for myself and all the other guys with the same pride to win."

The Baltimore Colts met with club officials and decided to report as a group Sunday.

A few deals marked the players' return. The New York Giants sent defensive end Carter Campbell to Cleveland for tight end Chip Glass. Both are playing out their options and heading for the WFL next season. Cincinnati traded punter Dave Lewis to New England.

BOBBY BONDS
Making best of it

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — San Francisco outfielder Bobby Bonds is having a season most players would settle for, but not Bobby Bonds.

Bonds hit .283 last season with 39 home runs and 43 stolen bases. He just missed becoming the first player ever to hit 40 or more homers and steal 40 or more bases in a season.

This year Bonds is struggling at .264 with 17 homers and 29 stolen bases. He admits that he's frustrated.

"I'm not having the year that I want to have, but I'll make the best of it," says the 28-year-old Bonds. "I'll wind up hitting .290 with 25 or 26 homers."

Every once in awhile the real Bobby Bonds shows up at the ball park. Last night was one of those times. He led the Giants to a 6-4 win over Philadelphia.

Bonds doubled and scored in front of Gary Matthews' 14th home run to tie the Phillies 4-4 in the eighth inning. He came up in the ninth with two out and hit his 17th homer to win the game.

Bonds doesn't come right out and say it, but the 6-foot-1, 190-pounder indicates he would like to be traded.

"I wouldn't mind going to Philadelphia," Bonds said last night. "Philly has a good ball club with youngsters and veterans, just what you need for a pennant contender."

Bonds admitted that he heard the rumors he was headed for Philadelphia. The Phillies made a pitch for the budding superstar after slugger Greg Luzinski was injured in June. The Giants turned it down.

Bonds indicated he was tired of playing for a loser. He's disgusted being 21½ games behind first place, with playing in the wind tunnel that is Candlestick Park in San Francisco. He described the Giants' home playpen as the toughest park in the league to play in. He's also disturbed about the small turnouts in San Francisco.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead with a run in the first on a bases-loaded walk. San Francisco starter Charley Williams protected it with hitless pitching until Ollie Brown rapped a tying two-out home run in the fifth.

San Francisco went ahead again in the sixth on a wild pitch with the bases loaded.

The Phillies rallied in the seventh. Jay Johnstone led off with a walk, and took second on a passed ball. Williams was relieved by Elias Sosa, who completed a walk to Brown.

After Bob Boone forced Brown, Bill Robinson lashed a two-run double to send the Phillies ahead 3-2. Robinson scored when Larry Bowa beat out an infield hit and Giants' second baseman Tito Fuentes threw the ball away for an error.

The Giants, now 4-2 on the current road trip, had today off before opening a three-game stand in St. Louis.

NOW STARS FOR YANKS

Pitcher May Is Sorry Angels Were So Patient With Him

OAKLAND (UPI) — Rudy May must be sorry the California Angels waited so long to write him off.

Since being sold to the New York Yankees on June 15, the 30-year-old southpaw is 5-1 with an earned run average of 1.48. After stopping the A's 4-1 on four hits last night, he has thrown 28 consecutive innings without permitting an earned run. As a Yankee, May has hurled a two-hitter, three four-hitters, a six-hitter and a seven-hit, 2-1 victory over the Angels.

"I had reached the point in my career where I had to start proving I could pitch well if I wanted to stay in baseball," May said after taming Oakland on Elliott Maddox' two-run, tie-breaking double in the ninth inning off loser Vida Blue (14-10).

"There's a big difference pitching for the Yankees," May added. "This club wants to win. On the Angels, everybody was concerned only about looking good. There is a difference.

"And it's really helped having Thurman Munson as my catcher. Not once in the seven games I've pitched for the Yankees have I had to shake off any of Thurman's signals."

May, a one-time Oakland high school star in four sports, was 51-76 in five-plus seasons with the Angels. He had a poor spring training record this year and was relegated to the bullpen.

"We felt he'd be better off with another team," said former Angel Manager Bobby Winkles, fired two weeks after May was sold. Winkles is now a coach for the A's.

"He was at an age where he had to help himself or he couldn't help the ball club. And he wasn't an effective relief pitcher," said Winkles.

The A's, whose lead in the American League West was trimmed to 5 ½ games by May, had today off, but open a three-game series here tomorrow night against Detroit. Jim Hunter (17-9) will face Tiger southpaw Mickey Lolich (13-14).

'Strong Medicine' Destroys Quakes

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Ron Newman, the fiery coach of the Dallas Tornado, thinks his team found a spoonful of "strong medicine" last night.

The Tornado captured its North American Soccer League quarterfinal from the San Jose Earthquake 3-0 with a second half rush that Newman quickly proclaimed his club's best half of soccer this season.

That set up a semifinal playoff meeting between Dallas and Miami Saturday night. The winner of that game will host the championship game Aug. 25.

"That second half was just the kind of strong medicine we needed," Newman said. "The first half (a scoreless standoff) we didn't play with confidence. We were nervous. We looked for the obvious play and didn't use any imagination."

But it took only 20 seconds for Dallas to score in the second half.

Mike Renshaw fired a pass to Kyle Rote Jr., Rote pushed the ball back to Renshaw and he drove it into the net past goalie Mike Ivanow.

From there it was all Dallas. Roy Turner, who scored only one goal all season, drilled one in with 38 minutes left and Renshaw scored a second goal with 25 seconds remaining.

"That first goal was the key," Newman said. "Then they had to come at us and it opened up all sorts of opportunities. We could have scored two or three more times."

Newman said NASL President Phil Woosnam decided the winner of Saturday night's Dallas-Miami game will host the league's championship game against either Baltimore, Boston or Los Angeles.

Baltimore and Boston will meet in Boston in a quarterfinal match tonight with the winner of that game traveling to Los Angeles for a semifinal contest Saturday night.

Since the NASL title game will be nationally televised for the first time this year, league officials want to have the best stadium possible for the telecast. Dallas plays its home games in Texas Stadium and Miami plays in the Orange Bowl, so one of those two stadiums is assured for the championship game.

Undefeated Fortuna Threatens Italian Club in DiMaggio Play

The Italian Athletic Club will be looking for its third straight championship as the Joe DiMaggio Regional baseball tournament opens tomorrow at Novato High School — but a formidable obstacle stands in the way.

An undefeated team, Fortuna, will challenge the local favorites.

The four-team, double-elimination tourney begins tomorrow with two games. Fortuna will meet Sebastopol at 2:30 p.m. and the Italian Club will face Coast-to-Coast Stores of McKinleyville at 5:30 p.m.

Tomorrow's losers will play Saturday at 10 a.m., and tomorrow's winners will meet Saturday at 1 p.m. The 10 a.m. winner and 1 p.m. loser will clash at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Championship games will be held at 11 a.m. and (if necessary) 2 p.m. on Sunday. Winner advances to the state tournament Aug. 21-25 in San Jose.

Fortuna racked up a 21-0 record in DiMaggio play up north, but coach Shirley Bartow insists, "We're not that good. The league's not that good." Outside the league, Fortuna was 14-4.

The team boasts two good left-handed pitchers, Randy Niemann and Roger Sanderson. Niemann is the team's leading power hitter and bats cleanup. The top hitter for average is catcher Dave Steele, with a mark around .400, according to Bartow.

The Italian Club, which won the Southern Division of Marin Joe DiMaggio competition with a 15-3 record, boasts brilliant pitching.

Two big, strong, overpowering right-handers, Gene Frey and Eddie Andersen, will team up with two careful, crafty southpaws, Mark Ruggles and Jeff Lucchesi, to make opponents think they are seeing double Sebastopol, the Marin North winner at 11-7, is led by pitcher Vic Holmstedt and .400-hitting outfielder Gary Bartee. McKinleyville has a .500 hitter in the lineup, shortstop Jack Belcher.

Each team is allowed to add three players from elsewhere in its league for the tournament, and McKinleyville picked up a remarkable player from Outdoor Store of Arcata.

First baseman Dennis Marshall, only 16 (the upper age limit is 18), has an artificial leg, but nonetheless is a fine hitter. He was voted the outstanding player earlier this year in a Eureka-area Colt League tournament.

Italian Club has added Toby's Truckers' pitcher Tom Cronin and utility man Jeff Knotts and Rohnert Park first baseman Marshall Brant. Sebastopol grabbed Bank of Marin hurler Mike Bird and Holiday Magic catcher Dave Steele and shortstop Mike Farris — creating the possibility that in tomorrow's opener, both teams will have a catcher named Dave Steele.

Tickets cost $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students and are available at the gate.

49ers Trade 2 WFL Signees

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) -- The San Francisco 49ers yesterday traded two veterans headed for the World Football League to the Chicago Bears for return specialist Cecil Turner.

They sent receivers Dick Witcher and John Isenbarger, who will join the Southern Californian Sun and the Hawaiians respectively next season.

Since the 49ers also shipped linebacker Jim Sniadecki to St. Louis, star tight end Ted Kwalick remains the only player on the San Francisco roster who is headed for the WFL next season.

Turner, former National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division sprint star at Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, returned 108 kickoffs for 2,616 yards in six years with the Bears.

Every other San Francisco 49er veteran is now with the team except for running back Vic Washington, who was sent home Aug. 5 after a squabble with Coach Dick Nolan over missed practices.

The 49ers admit they are trying to trade Washington but the veteran back has enlisted the aid of his friend, the Rev. Cecil Williams of San Francisco's Glide Memorial Church. Washington wants him to get together with Nolan to talk over their situation.

The 49ers yesterday cut three free agents. They were kicker Pepe Guzman of New Mexico, tackle Ed Rosett from University of California at Santa Barbara and defensive back Terry Patterson of Sacramento State.

Belligerent Talk Dies Down

It's Time For Business At All Training Camps

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

All the belligerent talk by both striking players and coaches seems to have died down and it's business as usual in the National Football League camps.

Yesterday was the reporting date set by the NFL Players Association to begin a 14-day cooling off period in hopes of bringing about a contract settlement. And there were few problems as most camps reported a good number of veterans reporting or planning to report soon. Talks are scheduled to resume today in Washington.

Twenty-seven striking Atlanta veterans reported and Coach Norm Van Brocklin said there would be no animosity toward the striking players and the regulars would start Saturday night's pre-season game with Cincinnati in Atlanta.

"All of what has been said and done was forgotten when they walked through that door today," said Van Brocklin.

At Houston, one incident did occur as outspoken striker Fred Willis carried the ball and was met by linebacker Al Cowlings, a strike breaker who reported earlier this week. Cowlings shouted at Willis, the two came face-to-face but no punches were thrown.

The honking of car horns signaled the arrival of a caravan of Minnesota Viking veterans at their training camp at Mankato State College. Thirty veterans showed up at the same time, traveling in a long string of vehicles from Bloomington, Minn., where they had been working out daily as a unit at a high school field.

The only experienced player not in camp was all-pro tackle Alan Page, a member of the negotiating committee, who will be in Washington today.

"Now's the time to get ready for another season," said quarterback Fran Tarkenton. "It's great to get back."

Coach Bud Grant wanted no part of the strike dispute.

SID GILLMAN
No easy game

"I haven't asked anybody if they're going to leave in two weeks," He said. "I have no control over it. I'm a coach, not an owner. My job is to get the players in shape for a game."

Matson, the Bengals' player rep, said, "we've decided to forget about the whole thing and just play football. There comes a point when you've got to shrug things off. It's arrived."

Gillman, who angered Houston players by cutting seven veterans early this week, claims he's not running for most popular man in camp.

"This is not an easy game we're in," he said. "It is not calculated to win popularity contests. You try to win. (Vince) Lombardi didn't lead any popularity contest. They say they hate (Tom) Landry, but all Landry does is win. They say they hate (Don) Shula, but all Shula does is win. I don't know, what is the answer?"

Don Shula, coach of the World Champion Miami Dolphins, showed no signs of retribution toward the 12 returning veterans, but no mercy either. He put them through two sessions under the broiling Florida sun.

"That first goal was the key," Newman said. "Then they had to come at us and it opened up all sorts of opportunities. We could have scored two or three more times."

Newman said NASL President Phil Woosnam decided the winner of Saturday night's Dallas-Miami game will host the league's championship game against either Baltimore, Boston or Los Angeles.

Baltimore and Boston will meet in Boston in a quarterfinal match tonight with the winner of that game traveling to Los Angeles for a semifinal contest Saturday night.

Since the NASL title game will be nationally televised for the first time this year, league officials want to have the best stadium possible for the telecast. Dallas plays its home games in Texas Stadium and Miami plays in the Orange Bowl, so one of those two stadiums is assured for the championship game.

NOW STARS FOR YANKS

Pitcher May Is Sorry Angels Were So Patient With Him

OAKLAND (UPI) — Rudy May must be sorry the California Angels waited so long to write him off.

Since being sold to the New York Yankees on June 15, the 30-year-old southpaw is 5-1 with an earned run average of 1.48. After stopping the A's 4-1 on four hits last night, he has thrown 28 consecutive innings without permitting an earned run. As a Yankee, May has hurled a two-hitter, three four-hitters, a six-hitter and a seven-hit, 2-1 victory over the Angels.

"I had reached the point in my career where I had to start proving I could pitch well if I wanted to stay in baseball," May said after taming Oakland on Elliott Maddox' two-run, tie-breaking double in the ninth inning off loser Vida Blue (14-10).

"There's a big difference pitching for the Yankees," May added. "This club wants to win. On the Angels, everybody was concerned only about looking good. There is a difference.

"And it's really helped having Thurman Munson as my catcher. Not once in the seven games I've pitched for the Yankees have I had to shake off any of Thurman's signals."

May, a one-time Oakland high school star in four sports, was 51-76 in five-plus seasons with the Angels. He had a poor spring training record this year and was relegated to the bullpen.

"We felt he'd be better off with another team," said former Angel Manager Bobby Winkles, fired two weeks after May was sold. Winkles is now a coach for the A's.

"He was at an age where he had to help himself or he couldn't help the ball club. And he wasn't an effective relief pitcher," said Winkles.

The A's, whose lead in the American League West was trimmed to 5 ½ games by May, had today off, but open a three-game series here tomorrow night against Detroit. Jim Hunter (17-9) will face Tiger southpaw Mickey Lolich (13-14).

Undefeated Fortuna Threatens Italian Club in DiMaggio Play

The Italian Athletic Club will be looking for its third straight championship as the Joe DiMaggio Regional baseball tournament opens tomorrow at Novato High School — but a formidable obstacle stands in the way.

An undefeated team, Fortuna, will challenge the local favorites.

The four-team, double-elimination tourney begins tomorrow with two games. Fortuna will meet Sebastopol at 2:30 p.m. and the Italian Club will face Coast-to-Coast Stores of McKinleyville at 5:30 p.m.

Tomorrow's losers will play Saturday at 10 a.m., and tomorrow's winners will meet Saturday at 1 p.m. The 10 a.m. winner and 1 p.m. loser will clash at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Championship games will be held at 11 a.m. and (if necessary) 2 p.m. on Sunday. Winner advances to the state tournament Aug. 21-25 in San Jose.

Fortuna racked up a 21-0 record in DiMaggio play up north, but coach Shirley Bartow insists, "We're not that good. The league's not that good." Outside the league, Fortuna was 14-4.

The team boasts two good left-handed pitchers, Randy Niemann and Roger Sanderson. Niemann is the team's leading power hitter and bats cleanup. The top hitter for average is catcher Dave Steele, with a mark around .400, according to Bartow.

The Italian Club, which won the Southern Division of Marin Joe DiMaggio competition with a 15-3 record, boasts brilliant pitching.

Two big, strong, overpowering right-handers, Gene Frey and Eddie Andersen, will team up with two careful, crafty southpaws, Mark Ruggles and Jeff Lucchesi, to make opponents think they are seeing double Sebastopol, the Marin North winner at 11-7, is led by pitcher Vic Holmstedt and .400-hitting outfielder Gary Bartee. McKinleyville has a .500 hitter in the lineup, shortstop Jack Belcher.

Each team is allowed to add three players from elsewhere in its league for the tournament, and McKinleyville picked up a remarkable player from Outdoor Store of Arcata.

First baseman Dennis Marshall, only 16 (the upper age limit is 18), has an artificial leg, but nonetheless is a fine hitter. He was voted the outstanding player earlier this year in a Eureka-area Colt League tournament.

Italian Club has added Toby's Truckers' pitcher Tom Cronin and utility man Jeff Knotts and Rohnert Park first baseman Marshall Brant. Sebastopol grabbed Bank of Marin hurler Mike Bird and Holiday Magic catcher Dave Steele and shortstop Mike Farris — creating the possibility that in tomorrow's opener, both teams will have a catcher named Dave Steele.

Tickets cost $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students and are available at the gate.

49ers Trade 2 WFL Signees

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) -- The San Francisco 49ers yesterday traded two veterans headed for the World Football League to the Chicago Bears for return specialist Cecil Turner.

They sent receivers Dick Witcher and John Isenbarger, who will join the Southern Californian Sun and the Hawaiians respectively next season.

Since the 49ers also shipped linebacker Jim Sniadecki to St. Louis, star tight end Ted Kwalick remains the only player on the San Francisco roster who is headed for the WFL next season.

Turner, former National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division sprint star at Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, returned 108 kickoffs for 2,616 yards in six years with the Bears.

Every other San Francisco 49er veteran is now with the team except for running back Vic Washington, who was sent home Aug. 5 after a squabble with Coach Dick Nolan over missed practices.

The 49ers admit they are trying to trade Washington but the veteran back has enlisted the aid of his friend, the Rev. Cecil Williams of San Francisco's Glide Memorial Church. Washington wants him to get together with Nolan to talk over their situation.

The 49ers yesterday cut three free agents. They were kicker Pepe Guzman of New Mexico, tackle Ed Rosett from University of California at Santa Barbara and defensive back Terry Patterson of Sacramento State.

Even Anderson Getting Tense

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Cincinnati Reds are giving their own manager the shakes so you can imagine what they're doing to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Look, I can hardly hold it," said Manager Sparky Anderson last night as he juggled a roast beef sandwich after the Reds pulled out a "cliffhanger" 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "The Dodgers aren't out of the woods yet because they have six games left with the Pirates."

The Reds' victory moved them to within 4 ½ games of the first-place Dodgers in the National League East. The Reds were four games behind the Dodgers as late as Aug. 30 last season and still won the division crown.

"When you win one out of three and still pick up a game in the standings, it makes you feel good," added Anderson, referring to the fact that the Reds won only one game of their series with the Pirates but gained ground because the Dodgers lost their three-game series with the New York Mets. The Mets completed the sweep yesterday with a 3-2 triumph.

Cesar Geronimo drove in the winning run when he doubled home Dave Concepcion with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning but Anderson's "hero" was 22-year old lefthanded relief pitcher Will McEnaney, who entered the game with Pirates on first and third and none out in the ninth and retired the side without allowing a run.

Rusty Staub's single climaxed a two-run ninth inning rally which gave the Mets their sweep of the Dodgers and tagged Iron Man reliever Mike Marshall with his eighth loss. Ken Boswell's walk, a sacrifice and an error by centerfielder Tom Paciorek enabled the Mets to tie the score at 2-2 before hits by Felix Millan and Staub brought the winning run around. Tug McGraw won his third game against six losses.

St. Louis defeated San Diego 5-1, Atlanta beat Montreal 6-1, San Francisco topped Philadelphia 6-4 and Chicago shaded Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

Cardinals 5 Padres 1

Reggie Smith's three-run homer climaxed a five-run fifth inning rally which enabled the Cardinals' Alan Foster to win his seventh game with a sixhitter.

Braves 6 Expos 1

Hank Aaron hit his 16th homer and the 729th of his career and Dusty Baker also homered to lead the Braves' 10- hit attack. Baker's homer was a three-run shot in a four-run first which sent Carl Morton off to a fast start toward his 12th win against seven losses.

Cubs 6 Astros 5

Don Kessinger's triple and singles by Jose Cardenal, Billy Williams and Andy Thornton gave the Cubs a 4-1 lead in the first inning and they held on for the win with the late-inning relief pitching of Oscar Zamora and Jim Todd.

Decker Giving Twins A Lift

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Minnesota Twins continue to languish in fifth place in the American League East, but Joe Decker cannot be blamed.

The right-hander from Petaluma turned in another fine pitching performance last night, shutting out the Cleveland Indians for eight innings in Minnesota's 1-0 victory.

Decker gave up only four hits, striking out five and walking two, before yielding the mound to reliever Bill Campbell, who nailed down the victory with his 17th save.

A regular in the Twins' rotation the past two years, Decker is 12-10 this season.

Glenn Borgmann hit a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning to score Bobby Darwin with the game's only run. Fritz Peterson (8-7) pitched well but took the loss for crumbling Cleveland.

Another local pitcher, Bill Lee of Terra Linda, was not so fortunate last night. The California Angels drove him from the mound and defeated Boston, 5-0.

Lee (13-11) gave up all five runs on six hits and five walks, and departed in the fifth inning.

Royals 9, Tigers 1

Steve Busby, supported by home runs by Orlando Cepeda and Tony Soliata, earned his 18th victory as surging Kansas City whipped Detroit.

White Sox 5, Orioles 4

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a homer and a single but the White Sox also needed a run-scoring single from Brian Downing in the eighth inning to edge Baltimore. Dick Allen had two hits to stretch his hitting streak to 15 games for the Sox.

Brewers 6, Rangers 5

Tim Johnson's pinch single in the eighth inning led Milwaukee over Texas. Doubles by George Scott and Darrell Porter tied the score before Johnson's hit won it. Cesar Tovar went 5-for-5 for the Brewers in the losing cause.

Oliver Tabbed Indiana Aide

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers announced today the appointment of Jerry Oliver as assistant coach to head coach Bob Leonard.

Oliver's responsibilities will be in the areas of scouting Pacer opponents and prospective collegiate talent, working with the young players coming into the Pacers' camp and in the area of public relations.

For the past two seasons Oliver was the coach at Warren Central High School and was an assistant coach for four years at Indiana University from 1968-71.

Best Hitters

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves claimed the best-hitting outfield in major league baseball at the start of the 1974 season. With Hank Aaron .311 in left, Dusty Baker .296 in center and Ralph Garr .318 in right, the Braves' regular outfield had a career average of .311.

'Terrible' Tillie Seeks Golf Title

(Second in a series)

"I've been playing terribly. My chances are not very good."

Are these the words of a golfer with a defeatist attitude?

No, it is the candid assessment of defending champion Tillie Gondak. She is attempting to become the second to successfully defend the women's Tournament of Champions golf title. Tillie represents Marin Country Club.

When she tees off at 9 a.m. on Aug. 23 at Indian Valley, her task will be difficult. Mrs. Gondak's opponents in the seventh annual event will be: 1969 and 1970 champion Laura Cann of Meadow Club, Liz Cole of Peacock Gap, Terry Nichols of Mill Valley Municipal, Peg Williams of Indian Valley and Nancy Gapinski of San Geronimo.

"I've been playing just as much (three times per week), but not as well. Laura and Nancy are both playing well. I'd bet on either one of them."

Mrs. Gondak, a nine handicapper, admitted she has not played at Indian Valley very much. "But it is a nice course. You have to be accurate there. And landing in the rough amounts to a penalty shot, because it's rough to hit out."

Though tourney time is nearing, Tillie is not overly concerned. "I'm not one to practice. That's the bad part. I just like to go out and play. And I do that.

"But there are other things I like doing. I like taking care of my family and my home and gardening. I like to swim every day to keep in shape."

The Gondaks of Larkspur have two sons (Ross, 21, and Matt, 19) and a daughter (Cris, 24). Her husband Charles works in the personnel department of Pacific Telephone in San Francisco.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Joe Paterno, coach of the fifth-ranked Penn State gridders, replaced Frank Kush of 10th-ranked Arizona State as the nation's most successful active college football coach in terms of won-loss percentage, according to a list released yesterday.

The list, prepared annually by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins of the Southeastern Conference office, showed Paterno has 74 wins, 13 losses and 1 tie for an .848 winning percentage. Kush's record is 132-34-1 for a .793 mark. Last year Paterno's squad was 11-0, while Kush's team was 10-1.

Bo Schembechler of Michigan is third, followed by Darrell Royal of Texas, Bear Bryant of Alabama, Woody Hayes of Oio State, John McKay of Southern Cal, Charlie McLendon of LSU, Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Frank Broyles of Arkansas.

Fourth Street Tops Softball Rival, 5-4

Positively Fourth Street scored three times in the seventh inning last night to claim a 5-4 victory over Odyssey in San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball "B" league play at Albert Field.

Perry's defeated Ball Fours, 5-4, and the Flyers beat Izzy's Aces, 13-2, in other games.

GATERS CAN CINCH SPOT IN PLAYOFFS

OAKLAND (UPI) — If the Golden Gaters can beat Hawaii at the Oakland Coliseum Arena tonight, they clinch a place in next week's World Team Tennis playoffs.

Even though Hawaii has a 14-27 record compared to the Gaters' 21-20 mark, the match should not be an easy one for the Bay Area team.

For one thing, the Gaters have been playing poorly in their recent outings. For another, Hawaii brings a team which appears stronger than its record would indicate. Dennis Ralston heads the Leis, who also feature Val Ziegenfuss, San Mateo's Ann Kiyomura and Australia's Ross Case.

Even Anderson Getting Tense

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Cincinnati Reds are giving their own manager the shakes so you can imagine what they're doing to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Look, I can hardly hold it," said Manager Sparky Anderson last night as he juggled a roast beef sandwich after the Reds pulled out a "cliffhanger" 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "The Dodgers aren't out of the woods yet because they have six games left with the Pirates."

The Reds' victory moved them to within 4 ½ games of the first-place Dodgers in the National League East. The Reds were four games behind the Dodgers as late as Aug. 30 last season and still won the division crown.

"When you win one out of three and still pick up a game in the standings, it makes you feel good," added Anderson, referring to the fact that the Reds won only one game of their series with the Pirates but gained ground because the Dodgers lost their three-game series with the New York Mets. The Mets completed the sweep yesterday with a 3-2 triumph.

Cesar Geronimo drove in the winning run when he doubled home Dave Concepcion with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning but Anderson's "hero" was 22-year old lefthanded relief pitcher Will McEnaney, who entered the game with Pirates on first and third and none out in the ninth and retired the side without allowing a run.

Rusty Staub's single climaxed a two-run ninth inning rally which gave the Mets their sweep of the Dodgers and tagged Iron Man reliever Mike Marshall with his eighth loss. Ken Boswell's walk, a sacrifice and an error by centerfielder Tom Paciorek enabled the Mets to tie the score at 2-2 before hits by Felix Millan and Staub brought the winning run around. Tug McGraw won his third game against six losses.

St. Louis defeated San Diego 5-1, Atlanta beat Montreal 6-1, San Francisco topped Philadelphia 6-4 and Chicago shaded Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

Cardinals 5 Padres 1

Reggie Smith's three-run homer climaxed a five-run fifth inning rally which enabled the Cardinals' Alan Foster to win his seventh game with a sixhitter.

Braves 6 Expos 1

Hank Aaron hit his 16th homer and the 729th of his career and Dusty Baker also homered to lead the Braves' 10- hit attack. Baker's homer was a three-run shot in a four-run first which sent Carl Morton off to a fast start toward his 12th win against seven losses.

Cubs 6 Astros 5

Don Kessinger's triple and singles by Jose Cardenal, Billy Williams and Andy Thornton gave the Cubs a 4-1 lead in the first inning and they held on for the win with the late-inning relief pitching of Oscar Zamora and Jim Todd.

CONTACT AT SECOND — A hard slide by Indians' runner Charlie Spikes failed to break up a game-ending doubleplay last night in Cleveland. Minnesota Twins' shortstop Danny Thompson was cut down after relaying the baseball to first. (UPI Telephoto)

Oliver Tabbed Indiana Aide

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers announced today the appointment of Jerry Oliver as assistant coach to head coach Bob Leonard.

Oliver's responsibilities will be in the areas of scouting Pacer opponents and prospective collegiate talent, working with the young players coming into the Pacers' camp and in the area of public relations.

For the past two seasons Oliver was the coach at Warren Central High School and was an assistant coach for four years at Indiana University from 1968-71.

Best Hitters

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves claimed the best-hitting outfield in major league baseball at the start of the 1974 season. With Hank Aaron .311 in left, Dusty Baker .296 in center and Ralph Garr .318 in right, the Braves' regular outfield had a career average of .311.

'Terrible' Tillie Seeks Golf Title

(Second in a series)

"I've been playing terribly. My chances are not very good."

Are these the words of a golfer with a defeatist attitude?

No, it is the candid assessment of defending champion Tillie Gondak. She is attempting to become the second to successfully defend the women's Tournament of Champions golf title. Tillie represents Marin Country Club.

When she tees off at 9 a.m. on Aug. 23 at Indian Valley, her task will be difficult. Mrs. Gondak's opponents in the seventh annual event will be: 1969 and 1970 champion Laura Cann of Meadow Club, Liz Cole of Peacock Gap, Terry Nichols of Mill Valley Municipal, Peg Williams of Indian Valley and Nancy Gapinski of San Geronimo.

"I've been playing just as much (three times per week), but not as well. Laura and Nancy are both playing well. I'd bet on either one of them."

Mrs. Gondak, a nine handicapper, admitted she has not played at Indian Valley very much. "But it is a nice course. You have to be accurate there. And landing in the rough amounts to a penalty shot, because it's rough to hit out."

Though tourney time is nearing, Tillie is not overly concerned. "I'm not one to practice. That's the bad part. I just like to go out and play. And I do that.

"But there are other things I like doing. I like taking care of my family and my home and gardening. I like to swim every day to keep in shape."

The Gondaks of Larkspur have two sons (Ross, 21, and Matt, 19) and a daughter (Cris, 24). Her husband Charles works in the personnel department of Pacific Telephone in San Francisco.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Joe Paterno, coach of the fifth-ranked Penn State gridders, replaced Frank Kush of 10th-ranked Arizona State as the nation's most successful active college football coach in terms of won-loss percentage, according to a list released yesterday.

The list, prepared annually by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins of the Southeastern Conference office, showed Paterno has 74 wins, 13 losses and 1 tie for an .848 winning percentage. Kush's record is 132-34-1 for a .793 mark. Last year Paterno's squad was 11-0, while Kush's team was 10-1.

Bo Schembechler of Michigan is third, followed by Darrell Royal of Texas, Bear Bryant of Alabama, Woody Hayes of Oio State, John McKay of Southern Cal, Charlie McLendon of LSU, Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Frank Broyles of Arkansas.

Fourth Street Tops Softball Rival, 5-4

Positively Fourth Street scored three times in the seventh inning last night to claim a 5-4 victory over Odyssey in San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball "B" league play at Albert Field.

Perry's defeated Ball Fours, 5-4, and the Flyers beat Izzy's Aces, 13-2, in other games.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Decker Giving Twins A Lift

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Minnesota Twins continue to languish in fifth place in the American League East, but Joe Decker cannot be blamed.

The right-hander from Petaluma turned in another fine pitching performance last night, shutting out the Cleveland Indians for eight innings in Minnesota's 1-0 victory.

Decker gave up only four hits, striking out five and walking two, before yielding the mound to reliever Bill Campbell, who nailed down the victory with his 17th save.

A regular in the Twins' rotation the past two years, Decker is 12-10 this season.

Glenn Borgmann hit a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning to score Bobby Darwin with the game's only run. Fritz Peterson (8-7) pitched well but took the loss for crumbling Cleveland.

Another local pitcher, Bill Lee of Terra Linda, was not so fortunate last night. The California Angels drove him from the mound and defeated Boston, 5-0.

Lee (13-11) gave up all five runs on six hits and five walks, and departed in the fifth inning.

Royals 9, Tigers 1

Steve Busby, supported by home runs by Orlando Cepeda and Tony Soliata, earned his 18th victory as surging Kansas City whipped Detroit.

White Sox 5, Orioles 4

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a homer and a single but the White Sox also needed a run-scoring single from Brian Downing in the eighth inning to edge Baltimore. Dick Allen had two hits to stretch his hitting streak to 15 games for the Sox.

Brewers 6, Rangers 5

Tim Johnson's pinch single in the eighth inning led Milwaukee over Texas. Doubles by George Scott and Darrell Porter tied the score before Johnson's hit won it. Cesar Tovar went 5-for-5 for the Brewers in the losing cause.

GATERS CAN CINCH SPOT IN PLAYOFFS

OAKLAND (UPI) — If the Golden Gaters can beat Hawaii at the Oakland Coliseum Arena tonight, they clinch a place in next week's World Team Tennis playoffs.

Even though Hawaii has a 14-27 record compared to the Gaters' 21-20 mark, the match should not be an easy one for the Bay Area team.

For one thing, the Gaters have been playing poorly in their recent outings. For another, Hawaii brings a team which appears stronger than its record would indicate. Dennis Ralston heads the Leis, who also feature Val Ziegenfuss, San Mateo's Ann Kiyomura and Australia's Ross Case.

Consistent Horse

Confederate Yankee had raced seven times coming into the Kentucky Derby and was always in the money. In the Derby he finished 12th in the field of 23.

4-Way Fight For America's Cup

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI) — Four contenders headed into the finals today to select a defender for yachting's prized America's Cup, with the eliminations heightened by a sudden skipper change on aluminum hulled Mariner.

Emphasis was on crew precision and boat speed in what was shaping up as a classic two-boat battle between early favorite Courageous and two-time winner Intrepid for the right to defend the Cup against the French or Australians beginning Sept. 10.

In a random drawing paralleling those of previous trials, Courageous and Intrepid were matched in the first race with Mariner paired against berthmate Valiant.

In a last ditch effort to better the odds for troubled Mariner, Commodore George Hinman, syndicate manager, juggled skippers with Valiant. Dennis Conner, 1973 Congressional Cup winner, was named to Mariner's helm while Ted Turner, an Atlanta television executive, was switched to wood-hulled Valiant.

Conner brought four crewmen with him from the original Valiant team and added Mariner's builder, Bob Derecktor, to the crew.

Mariner, earlier billed as a radical 12-meter yacht, lost precious preparation time with a five-week stint in drydock to rebuild her hull. Valiant also appeared a long shot based on performance in previous duels with Courageous and Intrepid.

Skipper Gerry Driscoll said Intrepid's victory margin, 6-4 in the June and July trials, will help the wooden old lady in the final series.

The boats will alternate pairings on a daily basis, the trials to continue until one yacht has proven her superiority over the widest possible range of winds. The two least promising candidates will probably be eliminated after a week or so. The New York Yacht Club selection committee must make its choice by Sept. 3.

Southern Cross, the Australian contender, and France, the French 12, begin their best-of-seven elimination series Aug. 22.

Killebrew 10th On DH List

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew, who celebrated his "day" at Minnesota Sunday by driving in the decisive run, became one of the top 10 designated hitters in the American League for the first time this year by hitting .400 in the DH slot last week, the League office announced yesterday.

Mike Hargrove of Texas continues to lead with a .340 average, but he is only three at-bats above the minimum for inclusion in the rankings.

4-Way Fight For America's Cup

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI) — Four contenders headed into the finals today to select a defender for yachting's prized America's Cup, with the eliminations heightened by a sudden skipper change on aluminum hulled Mariner.

Emphasis was on crew precision and boat speed in what was shaping up as a classic two-boat battle between early favorite Courageous and two-time winner Intrepid for the right to defend the Cup against the French or Australians beginning Sept. 10.

In a random drawing paralleling those of previous trials, Courageous and Intrepid were matched in the first race with Mariner paired against berthmate Valiant.

In a last ditch effort to better the odds for troubled Mariner, Commodore George Hinman, syndicate manager, juggled skippers with Valiant. Dennis Conner, 1973 Congressional Cup winner, was named to Mariner's helm while Ted Turner, an Atlanta television executive, was switched to wood-hulled Valiant.

Conner brought four crewmen with him from the original Valiant team and added Mariner's builder, Bob Derecktor, to the crew.

Mariner, earlier billed as a radical 12-meter yacht, lost precious preparation time with a five-week stint in drydock to rebuild her hull. Valiant also appeared a long shot based on performance in previous duels with Courageous and Intrepid.

Skipper Gerry Driscoll said Intrepid's victory margin, 6-4 in the June and July trials, will help the wooden old lady in the final series.

The boats will alternate pairings on a daily basis, the trials to continue until one yacht has proven her superiority over the widest possible range of winds. The two least promising candidates will probably be eliminated after a week or so. The New York Yacht Club selection committee must make its choice by Sept. 3.

Southern Cross, the Australian contender, and France, the French 12, begin their best-of-seven elimination series Aug. 22.

Killebrew 10th On DH List

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew, who celebrated his "day" at Minnesota Sunday by driving in the decisive run, became one of the top 10 designated hitters in the American League for the first time this year by hitting .400 in the DH slot last week, the League office announced yesterday.

Mike Hargrove of Texas continues to lead with a .340 average, but he is only three at-bats above the minimum for inclusion in the rankings.

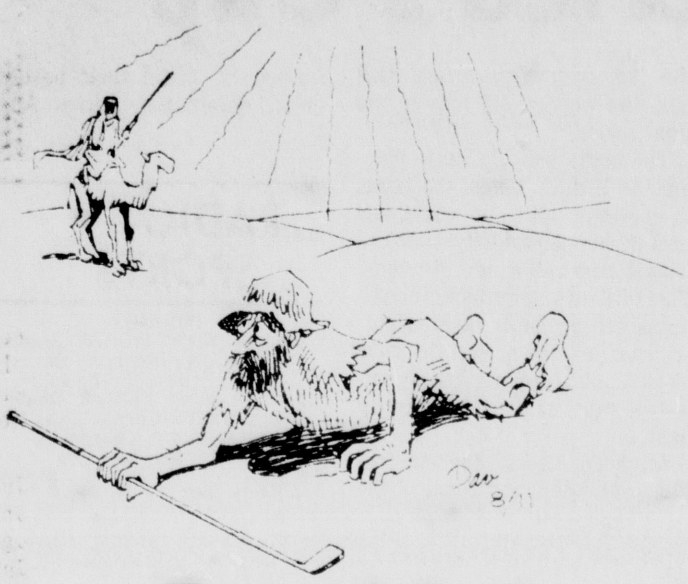
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Trapped Again

By LEE TREVINO

Some golfers spend so much time in the sand that their wedges sprout cactus. Can you believe Johnny Miller needing three shots to clear a bunker in the '74 U.S. Open at Winged Foot?

Coming out of sand traps is reduced to three basic rules: (1) Open the blade at address, (2) Strike the sand an inch or two behind the ball, and (3) Swing smooth and follow through.

An inch is plenty if your ball is lying on top of level sand. If it stops on an uphill incline, strike the sand very close to the ball —even simultaneously with the ball if the slope is steep.

A downhill bunker shot can be downright humblin' if it's buried. On this shot, use a 9-iron so the blade can gouge into the sand quickly to throw the ball out.

The main thing to keep in mind on an unburied downhill bunker shot is to cut across the ball sharply to give it a quick climb. Nip very little sand or it won't rise.

On uphill lies, lean into your left leg to prevent falling back. Falling back changes the hitting area, and you may have to call the Foreign Legion for help.

5 Unhappy Quarterbacks Impress In WFL

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

It was the kind of night those unhappy quarterbacks dreamed of when they decided to cast their fate with the new World Football League.

George Mira, Virgil Carter, Tom Sherman, John Huarte, Bob Davis—all were either unhappy with their backup roles in the National Football League and decided to make the jump. And last night they came up big winners.

The unbeaten Americans blasted the Hawaiians 39-0 before 43,297 in Birmingham, the Fire edged the Philadelphia Bell 32-29 before 27,607 in Chicago, the Memphis Southmen crushed the winless Detroit Wheels 37-7 before 14,424 at Ypsilanti, Mich., the Stars whipped the Portland Storm 38-16 before 16,222 in New York and the Florida Blazers downed the Jacksonville Sharks 33-26 before 23,890 in Orlando. The Southern California Sun is at Houston against the Texans tonight in a nationally televised game.

Americans 39, Hawaiians 0

Mira, who knocked around in San Francisco, Philadelphia aad Canada for a while without making it big, came off the bench and threw two touchdown passes—one a 95-yarder to Alfred Jenkins—as Birmingham blasted the Hawaiians. Mira, making his first appearance since injuring his ankle three weeks ago, relieved Matthew Reed with the Americans ahead 8-0 and directed Birmingham to four TDs. He also passed 26 yards to Dennis Homan for a score. Willie Smith had an 81- yard punt return for a TD, Jimmy Edwards ran seven yards for another and Art Cantrelle plunged a yard for still another as the Americans, the only undefeated team in the WFL, ran their record to 6-0.

Fire 32, Bell 29

Carter, who played at Cincinnati and Chicago before falling out of favor, threw an 11-yard TD pass to Jack Dolbin with 1:34 left to play to lift the Fire over Philadelphia. Carter his five straight passes as he moved Chicago 80 yards in the last two minutes for the winning score. Carter earlier passed six yards to Cyril Pinder for a score and Pinder and Mark Kellar each ran a yard for TDs.

The Bell's King Corcoran, the WFL passing leader, had TD passes of two yards to Alan Thompson and 45 yards to Claude Watts and ran a yard for another score.

Southmen 37, Wheels 7

Huarte, a former Heisman Trophy winner at Notre Dame, banged around the NFL for 10 years. He has a starting job at Memphis and he's making the most of it as he helped the Southmen to their fourth win in 9six games Wednesday night. Huarte threw a 12-yard TD pass to Ed Marshall and set up a pair of one-yard TD bursts by Willie Spencer as Memphis manhandled Detroit. Davis Thomas also had a 39-yard interception return for a TD and sub quarterback Danny White passed 31 yards to Gary Powell for another score.

Detroit, now 0-6, got its only TD on a one-yard plunge by Bubba Wyche.

Stars 38, Storm 0

Sherman, who never really got much opportunity in brief trials with New England and Buffalo, had his best game of the young season as he threw two TD passes to veteran George Sauer and ran five yards for another score to lead New York to its fourth straight win. Sherman, who was playing in the minors in recent years, hit Sauer on TD passes of 20 and three yards and helped set up Andy Huff's four-yard scoring burst.

The Stars led 38-0 before Greg Barton, who relieved rookie Ken Johnson in the second half, threw TD passes of 15 yards to Jim Krieg with 1:43 left and 12 yards to Ken Matthews as time expired. Portland is now 0-5-1.

Blazers 33, Sharks 26

Davis, who spend the last few seasons as understudy to Joe Namath in New York and Archie Manning in New Orleans, ran a yard for one score and set up a pair of short TD plunges by Jim Strong in Florida's victory over Jacksonville. The Blazers built up a 31-11 lead after three periods and held on in the final quarter as Reggie Oliver ran nine yards for one TD and passed seven yards to Tom Whittier for another. The victory left Florida, now 5-1, in first place in the East.

Casper's Chances 'No Good'

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Billy Casper says he still is playing poorly and thinks his chances are "no good" to win for an an unprecedented fifth time here as the Sammy Davis Jr.- Greater Hartford Open opened today.

Casper, 43, said he had a "hot" 72 yesterday in the pro-am warmup played with Sammy Davis Jr. on the 6,583 yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

"I'm having trouble breaking 75. I'm having trouble with every swing, every hole," said the San Diego, Calif., native whose last tour win was here in 1973.

Casper won here in 1963 and 1965 when the tournament was known as the Insurance City Open and his win last year was preceded by a 1968 victory.

The par 71 course is referred to as a "putter's course" but Casper, acknowledged as one of the best putters the game has ever had, said that has gone bad.

When asked how his chances were for a fifth win, Casper said, "no good." He said he four-putted the par 4, 11th hole in the practice round from about 15 foot and that included a backhand attempt.

Referring to his poor showing in the PGA last week where he shot a total 297, Casper jokingly said he was "in the rough so much that I'm sending four bales of hay I cut to feed my cattle on the West Coast."

Lee Trevino, whose win in the PGA boosted him to third at $166,886 on the money list, said after a pro-am round 68 that he will take it easy after this event, "passing up Westchester to go home and rest."

Better Business Bureau Issues Warning On Firm

Maurice Rappaport, a man of many aliases and enterprises, is back in San Francisco after a mysterious absence of four years, the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco warned this week.

Donald W. Schwartz, president of the San Francisco BBB, identified Rappaport's latest enterprise as Excel Health Foods at 4754 Million Street, which is operating without a permit from the San Francisco Bureau of Environmental Health.

Investigation by the Better Business Bureau showed that receipts or sales slips were not always given, prices were switched either up, for the unsuspecting, or down, to get a sale, at the whim of Rappaport.

Schwartz reported that the BBB files on Rappaport date back to 1966 when he attempted to establish his AAA TV Appliances in Daly City.

"The Better Business Bureau of San Francisco has kept abreast of Rappaport, his aliases, activities and advertising, and has publicly advised consumers and newspapers that caution should be exercised in dealing with any firm owned or operated by Maurice Rappaport," said Schwartz. "The bureau is now again warning the public."

INFLATION

Economic Schools Divide On Solution

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Since the economy is the number one problem, President Gerald Ford's honeymoon isn't likely to have an indefinite run.

Eventually, if not immediately, he must decide on what anti-inflation course he will pursue. And that means he might offend large segments of economic society, despite his desire for cooperation and mutuality.

The schools of economic thinking today can be divided and subdivided more sharply than at almost any time in a decade or more. In the extreme, one side insists on an economic straightjacket, the other urges more freedom.

This division is partly the legacy of five years of experimentation that led the Nixon administration back to where it began — tight money, a spending holddown, a balanced budget.

Alan Greenspan, who was Nixon's choice to be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, exemplifies this thinking. Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve, does to a large degree. So does Herbert Stein, outgoing council chairman.

But those economists more identified with the Democrats, such as Walter Heller, Otto Eckstoen and James Tobin, all advisers in the Kennedy-Johnson years, disagree sharply.

They suggest that moderation, exceptions to the rule, special handling of sensitive issues such as housing — even a little experimentation — might still be called for, despite Nixon's failures in these directions.

Perseverance in a tight monetary-fiscal policy, they believe, might lead to social dislocations even more severe than those attributed to inflation, such as joblessness, financial disorder, recession.

In arriving at their conclusions, each side sometimes uses the same reasons as the other.

The Democratic economists argue that an overly tight monetary policy would bring more financial disorder.

Indications that the divisions are even more extreme can be gathered from the growing assumptions of some legislators, businessmen and others that the entire policy of tight money may be counterproductive.

This position is based on the assumption that inflation isn't domestically generated nearly so much as it is caused by foreign events, such as oil prices, over which tight money has no restraining impact at all.

President Ford is acclaimed for his ability to elicit cooperation from all parties, but if he can handle the anti-inflation program without offending great numbers of people, that acclaim will become awe.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $4.41 cents per fine ounce down 6 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $4.41 down 6 cents and fabricated silver at $452.0 down 6.2 cents.

Prices Move Irregularly On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices moved irregularly during the first two hours today on the New York Stock Exchange. Turnover was light.

Shortly before noon the Dow Jones industrial average had chalked up a skimpy gain.

The improvement in the Dow brought little cheer to analysts. Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton described it as a "half-hearted rally" which would have been more impressive with greater volume.

"There is still lots of caution around," Zinder commented.

Joe Generalis of Shearson, Hammill was similarly unimpressed. He said he saw "no significant" move in the stock market until around Labor Day, adding that the current bear market "still has much further to go."

The most active issue was Maremont Corp., followed by Union Carbide and AT&T.

Reynolds Metals, which doubled its quarterly dividend to 25 cents, added ⅜. PPG Industries, announcing a rise in caustic soda prices, slipped ¼.

ITT reacted briefly on the upside and Avis Corp. on the downside to news ITT is buying an additional $17.2 million of Avis stock. ITT, which has a major interest in Avis, also reported record quarterly and half year sales and earnings.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange turned easier in light trading. Most active issue was Giant Yellowknife Mines, off 1/2 to 14 1/2.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hot Stock Cools But Should Improve

By ROGER E. SPEAR and
DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. I recently purchased 500 shares of Union Corp. (NYSE) at $7. What is your opinion on averaging down on this stock? — J.H.

A. This conglomerate, which reached a high of 25½ on its expected entry into the soft lens market in early 1972, has not as yet received clearance from the Food & Drug Administration for its product. While the shares may be held on a speculative basis, new commitments are not favored.

In line with most conglomerates, Union has expanded revenues via the acquisition route, a road that has mot led to increasing profitability. Discontinued operations contributed a one cent a share loss to operating earnings in fiscal 1973 and a 29-cent a share loss for disposal of these businesses in the March period. Cost reductions and cutbacks should eventually improve profitability.

Q. My purpose in acquiring mutual funds is long-term capital growth for retirement in 15 years. I hold Price Growth, Edie Special Growth and Nicholas Strong Fund. I add about $1,200 annually to the first two funds but I have not added to Nicholas Strong since I bought it two and a half years ago. If I sell now it will be at a loss. Should I switch any of these funds? — H.S.

A. Two of your funds, Edie and Strong, are speculative and thus highly volatile, exceeding market swings both in up and down markets. In the 18 months from June 1970 to December 1972, the performance for the latter was a 230 per cent gain, with Edie showing a 102 per cent rise. The subsequent declines (from 12/31/72 through 6/30/74 were 44 per cent for Edie and 62 per cent for Strong. By comparison, the Standard & Poor's Average of 500 Industrials rose 73 per cent and dropped 23 per cent.

In any case both funds seem to have strong recovery potential and this would not be the opportune time to switch out of them.

Price Growth, with a quality portfolio, has a less dynamic but above-average performance record. However, with a sizable investment in this one fund already accumulated, I would suggest you hold what you now have and put new money into David L. Babson Investments for greater diversification.

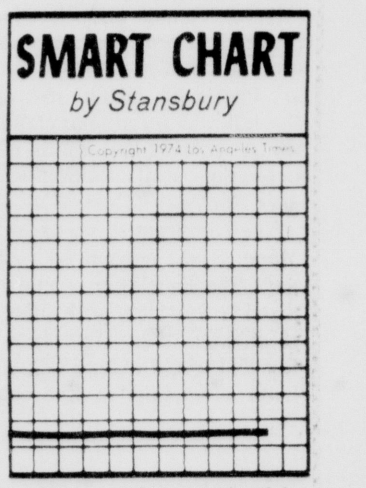
No stranger to BankAmericard, he was involved in helping develop the fledgling BankAmericard program for Bank of America between 1957 and 1961. He subsequently joined Foote, Cone and Belding in Los Angeles and for the past 10 years has been with Honig-Cooper & Harrington, Inc., in San Francisco where he was executive vice president.

DICK WILSON, the new vice president and general manager of J and B Ford in Corte Madera, announced that Jack Bradley of J and B Ford won an all-expense trip for two to Copenhagen, Amsterdam and Berlin for eight days in recognition of his outstanding sales efforts.

Bradley won the trip in a national sales contest sponsored by Ford during May and June. He has been a winner for the past four years, earning trips to London and Hawaii.



"Our real growth this year was internal."

READYING TAPE UNIT

Surrounded by strands and strands of wire, assembler Fernando Rodriguez is putting together a magnetic tape unit at the Xerox computer plant in El Segundo. When the seemingly unrelated wires are finally connected, the finished tape unit will store millions of bits of information for almost instantaneous processing.

Better Business Bureau Issues Warning On Firm

Maurice Rappaport, a man of many aliases and enterprises, is back in San Francisco after a mysterious absence of four years, the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco warned this week.

Donald W. Schwartz, president of the San Francisco BBB, identified Rappaport's latest enterprise as Excel Health Foods at 4754 Million Street, which is operating without a permit from the San Francisco Bureau of Environmental Health.

Investigation by the Better Business Bureau showed that receipts or sales slips were not always given, prices were switched either up, for the unsuspecting, or down, to get a sale, at the whim of Rappaport.

Schwartz reported that the BBB files on Rappaport date back to 1966 when he attempted to establish his AAA TV Appliances in Daly City.

"The Better Business Bureau of San Francisco has kept abreast of Rappaport, his aliases, activities and advertising, and has publicly advised consumers and newspapers that caution should be exercised in dealing with any firm owned or operated by Maurice Rappaport," said Schwartz. "The bureau is now again warning the public."

INFLATION

Economic Schools Divide On Solution

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Since the economy is the number one problem, President Gerald Ford's honeymoon isn't likely to have an indefinite run.

Eventually, if not immediately, he must decide on what anti-inflation course he will pursue. And that means he might offend large segments of economic society, despite his desire for cooperation and mutuality.

The schools of economic thinking today can be divided and subdivided more sharply than at almost any time in a decade or more. In the extreme, one side insists on an economic straightjacket, the other urges more freedom.

This division is partly the legacy of five years of experimentation that led the Nixon administration back to where it began — tight money, a spending holddown, a balanced budget.

Alan Greenspan, who was Nixon's choice to be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, exemplifies this thinking. Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve, does to a large degree. So does Herbert Stein, outgoing council chairman.

But those economists more identified with the Democrats, such as Walter Heller, Otto Eckstoen and James Tobin, all advisers in the Kennedy-Johnson years, disagree sharply.

They suggest that moderation, exceptions to the rule, special handling of sensitive issues such as housing — even a little experimentation — might still be called for, despite Nixon's failures in these directions.

Perseverance in a tight monetary-fiscal policy, they believe, might lead to social dislocations even more severe than those attributed to inflation, such as joblessness, financial disorder, recession.

In arriving at their conclusions, each side sometimes uses the same reasons as the other.

The Democratic economists argue that an overly tight monetary policy would bring more financial disorder.

Indications that the divisions are even more extreme can be gathered from the growing assumptions of some legislators, businessmen and others that the entire policy of tight money may be counterproductive.

This position is based on the assumption that inflation isn't domestically generated nearly so much as it is caused by foreign events, such as oil prices, over which tight money has no restraining impact at all.

President Ford is acclaimed for his ability to elicit cooperation from all parties, but if he can handle the anti-inflation program without offending great numbers of people, that acclaim will become awe.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $4.41 cents per fine ounce down 6 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $4.41 down 6 cents and fabricated silver at $452.0 down 6.2 cents.

Prices Move Irregularly On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices moved irregularly during the first two hours today on the New York Stock Exchange. Turnover was light.

Shortly before noon the Dow Jones industrial average had chalked up a skimpy gain.

The improvement in the Dow brought little cheer to analysts. Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton described it as a "half-hearted rally" which would have been more impressive with greater volume.

"There is still lots of caution around," Zinder commented.

Joe Generalis of Shearson, Hammill was similarly unimpressed. He said he saw "no significant" move in the stock market until around Labor Day, adding that the current bear market "still has much further to go."

The most active issue was Maremont Corp., followed by Union Carbide and AT&T.

Reynolds Metals, which doubled its quarterly dividend to 25 cents, added ⅜. PPG Industries, announcing a rise in caustic soda prices, slipped ¼.

ITT reacted briefly on the upside and Avis Corp. on the downside to news ITT is buying an additional $17.2 million of Avis stock. ITT, which has a major interest in Avis, also reported record quarterly and half year sales and earnings.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange turned easier in light trading. Most active issue was Giant Yellowknife Mines, off 1/2 to 14 1/2.

Hot Stock Cools But Should Improve

By ROGER E. SPEAR and
DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. I recently purchased 500 shares of Union Corp. (NYSE) at $7. What is your opinion on averaging down on this stock? — J.H.

A. This conglomerate, which reached a high of 25½ on its expected entry into the soft lens market in early 1972, has not as yet received clearance from the Food & Drug Administration for its product. While the shares may be held on a speculative basis, new commitments are not favored.

In line with most conglomerates, Union has expanded revenues via the acquisition route, a road that has mot led to increasing profitability. Discontinued operations contributed a one cent a share loss to operating earnings in fiscal 1973 and a 29-cent a share loss for disposal of these businesses in the March period. Cost reductions and cutbacks should eventually improve profitability.

Q. My purpose in acquiring mutual funds is long-term capital growth for retirement in 15 years. I hold Price Growth, Edie Special Growth and Nicholas Strong Fund. I add about $1,200 annually to the first two funds but I have not added to Nicholas Strong since I bought it two and a half years ago. If I sell now it will be at a loss. Should I switch any of these funds? — H.S.

A. Two of your funds, Edie and Strong, are speculative and thus highly volatile, exceeding market swings both in up and down markets. In the 18 months from June 1970 to December 1972, the performance for the latter was a 230 per cent gain, with Edie showing a 102 per cent rise. The subsequent declines (from 12/31/72 through 6/30/74 were 44 per cent for Edie and 62 per cent for Strong. By comparison, the Standard & Poor's Average of 500 Industrials rose 73 per cent and dropped 23 per cent.

In any case both funds seem to have strong recovery potential and this would not be the opportune time to switch out of them.

Price Growth, with a quality portfolio, has a less dynamic but above-average performance record. However, with a sizable investment in this one fund already accumulated, I would suggest you hold what you now have and put new money into David L. Babson Investments for greater diversification.

Young Law Offenders Hardening

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Youth Authority said yesterday its youthful offender population has become "older, harder and more delinquent-oriented" as local communities put state-financinced probation supervision programs to work.

In a report released by the CYA, figures showed that institution "wards" were being committed in greater numbers for violent crimes. Nearly 34 per cent of those committed in 1973 were for crimes like homicide, robbery and assault.

In addition, three times as many youths were carrying weapons when they were arrested in 1973 compared to 1965. And 28 per cent of the "wards," which now average 18 years of age, have used alcohol to excess.

"They're getting older, harder and more delinquent-oriented," said CYA spokesman Art German. "They are those from whom society needs protection."

German said the figures reflect local efforts to keep less serious offenders in the community where they are "more easily dealt with."

Under probation subsidy, counties in California are given funds to finance probation supervision programs so that youthful offenders not considered a threat to the public can be rehabilitated more effectively in the community where they go to school, work and live.

German said the subsidy program was created because of a "cycle of institution construction" that looked never ending.

"Now, we're not building institutions," he said. "We're leaving the institutions for those who need that type of supervision."

The report also showed that the number of young women sent to institutions had decreased from 15.8 per cent in 1965 to 8.1 per cent last year.

Criminal court commitments had also increased from 25 per cent in 1965 to 46 per cent in 1973, while the number from juvenile courts totaled less than one-third that figure.

Benefit Increase Agreement Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate and House negotiators have agreed on a 23 per cent increase in educational benefits for Vietnam era veterans, the biggest increase since World War II.

If the Senate and House approve the agreement, it will be sent to the White House. Former President Nixon indicated the bill was inflationary and he would veto it, but there is no indication what position President Ford will take.

The compromise was reached Monday and announced yesterday. The legislation would also provide veterans with loans to supplement their monthly benefits and would extend eligibility from 36 months to five school years.

Press Secretary Has Odd Name

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's new press secretary has a Dutch ancestry and a confusing spelling of his name.

Jerald F. terHorst says his relatives were split on how to spell the family name, and his father insisted on the lower case "t" as it is spelled in the Netherlands where his parents were born.

TerHorst said that his father was determined that his surname be spelled right after immigration authorities "bollixed up his first name."

His father's name was Jan and he was dubbed "John."

Today is Thursday, Aug. 15, the 227th day of 1974 with 138 to follow.

The moon is between the last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American novelist Edna Ferber was born Aug. 15, 1887.

On this day in history:

In 1914, an American ship passed from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, officially opening the Panama Canal.

In 1935, American humorist Will Rogers and pilot Wiley Post were killed when their plane crashed in Alaska.

In 1966, The New York Herald Tribune went out of business after 131 years of publication.

In 1871, President Nixon ordered a 90-day wage-price-rent freeze and announced imposition of a 10 per cent surcharge on foreign imports.

A thought for the day: British novelist George Meredith said, "Who rises from prayer a better man, his prayer is answered."

TYPICAL HAND

East's hand is typical of the opening three-bid. West had a pretty fair hand, but he never for a moment considered a further bid.

North had a normal, but minimum reopening double. South had to jump to game in his strong five-card suit, since a response of only three spades might well be based on a completely worthless hand. North would have to pass a timid bid of three spades.

West opened the king of diamonds and dummy won with the ace. Now declarer led a low trump from the dummy. It would have been fatal to lead the king of trumps first.

HIGH ODDS

East was known to have length in diamonds. The odds were very high that East was short in spades, perhaps even void.

This turned out to be the case. When East discarded a diamond, South played the ace of spades and returned a spade toward dummy. West put up the ten and dummy won with the king. Dummy then returned a low trump and South's seven of trumps forced out the queen.

CONTINUE SUIT

West led another diamond and East continued the suit. Nothing could stop South. He could draw the last trump, give up one trick to the ace of clubs, and take a finesse in hearts if necessary.

If declarer had begun the trumps by leading the king from dummy, he would have lost two trump tricks. The contract would then be doomed to defeat.

Ford Accepts Invitation From Japan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has accepted an invitation to visit Japan later this year, one that had already been accepted by former President Richard M. Nixon.

The White House and the Japanese Embassy announced the trip yesterday, but neither said how long the visit would be.

U.S. and Japanese officials speculated the trip, Ford's first announced foreign journey, would not take place until after the congressional elections in November. The Japanese invitation said only that Ford had agreed to come "before the end of the year, at the earliest opportunity agreeable to both sides."

Ford will become the first U.S. President to visit Japan while in office.

Ford Accepts Invitation From Japan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has accepted an invitation to visit Japan later this year, one that had already been accepted by former President Richard M. Nixon.

The White House and the Japanese Embassy announced the trip yesterday, but neither said how long the visit would be.

U.S. and Japanese officials speculated the trip, Ford's first announced foreign journey, would not take place until after the congressional elections in November. The Japanese invitation said only that Ford had agreed to come "before the end of the year, at the earliest opportunity agreeable to both sides."

Ford will become the first U.S. President to visit Japan while in office.

Crime Reporting Number 'Busy'

SEATTLE (UPI) — As soon as a gunman fled the coin shop managed by Mike Pittman, Pittman reached for his telephone and dialed the emergency police number, 911.

And what he got on the other end was a recording: "All our lines are busy. Please hold."

It turned out later that two witnesses had seen the hold-up in progress and called police, only to get the same recorded message.

Increase Seen In Hog Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pork prices will decline this fall at the farm level, at least, but probably will advance sharply next year because a short 1974 corn crop is sending livestock feed prices up, an Agriculture Department report indicated today.

The report said hog prices this summer will average in the middle $30 per hundredweight range, an increase from spring levels because production was down seasonally from the spring although above the unusually low level of last summer.

In the fall, prices will sink to the low $30 range because of a seasonal increase in hog slaughter and competition from expected bigger supplies of lowgrade beef, experts added.

Florida Beaches Forced To Close

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A fish-killing red tide in the Gulf of Mexico has driven hundreds of small sharks and sting rays toward shore, forcing the closing of at least two beaches.

Tourists and youngsters disregarded warnings in some areas and plunged into the surf to seize sharks by the tail and drag them onto the sand.

There were no reports of injuries from the sharks.

Non-Lawyer Judges Hit By Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Only judges who are attorneys may preside over criminal trials for offenses punishable by a jail sentence, the California Supreme Court ruled yesterday.

The court held unanimously that use of non-attorney judges in such cases violated the defendant's due process of law unless he had waived that right.

The ruling will apply only to trials which begin after the opinion is final in 30 days. The court ruled in the cases of Lewis Gordon, charged with disturbing the peace in Yuba City, and Santiago Arguijo, charged in Grover City with drunk driving.

Both men objected to being tried in justice court and claimed they had a right to be tried by a judge trained in the law. The Supreme Court agreed in an opinion written by Justice Louis H. Burke.

The court said that there was a reasonable likelihood that non-attorney judges would be unable to provide a fair trial to defendants facing jail sentences. It noted that although the judicial council gives a three-hour examination to non-attorney justice court judges, it is far less rigorous than a state bar examination.

"We also note the absence of any requirement of college or law school education in order to qualify as a justice court judge," the court said.

The opinion pointed out that non-attorney justice court judges may continue to function in civil cases and in criminal cases not involving a possible jail sentence. They may also serve in cases in which the defendant or his counsel waive the right to disqualify them.

Non-lawyers preside in 129 of the state's justice courts, located in 49 of the state's

President Names Aide To terHorst

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has chosen Justice Department information director John W. Hushen to be top assistant to Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst, UPI has learned.

Hushen, a veteran newsman, is to replace former President Nixon's deputy press secretary, Gerald L. Warren.

'Apple's Way' Will Change

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Apple was an incurable busybody with no visible means of support. His family on "Apple's Way" was so nice it was beyond belief.

The television series last season was unbelievable. It was too saccharine, too cute.

Of course, all of that would be immaterial if the show had been doing well in the ratings.

But it wasn't. It is running a poor third on Sunday nights to "The Wonderful World of Disney" and "The FBI."

John Furia realized this when he was brought in as producer in April. And this fall "Apple's Way" will be different — from characterizations to the camera work.

"The elements and the actors obviously were appealing to the audience," he said. "Yet everyone agreed there were flaws in the show."

His assignment was to pinpoint the flaws and eliminate them before the series went into production for the fall season.

Furia, 44, had been a writer much of his career and is the president of the Writers Guild of America. He previously produced "Kung Fu" and had been an associate producer in the earlier days of live TV.

Furia's immediate remedy was to establish a believable base for the show. He gave George Apple a job as a minority owner of the newspaper to provide a reason for his becoming involved with people.

He took away the look of affluence, and he put in the normal conflicts of family life. They will not be at each other's throats but they will bicker and argue.

"Apple's Way" was the first response to the success of "The Waltons." It sought to capitalize on its low-key drama and warm family appeal. The show was, in fact, created by Earl Hamner of "The Waltons."

CBS gave Lorimar Productions the go-ahead for the show on Nov. 1. It was rushed into production without a pilot, with little preparation and the cameras began to roll almost as soon as the first page of the script came out of the typewriter.

That haste was immediately evident on the screen when the show premiered Feb. 10. The show, plainly, was out of focus. The writers were not sure what direction to take. uncertain whether they were writing for "The Waltons" or "Father Knows Best."

Furia sat through all 13 shows, looked through the scripts to see how the material translated to the screen, then sat and brooded for a few days.

His conclusion was that the show had an air of unreality.

"It wavered on a tightrope between a warm family drama and a sitcom — in the worst sense of the word, jokes," he said. "The show had not found itself, which is a character drama. To do that you have to make people real."

The way the show is photographed was changed, too.

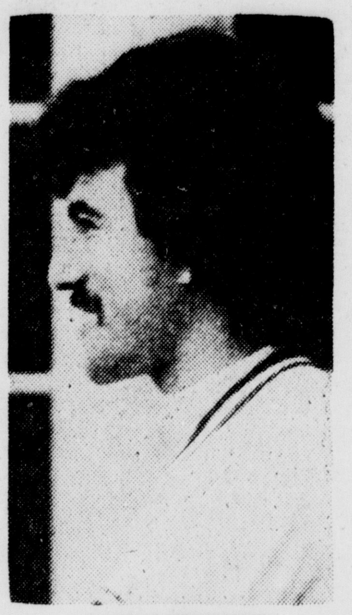
"Before, I thought it looked like a situation comedy," Furia said. "The scenes were flatly lighted. The show was shot in a series of closeups, from one person to the next, like in a comedy.

"You stage and photograph a character drama differently. There are subtle things that people may not be aware of, but they are aware of the results."

WITHOUT FANFARE

Integration Effort Proves Successful

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service



JACK LITOWSKY
Getting results

MINNEAPOLIS — Not all school-integration efforts are massive and elaborate. High school speech and drama teacher Jack Litowsky is getting results his own way — on a small scale and without fanfare.

Combining the talents of students from two schools in two vastly different communities, Litowsky has succeeded in racially mixing both actors and audiences for the first time at Edison High here.

His project is called "School and Community Theater Two" — meaning two schools, two communities, two plays. The schools are Edison High, devoid of black students, and neighboring North High, which has a 38 per cent minority-group enrollment, most of whom are black.

For years the two communities, though not in active conflict, have suffered from racial misunderstanding. When pictures from the plays appeared in the Edison yearbook, it was the first time in the school's history that black faces peered out from its pages.

"The barricades that have been broken down are truly incredible," says Litowsky, a teacher of 14 years — the past 10 at Edison — who, coincidentally, is a North High graduate of 20 years ago.

In 1971 Litowsky did "Dark of the Moon" and involved people from the community in technical areas. It worked well. About this time people began talking of improving the transition between junior and senior high school. Also, Litowsky began thinking about a northeast community theater.

"All these forces were working together in my mind," he says. "But then — and most important — the city's school-desegregation ruling took effect, and Edison was not included in the plans. I began to think that maybe a play could be a device for integration."

It was touchy ground. The concept of two schools from two racially diverse communities and one play, let alone two, was not looked upon as a great idea whose time had come. "Risky," "courting disaster," "unrealistic," and even "nontraditional" were some of the reasons used by the school administration to refuse funding and support for the program.

Hearing about the Governor's Council on Quality Education, Mr. Litowsky drafted a proposal and sent it off, hoping the council, just two years old and innovative in purpose, would be interested.

It was. Of 227 proposals received, Mr. Litowsky's was one of eight — and the only performing-arts program — funded for 1973-74.

With a $9,000 grant, Litowsky and company (drama teacher Roger Mahn from North High was his associate) set about putting together a cast and crew for the first production, given last December.

The play they chose was "The Me Nobody Knows," a successful rock musical written by a group of inner-city black children in New York.

People came, and not just from the North and Edison communities but from suburban areas as well. More than 1,000 people saw the productions at both schools, and the post-play reactions were 100 per cent favorable.

In April the second play, "Lilies of the Field," was presented on the same basis, three performances at North and three at Edison. and again the public responded with enthusiasm.

Success also was indicated by the fact that one cast member who attended classes irregularly at North never missed a rehearsal or a performance and now attends classes regularly.

"It's been beautiful to watch," Litowsky comments. "You must remember that many of them (Edison students) had never encountered blacks before and have backgrounds steeped in Archie Bunkerism. The eventual give-and-take interchange was marvelous. They all seemed to adopt the attitude, 'It's how you do your job, not who does it.' "

Fire Damage Set At $250,000

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Fire of undetermined origin did an estimated $250,000 damage to a packing shed and two small offices owned by Maricopa Packing Co. 20 miles northwest of here yesterday.

There were no injuries reported although the area had to be evacuated for two hours for fear that a 500 gallon tank car near the shed containing explosive anhydrous ammonia might explode.

The chemical is used to cool lettuce.

Crime Reporting Number 'Busy'

SEATTLE (UPI) — As soon as a gunman fled the coin shop managed by Mike Pittman, Pittman reached for his telephone and dialed the emergency police number, 911.

And what he got on the other end was a recording: "All our lines are busy. Please hold."

It turned out later that two witnesses had seen the hold-up in progress and called police, only to get the same recorded message.

Increase Seen In Hog Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pork prices will decline this fall at the farm level, at least, but probably will advance sharply next year because a short 1974 corn crop is sending livestock feed prices up, an Agriculture Department report indicated today.

The report said hog prices this summer will average in the middle $30 per hundredweight range, an increase from spring levels because production was down seasonally from the spring although above the unusually low level of last summer.

In the fall, prices will sink to the low $30 range because of a seasonal increase in hog slaughter and competition from expected bigger supplies of lowgrade beef, experts added.

Florida Beaches Forced To Close

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A fish-killing red tide in the Gulf of Mexico has driven hundreds of small sharks and sting rays toward shore, forcing the closing of at least two beaches.

Tourists and youngsters disregarded warnings in some areas and plunged into the surf to seize sharks by the tail and drag them onto the sand.

There were no reports of injuries from the sharks.

Non-Lawyer Judges Hit By Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Only judges who are attorneys may preside over criminal trials for offenses punishable by a jail sentence, the California Supreme Court ruled yesterday.

The court held unanimously that use of non-attorney judges in such cases violated the defendant's due process of law unless he had waived that right.

The ruling will apply only to trials which begin after the opinion is final in 30 days. The court ruled in the cases of Lewis Gordon, charged with disturbing the peace in Yuba City, and Santiago Arguijo, charged in Grover City with drunk driving.

Both men objected to being tried in justice court and claimed they had a right to be tried by a judge trained in the law. The Supreme Court agreed in an opinion written by Justice Louis H. Burke.

The court said that there was a reasonable likelihood that non-attorney judges would be unable to provide a fair trial to defendants facing jail sentences. It noted that although the judicial council gives a three-hour examination to non-attorney justice court judges, it is far less rigorous than a state bar examination.

"We also note the absence of any requirement of college or law school education in order to qualify as a justice court judge," the court said.

The opinion pointed out that non-attorney justice court judges may continue to function in civil cases and in criminal cases not involving a possible jail sentence. They may also serve in cases in which the defendant or his counsel waive the right to disqualify them.

Non-lawyers preside in 129 of the state's justice courts, located in 49 of the state's

President Names Aide To terHorst

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has chosen Justice Department information director John W. Hushen to be top assistant to Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst, UPI has learned.

Hushen, a veteran newsman, is to replace former President Nixon's deputy press secretary, Gerald L. Warren.

'Apple's Way' Will Change

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Apple was an incurable busybody with no visible means of support. His family on "Apple's Way" was so nice it was beyond belief.

The television series last season was unbelievable. It was too saccharine, too cute.

Of course, all of that would be immaterial if the show had been doing well in the ratings. But it wasn't. It is running a poor third on Sunday nights to "The Wonderful World of Disney" and "The FBI."

John Furia realized this when he was brought in as producer in April. And this fall "Apple's Way" will be different — from characterizations to the camera work.

"The elements and the actors obviously were appealing to the audience," he said. "Yet everyone agreed there were flaws in the show."

His assignment was to pinpoint the flaws and eliminate them before the series went into production for the fall season.

Furia, 44, had been a writer much of his career and is the president of the Writers Guild of America. He previously produced "Kung Fu" and had been an associate producer in the earlier days of live TV.

Furia's immediate remedy was to establish a believable base for the show. He gave George Apple a job as a minority owner of the newspaper to provide a reason for his becoming involved with people.

He took away the look of affluence, and he put in the normal conflicts of family life. They will not be at each other's throats but they will bicker and argue.

"Apple's Way" was the first response to the success of "The Waltons." It sought to capitalize on its low-key drama and warm family appeal. The show was, in fact, created by Earl Hamner of "The Waltons."

CBS gave Lorimar Productions the go-ahead for the show on Nov. 1. It was rushed into production without a pilot, with little preparation and the cameras began to roll almost as soon as the first page of the script came out of the typewriter.

That haste was immediately evident on the screen when the show premiered Feb. 10. The show, plainly, was out of focus. The writers were not sure what direction to take. uncertain whether they were writing for "The Waltons" or "Father Knows Best."

Furia sat through all 13 shows, looked through the scripts to see how the material translated to the screen, then sat and brooded for a few days.

His conclusion was that the show had an air of unreality.

"It wavered on a tightrope between a warm family drama and a sitcom — in the worst sense of the word, jokes," he said. "The show had not found itself, which is a character drama. To do that you have to make people real."

The way the show is photographed was changed, too.

"Before, I thought it looked like a situation comedy," Furia said. "The scenes were flatly lighted. The show was shot in a series of closeups, from one person to the next, like in a comedy.

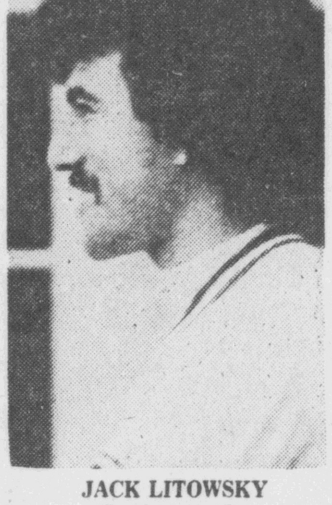
"You stage and photograph a character drama differently. There are subtle things that people may not be aware of, but they are aware of the results."

WITHOUT FANFARE

Integration Effort Proves Successful

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MINNEAPOLIS — Not all school-integration efforts are massive and elaborate. High school speech and drama teacher Jack Litowsky is getting results his own way — on a small scale and without fanfare.



JACK LITOWSKY
Getting results

Combining the talents of students from two schools in two vastly different communities, Litowsky has succeeded in racially mixing both actors and audiences for the first time at Edison High here.

His project is called "School and Community Theater Two" — meaning two schools, two communities, two plays. The schools are Edison High, devoid of black students, and neighboring North High, which has a 38 per cent minority-group enrollment, most of whom are black.

For years the two communities, though not in active conflict, have suffered from racial misunderstanding. When pictures from the plays appeared in the Edison yearbook, it was the first time in the school's history that black faces peered out from its pages.

"The barricades that have been broken down are truly incredible," says Litowsky, a teacher of 14 years — the past 10 at Edison — who, coincidentally, is a North High graduate of 20 years ago.

In 1971 Litowsky did "Dark of the Moon" and involved people from the community in technical areas. It worked well. About this time people began talking of improving the transition between junior and senior high school. Also, Litowsky began thinking about a northeast community theater.

"All these forces were working together in my mind," he says. "But then — and most important — the city's school-desegregation ruling took effect, and Edison was not included in the plans. I began to think that maybe a play could be a device for integration."

It was touchy ground. The concept of two schools from two racially diverse communities and one play, let alone two, was not looked upon as a great idea whose time had come. "Risky," "courting disaster," "unrealistic," and even "nontraditional" were some of the reasons used by the school administration to refuse funding and support for the program.

Hearing about the Governor's Council on Quality Education, Mr. Litowsky drafted a proposal and sent it off, hoping the council, just two years old and innovative in purpose, would be interested.

It was. Of 227 proposals received, Mr. Litowsky's was one of eight — and the only performing-arts program — funded for 1973-74.

With a $9,000 grant, Litowsky and company (drama teacher Roger Mahn from North High was his associate) set about putting together a cast and crew for the first production, given last December.

The play they chose was "The Me Nobody Knows," a successful rock musical written by a group of inner-city black children in New York.

People came, and not just from the North and Edison communities but from suburban areas as well. More than 1,000 people saw the productions at both schools, and the post-play reactions were 100 per cent favorable.

In April the second play, "Lilies of the Field," was presented on the same basis, three performances at North and three at Edison. and again the public responded with enthusiasm.

Success also was indicated by the fact that one cast member who attended classes irregularly at North never missed a rehearsal or a performance and now attends classes regularly.

"It's been beautiful to watch," Litowsky comments. "You must remember that many of them (Edison students) had never encountered blacks before and have backgrounds steeped in Archie Bunkerism. The eventual give-and-take interchange was marvelous. They all seemed to adopt the attitude, 'It's how you do your job, not who does it.' "

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Fire of undetermined origin did an estimated $250,000 damage to a packing shed and two small offices owned by Maricopa Packing Co. 20 miles northwest of here yesterday.

There were no injuries reported although the area had to be evacuated for two hours for fear that a 500 gallon tank car near the shed containing explosive anhydrous ammonia might explode.

POINT REYES SEASHORE RIDE

Touch Of Heaven On Horseback

By MARY LEYDECKER

Out of the car they piled, a group of Californians and their Boston visitors, looking forward to a ride through the Point Reyes National Seashore either with confidence or trepidation, depending on their views of horses.

As the horses were bridled, comments like, "Where's the ignition?" and "I want a spirited horse," floated through the crisp afternoon air.

The horses, though, from one of the two stables near the park's entrance, seemed to have heard before all the old jokes of beginning riders plus the bragging of the more experienced ones.

They stood unperturbed, swishing away a few flies, as they awaited their daily exercise.

Riding the trails at the seashore may not be exactly the sport of kings, but as the group on a recent afternoon found out, it's a delightful way to view the meadows, creeks, flora and fauna and breeze-swept vistas of the park.

Riders may bring their own horses, according to Leroy Brock, the head ranger, or rent from one of the two stables on Bear Valley Road off Shoreline Highway near Olema.

The rules are few, he said — horsemen are advised to use common sense and courtesy when meeting hikers and to stay on the trails. On weekends Bear Valley trail is closed to stock, he said, but riders may choose the alternate fire trail, a beautiful ride among the trees and ferns to the top of the hill.

That was the trail chosen for a two-hour ride by guide Bruce Rich for the California-Massachusetts group and a couple of other riders.

The three Bostonians were not horsemen, as they quickly revealed. The two girls wore sandals on their bare feet ("we thought we were coming to sunny California and we wouldn't need shoes," one said. Their male companion also indicated his riding had been extremely limited.

They were accompanied by two young men from Marin and Sonoma, who assured them there would be no problem with "these horses," and he was right.

Soon the group, under the direction of Rich, a former office worker who recently answered an ad for a "stable person," was off. (Rich remarked in passing that he has found the outdoor life at the stables to his liking and plans to stay on.)

Once inside the park, he led the riders onto a path through a grassy meadow, where those who wished could trot or gallop their horses. The horses, who earlier had seemed unlikely to wish to move from their sleepy positions at the hitching post, responded to kicks and were off.

Soon the trail divided, and the group headed up the fire road. The trail was clearly marked through the bowers of ferns and trees — the scenery entrancing both the Californians and the out-of-staters.

"You'd never see air like this in Los Angeles," one remarked.

At the top of the hill, there was a pleasant rest stop on a flat grassy open space. The horses munched contentedly while the riders stretched out, looking off toward the oncoming fog from the ocean.

Rich explained that a longer ride takes one down to the beach, where a picnic is a delightful possibility.

Soon it was time to head down again, taking down the hillside, a trail which the horses knew well, across a creek, through the meadow and back to the stables.

"How did you like your horse?" asked a youngster riding out to meet the group.

Assured that all had gone well, he seemed pleased and rode on ahead. Like most of those who live near the park, he takes a proprietary interest in the beauty of the place.

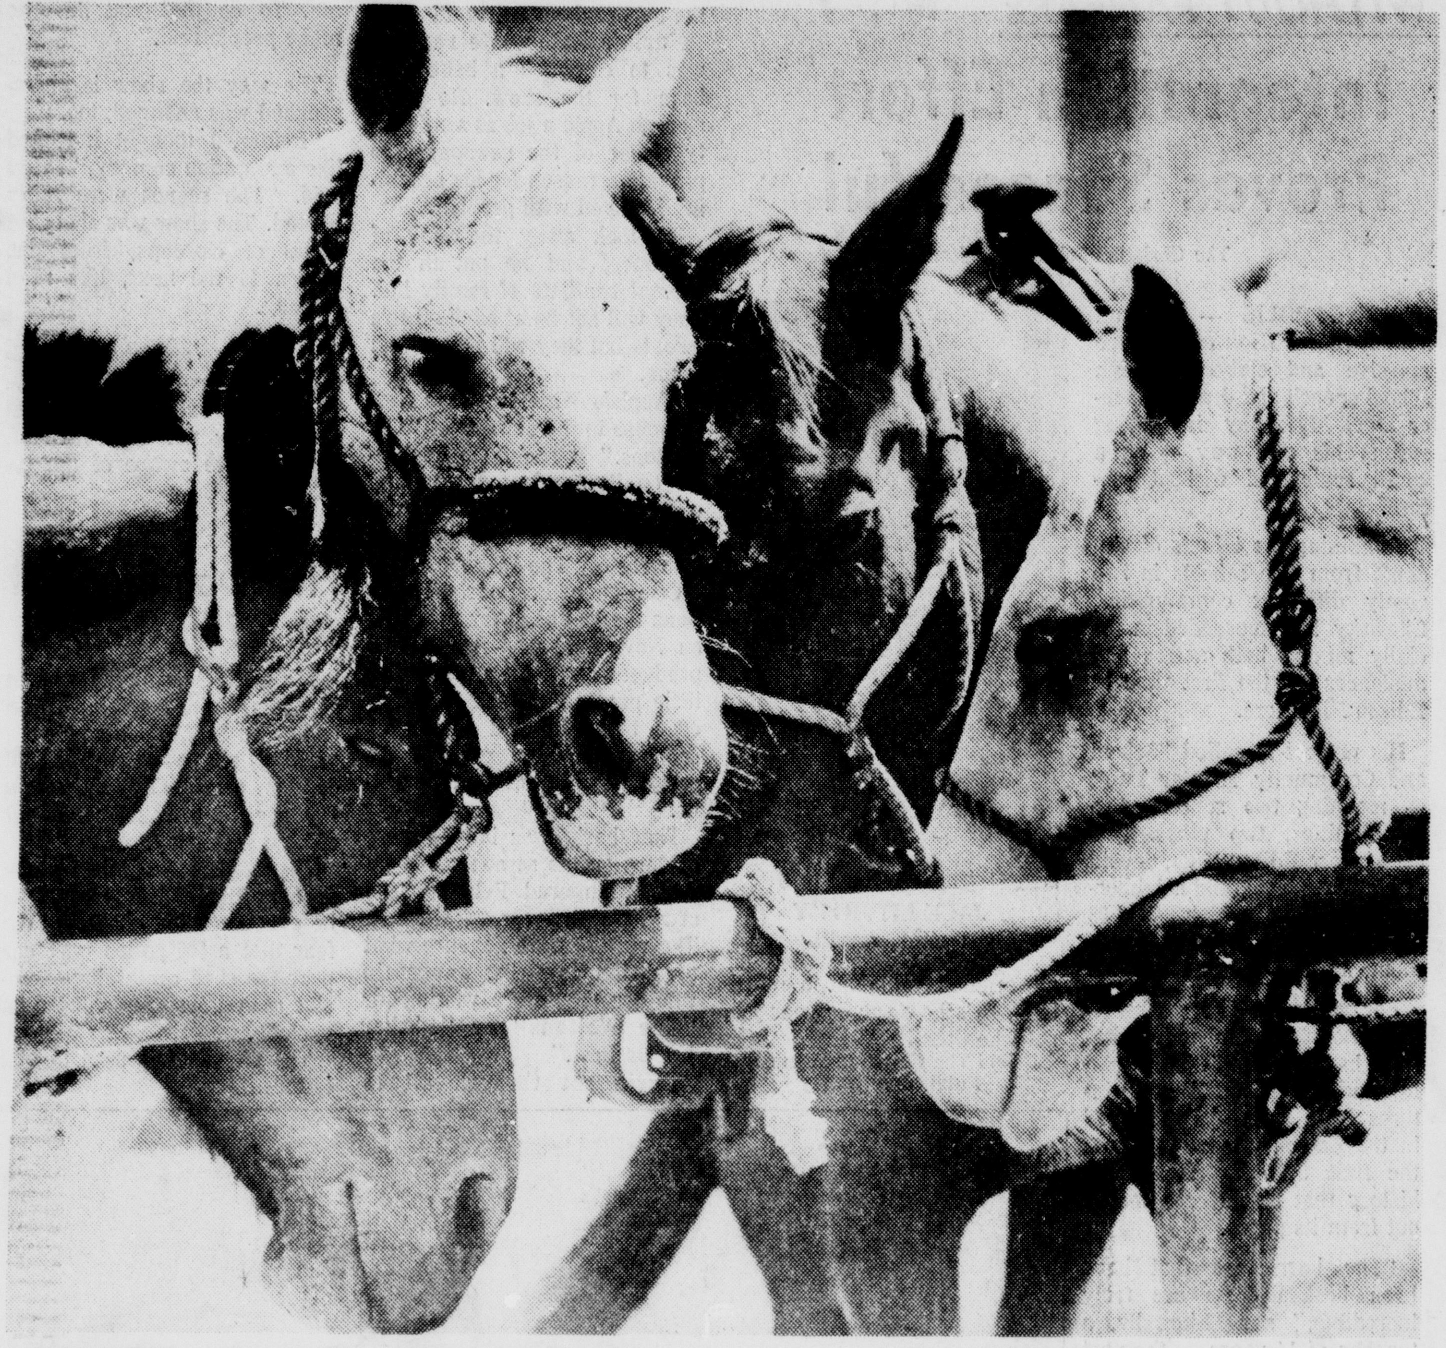
The afternoon ride to the top of the hill had taken close to three hours, but those whose pocketbooks or physiques are limited, can choose rides as short as an hour.

The stable fees are $4 for the first hour and $3.50 for each additional hour or $18 a day, and reservations are recommended on weekends.

Those who have their own horses can park trailers at the park entrance and ride from there, ranger Brock said. Riders can even camp overnight if they get the necessary free permits.

Climbing down off her horse, one of the girls from Massachusetts pronounced the ride a success.

"That was fun — and maybe I won't even be sore tomorrow," she said.



BUDDIES — Four horses from a stable near the Point Reyes National Seashore nuzzle together, contentedly dozing in the afternoon sun. Accustomed to being mounted by those who can ride and those who can't, they come alive when headed up the familiar park trails.

(Photos by Alfred M. Arn)

Funds Clear Panel For Computer Center

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Compromise legislation appropriating nearly $4 million and getting consolidation of the state's controversial computer center "back on the road" was approved yesterday by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The measures (AB4501-4502) by Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, passed the powerful committee 11-5.

One measure would appropriate $3.9 million to the Teale Data Center to include the sprawling Department of Motor Vehicles in the consolidated state computer complex, installed by International Business Machines (IBM).

The other bill would allow the DMV to transfer another $6 million from its budget to the center for the consolidation program.

Officials for DMV said if the legislation passes both the Assembly and Senate and signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan it could mean that California could be on staggered automobile registration by 1976.

The computerized registration program — which would stagger motor vehicle registration over 12 months — has been delayed because of computer installation problems.

The legislature earlier trimmed millions of dollars from Reagan's 1974-75 budget for the proposed computer consolidation program. The funds were designed to include DMV within the computer facility — which already serves more than 30 agencies and departments.

"I think the legislation puts the show back on the road," said Frank Walton, secretary of the Business and Transportation Agency, which includes the DMV.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post said presently there are some $8 million in claims against the state by IBM and another $4 million in claims against IBM by the state over the controversial contract with the computer company.

The Reagan administration has been pushing for the consolidation saying it would save the state money in the long run because of full utilization of computer equipment.

Livermore Growth Plan Challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal suit was on file yesterday against the City of Livermore, challenging its policies and ordinances that allegedly limit growth of the city.

The suit, similar to one successfully prosecuted against Petaluma, was filed by the Associated Building Industry of Northern California.

It claimed Livermore has adopted ordinances and regulations that "place burdens" on new residential construction and are designed to reduce the possible population of Livermore from 70,000 to 58,000.

The contractors said the Livermore City Council passed an ordinance in 1971 that required a written school board statement that there would be adequate school facilities before tentative subdivision maps could be approved.

Such a statement would be provided only on payment of $800 for each residential unit, the suit said, meaning a price increase that falls only on new home buyers and not on existing residents.

The suit said also that the council adopted an ordinance limiting issuance of residential permits to 1,500 per year.

The suit also charged the city with adopting excessive and arbitrary fees for construction of residential units and refusing to annex land that could be used for home development.

The city also rezoned a large part of Livermore from residential to agriculture.

Earlier this year U.S. District Judge Lloyd H. Burke declared unconstitutional an ordinance of the city of Petaluma limiting new housing units to 500 a year. He said this violated the constitutional right to travel.

West Marin Scenes To Be Displayed

Oil paintings depicting West Marin scenes by Sather Bruguiere of Inverness Park will be displayed in a special showing Aug. 25 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Sandcastle Gallery in Point Reyes Station.

The paintings then will be on exhibit at the gallery through Sept. 22. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

The suit also charged the city with adopting excessive and arbitrary fees for construction of residential units and refusing to annex land that could be used for home development.

The city also rezoned a large part of Livermore from residential to agriculture.

Earlier this year U.S. District Judge Lloyd H. Burke declared unconstitutional an ordinance of the city of Petaluma limiting new housing units to 500 a year. He said this violated the constitutional right to travel.

A Pirate Trove May Lie Under New England Town

By COLIN STEWART
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LYNN, Mass. — The City of Lynn has housing problems, a rent-control controversy, arson investigations, and — perhaps — a buried pirate treasure.

An early history of Lynn tells of a pirate named Thomas Veal who was buried, along with his treasure, in a 1658 earthquake.

Many attempts have been made to find the treasure. Some people have relied on so-called clairvoyants, others on metal detectors to guide them to the legendary gold.

The most famous treasure-seeker, Hiram Marble, spent almost 30 years, starting in the 1850's, digging a tunnel 135 feet long.

This fall two Lynn Park Department employees plan an attempt, using a new theory about the location of the treasure cave.

Traditionally, the site of the pirate's home and cave was a rocky promontory in Lynn Woods. Veal is said to have moved there when he was chased from the coast by British troops.

After his sudden demise — trapped in his cave when one of New England's rare earthquakes occurred — the promontory was named Dungeon Rock.

There Hiram Marble dug a long, winding tunnel, believing he was directed by the ghost of Thomas Veal.

Unfortunately for Marble, the supposed route to the treasure was not straight, since he recorded in a book that his ghosts told him, "We have a reason for keeping you from entering the cave at once."

The result of Marble's digging and blasting with dynamite is a long, twisting tunnel, with metal stairs near the entrance, then a downward spiral to the right, a turn to the left, a steep slope down, then another twist to the left, ending in a pool of muddy water.

The tunnel was opened to tourists, for a fee, by Marble's daughter, who was impoverished by her father's expensive digging.

Now the land is owned by the City of Lynn and is frequently visited by schoolchildren who ride their bicycles to Dungeon Rock, carrying flashlights to explore the tunnel.

The new search for the treasure this fall will not take place in the tunnel, but at a nearby spot that the searchers think fits the description of Thomas Veal's home.

Robert Benson, Lynn's park planner, explains that he and a friend have built a large, homemade detector that can sense metal buried as deep as 20 feet. They will spend only part of a weekend in their search, he says, compared to the 30 years that Hiram Marble spent.

The story of the treasure could be entirely false, notes Susan Eastwood, associate director of the Lynn Historical Society.

The writer who included the tale of Thomas Veal in his history of Lynn refused to reveal his sources to a later historian, she explains.

Even the legend does not clearly state that Thomas Veal kept a treasure in his cave. It only mentions an earlier episode when Veal and three other pirates traded silver for iron shackles and handcuffs from the Saugus Ironworks.

The treasure, if it exists, may lie hidden until another of those rare New England earthquakes comes along and "unburies" it.

SEARCH FOR TREASURE — A boy with a flashlight stands at the top of Hiram Marble's staris, which may lead to the fabled treasure of pirate Thomas Veal. Veal was buried, supposedly along with his treasure, somewhere in the caves near Lynn, Mass., during a freak earthquake in 1658. Folks search for the booty still.

ADD SEASONING — Violins hang exposed to the elements for seasoning as part of the long process by which they are made.

VIOLIN EXPERT SAYS

America Needs Good Luthiers

By NORA E. TAYLOR
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

What this country needs is a good — school of luthiers.

What are luthiers? Violin (and lute) makers and repairers, that's what. Craftsmen who can recognize raw wood that will eventually give out those lyrical tones one associates with the best in violins; or who can repair and keep well tuned a Stradivarius, Guarnerius, Amati, or other great instruments from the past.

George Humphrey, himself a self-taught and much-sought craftsman in this field — is one of those moving towards founding such a school for luthiers in Pennsylvania. Humphrey, first of all, is viola player of many years standing with the Boston Symphony. But because he has developed the know how to deal with fine instruments, he is much sought for his healing ways with a string holder, a bridge, a fingerboard, or other violin parts.

Humphrey said, "I put together an instrument which had been run over by a truck into about 250 pieces. I thought how much easier to make from scratch. Now I have made eight instruments and 25 bows. I have learned what makes it sound good.

"A school of the East Coast," he then disclosed, "is already incorporated in Pennsylvania. Now we are seeking funding from a foundation. (The new school) will not only teach the making of violins but all the fine art which goes with maintaining them. Hopefully, also, we will establish a filing system of where the fine violins are and their history. They could be on display and people would have great examples to look at."

As a first step the University of New Hampshire is organized two violin workshops that were held July 15-19 and 22-26 during the Tanglewood season on the Durham campus. Karl Roy, director of the Mittenwald School of East Germany (violinmakers) conducted the meetings.

Most orchestras, Humphrey pointed out, try to own fine old Italian instruments. They take so long to mature into mellow sound that buying the old ones is the best way to get the finest.

For instance, take Guarneri del Jesu's violins. "His took 60 to 70 years to find their ultimate tone. Other instruments play-in in five or 10 years. Some made today will sound immediately, but they may fall into pieces in a few years. It is better to choose a fine (new) instrument and hope you will live to see it played-in."

He owns a Landolfi from Italy which is 200 years old. It was owned by Charles Martin Loeffler for 40 years, and "I have had it since 1937. I have owned 40 instruments all told."

It is history of that sort that the new school might well record, plus perhaps the fabulous prices fabulous violins fetch each time they come to market.

Humphrey, since that first violin disaster proved to be a disguised blessing, has traveled all over Italy finding violinmakers, and has imported instruments to the United States. "Four years ago," he said, "I made a documentary film on how many parts to a violin, for museums, universities, and high schools. I was asked to go to Europe and investigate violinmaking schools in Cremona, Mittenwald, Brienz."

Do you know, he asked, what goes into making a violin? "You take one piece of wood and match it up with another piece of wood.

"Maple, spruce, pine are the woods mostly used. Maple came to be accepted as the finest. It's maple that comes from Yugoslavia. It has to be seasoned at least 10 years. The wood is cut in January or February before the sap begins to run. It is shipped all over the world, but not until it has aged, usually where it's cut."

In an East Coast school devoted to study of the violin, "there could be experimentation with American woods," he felt.

Meanwhile, as the American Society for the Advancement of Violinmaking with headquarters at 2010 Two Penn Center Plaza, Philadelphia, Pa., 19102, plugs away with plans for the workshops, Humphrey feels increasing confidence that the craft he loves — second only to playing his instrument — will indeed find apprentices and eventually skilled craftsmen in this country, too.

And when you think of the thousands of string players in the country, who either own or hope to own, fine instruments, the need for luthiers becomes obvious.

Workmen Taking Their Time On It

LONDON (AP) — Christine Woodley didn't pay much attention when workmen started digging a hole in the street outside her home in the Wapping district of London four years ago.

But they're still digging. They've been digging the same hole, filling it up and then digging it again for four years.

Mrs. Woodley said the workmen "told me they were searching for a gully pipe which drains away the water. They have been looking for it for four years and still haven't found it. I wonder they don't give up."

Said neighbor Mrs. Esther Terry: "every time it rains I'm flooded out. After four years I've given up complaining. The water has nowhere to go and it is just pumped back up the pipes, flooding our apartments."

Their Bunco Ploys Don't Work On Honest People

By DAN McLEAN
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — "I'm a thief. I'm a good thief. I'm probably one of the best thieves in the United States.

"When I get out of prison, I'll still be a thief."

Police Detective C.L. Sanders is quoting a man he arrested a few years ago. The man escaped and was rearrested in another state. Extradited, he and Sanders became — to an extent — friends as they traveled first from the East to California, then back again.

"He told me that while in prison back East he had come up with an idea for a new con. I asked him what it was. He said, 'No way.' He planned to use it when he got out."

The man still is in prison in the East and he faces a five-year term in California.

After that, his new con may be learned — from experience. But for now, Sanders can't worry about it. There are too many cons going on right now.

Sanders worked fraud-bunco some years ago, but switched to auto theft. Recently he got back into fraud-bunco.

"I just get back," he says, "and what's the first case I get? Slow-walking."

Slow-walking refers to the end of the particular caper. It's not as famous as the pigeon-drop. Nor, in the field, as familiar as the similar "rock in the box" — involving the sale of a new television carton which winds up containing either rocks or a used, nonworking television set.

But slow-walking is going on.

There was a case June 14, another June 19, and a third June 29, all in suburban Torrance. Another popped up recently in nearby San Pedro.

"This one," says Sanders, looking at a stack of files, "is for $3,800. This one is for $2,000. And this one is for $450."

The scam — worked on large companies — usually works this way: The phone man makes contact with an employee, offering a television set at a reduced price, saying a large company is overstocked. Later he asks if any friends are interested, saying the company needs to rid itself of the sets for tax and inventory purposes.

A meeting place is arranged. The con artist takes the cash in advance — naturally, only cash is accepted — then walks toward the company's loading dock, ostensibly to load the sets onto a truck for delivery.

He just keeps walking which brought about the police term, "slow-walking."

Sanders says the victim is usually embarrassed. So much so, in fact, that he estimates there are at least twice as many incidents as are reported.

The same scam, Sanders says, can be worked with things other than television sets. It is used for bulk liquor sales, for instance.

People are constantly fooled. And there is no excuse.

"They normally claim to be selling Zenith sets," Sanders says. "And let's face it, Zenith television sets are fair-trade items. They cannot be sold below a certain price, except during factory sales.

"Also, two of the three here have gone down at Montgomery Ward. They sell their own product. They don't even carry Zenith."

Sanders says people should be aware of anyone offering something for nothing. If it helps, he says there are three rings known to be operating and accents can be a tip. One group is from Boston, one from New York, and a third from Florida.

When something is offered for nothing, the police should be contacted.

Still, he sees the warning as wishful thinking to an extent.

He's thinking of his friend in prison. The guy told Sanders he makes $30,000 a month on the outside and has no plans to change occupations. But he told him something else:

"He said bunco schemes don't work on honest people."

Puppets, Magic And More At Hobby Tree

Mike Blumberg and Bessie Lazzareno as the Mandrake puppeteers will perform several original puppet plays aimed at both children and adults on the Mall in front of the Hobby Tree tomorrow and Saturday.

These puppeteers design their own puppets and scenery as well as write and produce their own shows.

Free shows will be presented at 1:00 and 3:00 p.m. both days.

In addition, local magician Don Seitz will perform a magic show at 6:00 p.m. Friday Aug. 16, and 1:00 p.m. Sunday Aug. 18 in front of the Hobby Tree. Though still a teen, Don is a seasoned performer, displaying his tricks at the Straw Hat Pizza Parlor on Sunday nights as well as at the Hobby Tree, where he is a staff member.

A third attraction, Marv Thomas — better known professionally as Peanuts the Magical Clown — will appear on the Mall Saturday Aug. 17 between 1 and 3 p.m. Peanuts has been in existence longer than Marv wants to admit.

Recent shows and manufacturers catalogs indicate that the old favorites are being produced again. Bob Williamson, vice president of Hobby Tree Inc. reported that Lindberg is again producing its once top selling Biology — Physiology series including the old teaching favorites, "The Living Cell", "The Operating Pumping Heart", the "Operating Breathing Man", as well as the "Visible Head," the "Human Brain", the "Eye", Nose, and "Ear" Models as well as many more. These kits were very popular a few years back and until now, have not been readily available.

The turn of the century art of making paper models of castles trains, ships, balloons, European villages etc, is currently having a re-discovered boom for the adults and a new found, easy to handle, inexpensive hobby for the younger folk. Skill levels vary and many a pleasant hour or several can be spent with a cardboard model, a pair of sharp scissors and some fast drying glue.

Williamson also said that basket weaving kits and chair kits have been popular with the youth groups at camp this summer and several customers were taking advantage of the Hobby Tree's stock to continue this craft at home.

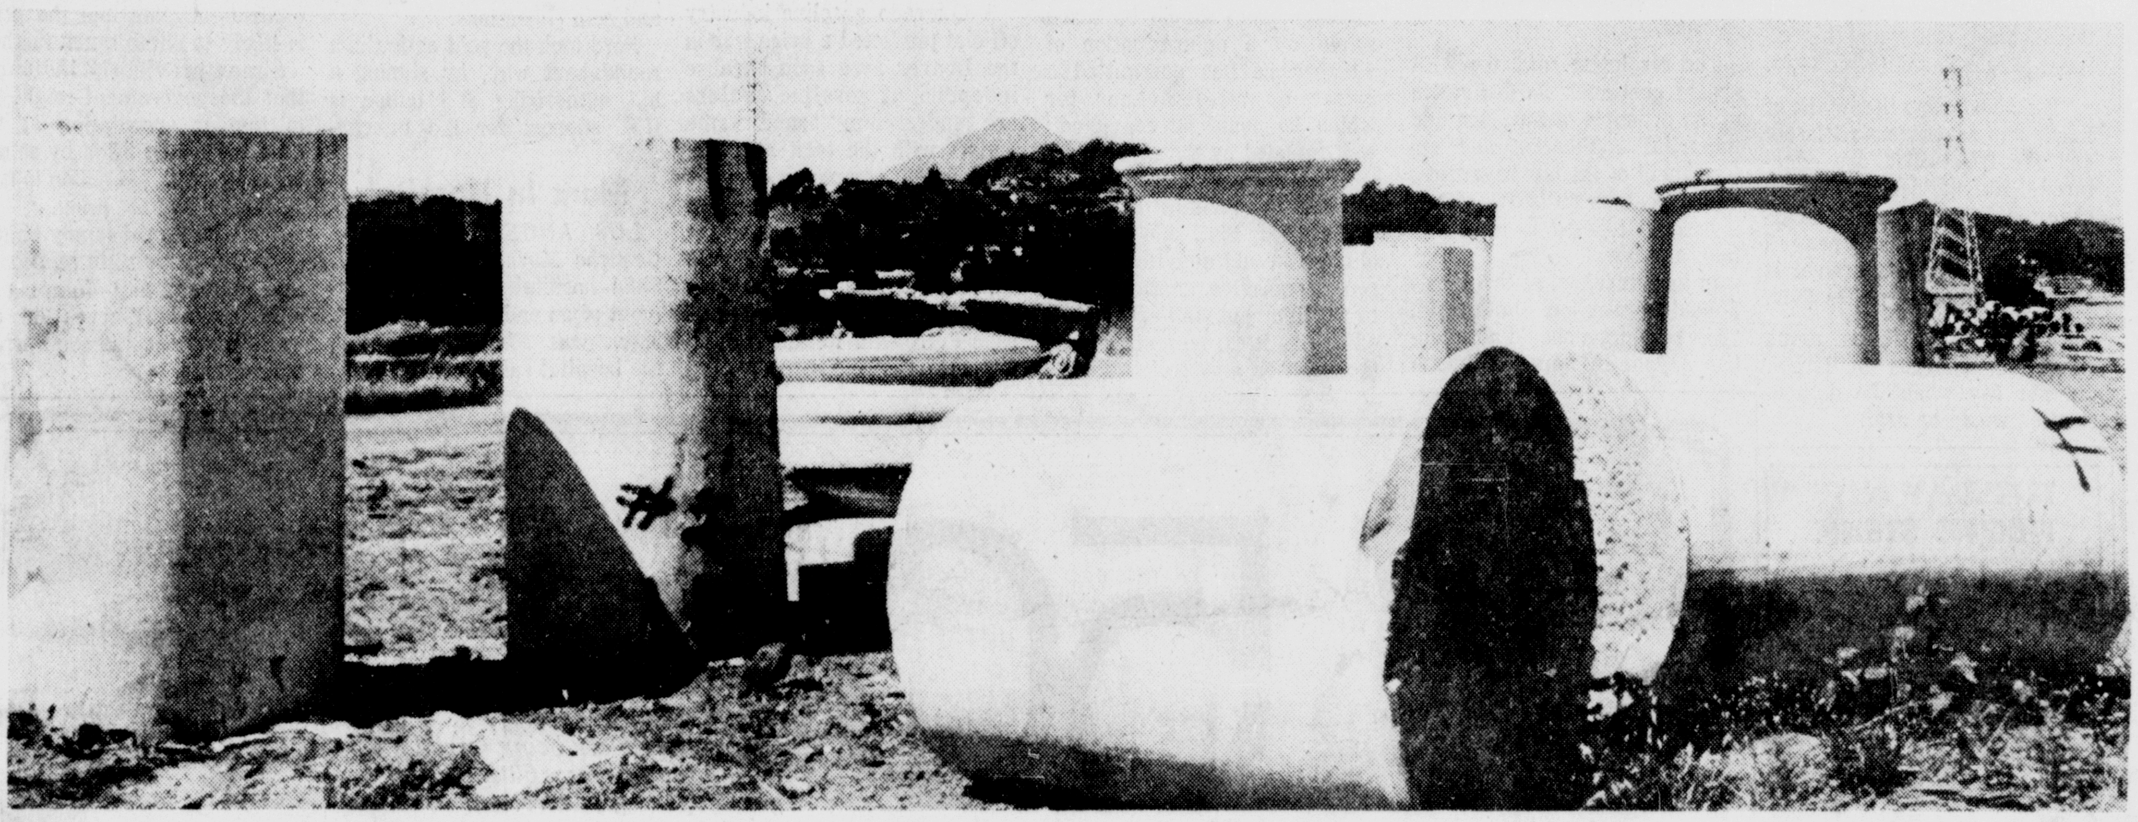
REMEMBRANCE OF THINGS PAST

Are these the noble stones of an antique forum waiting silently, brokenly mourning a time long past that can never come again? Well, yes and no. They testify not to the "glory that was Greece, the grandeur that was Rome," but to the charm that was the old county courthouse in San Rafael. They are the capitals (above) and pedestals (below) of the fluted columns that once adorned the front portico of the century-old building destroyed by fire in 1971. Now reposing in an East San Rafael field, their aura of antiquity — marred only slightly by utility towers in the background — was captured today by Independent-Journal photographer Bob Hax.



Turk Advance Is Continuing Across Cyprus

Surrender Of Island's Major Port Is Claimed

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Turkish forces rolled up most of the northeastern third of Cyprus today along the 65-mile "Attila line" and the Turkish Cypriot radio claimed the Greek Cypriot defenders of the island's major port of Famagusta had surrendered.

A U.N. spokesman, however, denied the claim. UPI correspondent Michael Keats reported fighting in the streets of Famagusta.

American-built F4 Phantom jets of the Turkish air force pounded Greek Cypriot positions in the Famagusta area and bombed near the northern port of Lefka, Keats reported. Keats said the jets reduced Famagusta's "Golden Mile" of resort hotels to flaming rubble.

Greece, powerless to intervene militarily against the Turks and furious over what Greeks widely considered a letdown by the United States, threatened to expel the 4,000 U.S. troops based in Greece, according to a high official in Athens.

Mortar and machinegun fire was still rattling in the Cypriot capital of Nicosia when acting Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides called an urgent meeting of his advisers. Greek officials insisted he was not on the verge of caving in to Turkish demands for a separate Turkish Cypriot enclave on the island.

In Turkey, an ebullient Premier Bulent Ecevit said the fighting on Cyprus was going "very well." Western diplomats said Turkey's aim was to win on the battlefield what it had been unable to accomplish at the abortive Geneva peace conference: to secure a third of the island for the Turkish Cypriots who number one-fifth of the island's 700,000 people.

In Washington, President Gerald Ford was reported keeping close tabs on the situation. However, the United States and Great Britain were reported to have decided to keep hands off Cyprus for the moment.

Even so, the U.S. guided missile cruiser Little Rock, flagship of the U.S. 6th Fleet, recalled its crew from shore leave and put to sea two weeks early for an undisclosed destination. The Soviet Union sent three gunboats through the

Korean Leader's Wife Is Slain

SEOUL (UPI) — A gunman killed the wife of South Korean President Park Chung-hee and a teen-aged schoolgirl today in an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Park as he delivered a nationally televised speech in a crowded theater.

PARK YOUNG-SOO
Gunman's victim

The second of the gunman's four bullets struck Mrs. Park Young-soo, 49, in the head as she sat near her husband on the stage of the National Theater. She was taken to Seoul National University Hospital where doctors operated on her for six hours.

She died 8½ hours after the shooting, with Park and the couple's three children at her bedside.

After his wife was carried from the stage, Park rose and said, "Now I will continue my speech." The television cameras refocused and Park read the remainder of his prepared text without mentioning the shooting.

Japanese police identified the gunman as Moon Sae-kwang, 22, a Korean living in Osaka, Japan, and a suspected member of a youth group opposed to the Park regime.

Moon was shot by security men and hospitalized. Chang Bong-hwa, 17, was killed by a stray bullet.

Korean news media said Moon carried a Japanese passport made out to a textile worker in Osaka. Japanese police began an investigation of how Moon obtained the passport.

The motive for the attempted assassination was not immediately known but recent measures to curb opposition to the

Younger Files Suit Against Oil Drilling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger filed suit today to block the U.S. government from approving oil drilling off Southern California until an environmental impact report is completed.

The Republican attorney general said in a statement: "The federal government should not proceed in that direction (oil drilling) until all relevant information is obtained so that an informed and enlightened decision can be made."

Mass Arrest Nets 47 In Sonoma

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The new Sonoma County Grand Jury last night finished two days of secret meetings and handed out 52 indictments that triggered the largest mass arrest of drug sellers in Northern California history, Sonoma County officials said today.

Forty three adults and four juveniles were arrested overnight by fast-moving special arrest teams of sheriff's deputies and Santa Rosa police. Arrests were expected today of the remainder of the 67 persons named in the indictments for drug violations and sale of stolen property, according to Sheriff Donald Striepeke, Dist. Atty. John Hawkes and Santa Rosa Police Chief Salvatore Rosano.

The sheriff told the Independent-Journal that "a great deal of paranoia is going to set in

Sausalito Dig Is Protested By Indians

Plans by the City of Sausalito to disinter remains in an Indian burial ground at Caledonia and Pine streets have been protested to county officials by a small group of American Indians.

Appearing before the county Human Rights Commission this week, the group of four urged county support of their efforts to block the archaeological dig which the city plans to finance prior to construction of a private parking lot.

If the dig must take place, they told the commission Tuesday, the bones and artifacts of their ancestors should be turned over for reburial at an appropriate site.

According to Douglas H. Bosco, director of human relations, the group also contends that the dig should be supervised by Indian representatives. They would take custody of the remains and turn them over to an unnamed Indian group.

The four speakers, who plan to appear at the Sausalito City Council meeting Tuesday, said the reburial should be under the guidance of a medicine man, Bosco added.

He said the commission agreed to do what it can to help the group get on the council agenda and to contact Indian Legal Aid in Berkeley.

The City Council recently rejected the advice of several archaeologists to simply cover the site and leave the remains untouched.

Councilmen agreed to a university student's request that they finance the $2,500 dig on condition all finds be turned over to the city.

There has been some talk of displaying the items in the new city hall when built.

The matter is pending, however, while the city researches whether it can legally finance the excavation of an archaeological site less than 300 years old.

"The group feels their ancestors' remains should be treated with the same dignity given reburials at regular cemeteries," Bosco said.

Nixon Called In Trial Of Ehrlichman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Nixon was subpoenaed today to appear as a witness at the Watergate cover-up trial by lawyers for his former aide, John D. Ehrlichman. It was the first legal action against Nixon since he resigned.

There was no date indicating when the subpoena would be served on Nixon but it ordered him to appear in U.S. District Court Sept. 9, the day the trial of six of his former aides and associates is scheduled to begin.

The subpoena came as special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski was reported to be studying the possibility of taking legal action against the former President. A spokesman for Jaworski's office had no

Sea Ranch Development Is Stymied

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In a precedent-setting decision, the California Coastline Commission yesterday denied an appeal by Sea Ranch, a community planned for 5,200 units, for exemption from the 1972 Coastal Preservation Act. (Another commission story, page 12.)

The action became a possible precedent for the fate of numerous similar large projects along the state's 1,072 miles of shoreline.

Sea Ranch was in progress before passage of the initiative act by the voters. Construction of 5,200 units in a choice scenic area had been previously approved by Sonoma County. At present, 1,762 lots have been developed, and homes have been built on 340 lots.

The regional coastal commission previously denied the huge project an exemption, and the state commission held 8-0 that the case presented "no substantial issue" requiring review on the state level.

A report by the staff of the state commission said one of the reasons for passage of the 1972 initiative was the growth of subdivisions such as Sea Ranch, which limit public access to ocean front, obstruct

Ford Sees Russians Easing Jewish Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford held a series of meetings today to measure the mood of the country. He indicated to a group of senators that Soviet emigration policy on Jews may be changing.

Between official duties and keeping up with the Cyprus situation, Ford continued his policy of inviting state, county and city leaders to the White House to hear their ideas.

Commissioner Stanley M. Smoot of Davis County, Utah, said most of a meeting by a group of county executives with Ford focused on revenue sharing to which Ford is strongly committed. County officials praised the openness of the Ford administration, just as mayors and governors did after similar sessions yesterday.

On this sixth day of the Ford administration:

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Ford told him and other senators at a breakfast meeting that the Soviet Union had indicated a changed attitude towards easing emigration restrictions on Russian Jews.

Ford indicated that he plans to announce his choice of a vice president some time in the coming weekend.

The House Banking Committee quickly approved the President's request for a new cost of living task force to spotlight economic excesses and scheduled it for floor action Monday.

In the vice president race, the names most often speculated on were former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and GOP National Chairman George Bush.

The President got to his office the earliest of any day yet — 7:25 a.m. EDT. He has been spending almost 12 hours a day at the office, and had a heavy schedule today, beginning with an 8 o'clock breakfast with Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. apparently to discuss the trade bill he wants Congress to approve soon.

CENTER PLANNING WEEKEND EVENTS

Today's Independent-Journal features a 12-page tabloid section covering events this weekend at the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Among the events, which will begin tomorrow, are square dancing, a blue grass bnnd, magic and puppet shows, clowns, a "feed the town" event and an arts and crafts show.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Watergate Guard Is Honored

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Frank Wills, the unemployed security guard who discovered the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972, said last night he was "happy to open the eyes of America."

Wills

Wills, 26, was honored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which presented him the Martin Luther King Award at its 17th annual convention.

Wills, who has been rejected for five security jobs since leaving his $80-a-week job at the Watergate complex, said the Nixon resignation "was one of the best things that could happen. It sets an example that we should investigate people who are running and keep a continuous check."

Wills, described as "Watergate's Forgotten Hero" by the SCLC, said his friends had asked him to run for city council in Washington, D.C. but he declined.

Base Overrun

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces backed by tanks overran a military base 17 miles north of Saigon and attacked two district capitals near Da Nang today, breaking a week-long lull in the Vietnam ground war, military sources said.

The Saigon command said the attacks were beaten back and 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers were killed. The government said 15 of its own troops were dead.

Bomb Charge

CANBERRA (UPI) — The Australian government accused France today of setting off a fifth nuclear bomb in its current Pacific ocean testing series that has scattered radioactive fallout over Australian territory.

Foreign Affairs Minister Senator Don Willesee reiterated Australian concern at the nuclear atmospheric and called it a breach of international law.

He declined to give the date of the latest blast or name the source of information about it.

Transit Slash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Ford's backing, House Republicans promised an effort today to cut a $20.4 billion mass transit aid bill almost in half.

The transit bill, which also contains a section that would allow bigger trucks on the interstate highway system, is being termed a "budget-busting" bill by Republicans, who want to cut it to $11.2 billion.

About half the money in the bill would go for capital improvements and operation of transit systems in the nine cities that now have rail or subway commuter lines.

Rocket Attack

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Communist gunners today launched one of the heaviest rocket attacks of the year on Phnom Penh.

At least 35 Chinese-built 107mm rockets fell on the city and preliminary police reports showed seven persons were killed and 47 others wounded, most of them civilians.

The attack came shortly before President Lon Nol renewed his call for peace talks with the insurgents and asked for an end to the sufferings of the Cambodian people.

Town Kept Dark

BELFAST (UPI) — Half of the Northern Ireland town of Newry was without electricity today because maintenance crews refused to fix a power cable break after the outlawed Irish Republican Army threatened to shoot repairmen.

The IRA said electrical workers have helped the British army by turning off power in certain areas to provide a cover of darkness for British soldiers and threatened to kill repairmen.

The blackout in the town, 30 miles south of Belfast, affected over 700 homes and two hospitals. Town officials said the outage endangered patients' lives.

Kissinger Critic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, former leader of the militant Jewish Defense League, yesterday said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would be the target of a series of demonstrations because of Kissinger's handling of the Mideast crisis and his alleged failure to aid Soviet Jews.

"It's about time the myths of Kissinger as savior of Israel and the free world are punctured," Kahane declared as 100 chanting, singing and sign-carrying supporters pressed around him upon his arrival at Kennedy Airport from Tel Aviv.

Kahane, who faces arms smuggling charges in Israel, did not say when the demonstration would be held.

No Gas Price Dip Seen By Oil Company Officials

HOUSTON (UPI) — Officials of major oil companies today scoffed at predictions of a dip in gasoline prices in coming months of up to six or seven cents a gallon. But an independent producer was slightly more optimistic.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon predicted the drop in gasoline prices based on three conditions: that crude oil supplies continue to rise, that the Arab nations do not reduce production and that world market prices are not raised arbitrarily.

But officials of Exxon, Shell and Gulf oil companies said they doubted Simon's predictions would come true. However, George Mitchell, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said price decreases probably would be in the one to two cent per gallon range.

Simon told reporters in Washington that economic pressures could reduce petroleum prices by as much as $3 a barrel, which he translated into reductions of up to seven cents a gallon at service stations.

"Secretary Simon's estimate that gasoline prices might fall two or three cents a gallon for each dollar reduction in the weighted average price of all crude oil appears to be based on the assumption that the entire crude costs can be absorbed by one product —gasoline," a Gulf Oil spokesman said.

"Federal regulations do not permit this. Therefore, Gulf calculates that with gasoline amounting to just under half of its own refining output, a $1 per barrel drop in crude prices would lead to gasoline price reductions of about one cent per gallon. Much depends on world production levels and the cost of crude oil on the world market."

Shell and Exxon spokesmen said there are too many uncertainties in the foreign crude supplies and prices to make a solid prediction on price decreases.

"Since gasoline prices still are controlled by the Federal Energy Administration, any decrease in raw material prices will be reflected by lower product prices," the Shell spokesman said.

"Even if the conditions Mr. Simon cites prevails, Shell does not anticipate that a reduction would be in the magnitude of six to seven cents a gallon."

"There is a good chance there will be a small drop because the competition is coming on strong," Mitchell said. "With the tremendous price increases on the world market, there are surpluses of crude oil on short terms."

A Colorado gasoline industry official predicted a price war in the Denver area soon because independent gasoline dealers are underselling brand name outlets with the tacit approval of major oil companies.

"You bet there's a surplus of gasoline and it is going to unbranded dealers at less than wholesale," said Al Hein, executive vice president of the Colorado Petroleum Retailers Association.

Bar Opposition Seen For Nixon Immunity

HONOLULU (UPI) — The outgoing president of the American Bar Association is predicting approval of a resolution opposing legal immunity for former President Richard M. Nixon.

The resolution before the ABA's 340-member House of Delegates today does not mention Nixon by name. But President Chesterfield Smith said the measure resulted from Watergate disclosures and was drafted by a committee with Nixon in mind.

The resolution said, the ABA should continue "its dedication to the principle of fair, just and impartial application and enforcement of the law regardless of the position or status of any individual alleged to have violated the law."

In an interview, at the ABA's annual convention Smith said, "The resolution should not mention anyone by name. Although it is aimed at the revelations about Nixon, it enunciates a general principle of law."

Smith predicted that a majority of the members of the House of Delegates would approve the resolution, making it the official stand of the ABA. "But I've been wrong before," Smith said.

Another resolution calling upon the ABA to "resolve that the decision of the special prosecutor whether to prosecute Richard Nixon for crimes or misdemeanors should be based solely on a determination of whether he has committed a crime or misdemeanor for which he could be convicted" was rejected by the committee.

In its report, the committee, chaired by William R. Smith Jr., Tampa, Fla., said that resolution "would deny to the citizen in question considerations to which others similarly situated are entitled, no matter what their station may be."

End Near For Ban On Gold Ownership

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has taken one more step toward ending a 40 year ban on gold ownership by U.S. citizens.

Ford signed a law yesterday making it legal for Americans to buy and trade bullion as soon as the President gives the word, but no later than December 31, 1974.

It is an open question whether ending the ban will touch off a new wave of speculation or whether investors will greet the news with a big yawn. The price of gold has been rapidly rising and bullion appears to have become a speculator's fad and a way for investors to hold off inflation.

One New York corporation, Samuel Weiss Co., promptly announced that it has approval from the New York Stock Exchange to act as a bullion agent. It said it was going to make gold bars of ½, 1, 5, 10, 25 and 50 troy ounces.

Americans have been barred from owning and dealing in gold since 1934, in the law signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt taking the nation off the gold standard. Most other nations have no such restrictive law.

The only exception to the ban in this country is for industrial and artistic purposes and for personal use such as jewerly and coin collections.

Ford took the gold action in a roundabout way, by signing a bill authorizing $1.5 billion is U.S. support for the International Development Association, an agency of the World Bank that grants low interest loans to the most underdeveloped nations.

The gold ownership language was $8c9ngressional amendment to the IDA bill.

Last June, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said President Nixon intended to lift the gold ban before the end of the year if it would not create serious problems in international financial markets. Ford will likely follow this outline and give the go-ahead sometime prior to the Dec. 31 deadline.

On the free market, the price of gold soared past $200 an ounce earlier this year but has fallen since to about $152. There is speculation that investors who bought at less than $200 hope to use a new surge of buying by Americans to unload their holdings at a profit.

Others, however, say that gold is the only safe hedge against inflation and the price is likely to climb much further.

Simon previously indicated that the government might try to temper speculation at the time the ban is lifted by selling off some of its $45 billion in gold stockpiled in Fort Knox.

Since the world supply of gold is relatively small in relation to the demand, any dumping of official gold reserves on the world market could send prices plummeting.

BOMB INSURANCE — International Red Cross officials yesterday laid a homemade Red Cross flag on the roof of the Hilton Hotel in Nicosia, Cyprus, while searching the sky for signs of Turkish fighter-bombers that have devastated parts of the city. Two rockets narrowly missed the hotel, one of the Red Cross neutral zones on the war-divided island.

CYPRUS

Dardanelles to reinforce its Mediterranean Fleet.

The United Nations Security Council scheduled its second urgent meeting in as many days to try to get the dispute off the battlefield and back to the conference table.

The escalation of the Cyprus crisis, which erupted one month ago today, was proving a windfall for the Soviets. At the outset, they had complained that the crisis was a plot to turn the island into a NATO base.

Instead, Greece pulled its armed forces out of NATO and found itself on the verge of war with its NATO ally, Turkey, much to the discomfiture of the United States, the kingpin of the Atlantic alliance.

The Turkish Cypriot radio monitored in Adana, Turkey, announced at 6.10 p.m. (11:10 a.m. EDT), "Famagusta has surrendered to our forces. The Turks of Famagusta are celebrating the victory."

The Turkish General Staff had announced earlier that its armed forces had knifed to the outskirts of the ancient town of Famagusta, Cyprus's only deepwater port, reduced to a smoking ghost town in 24 hours of fighting.

Acting Cypriot President Clerides convened his cabinet ministers in Nicosia. Speculation was rife that he would give up Turkish-held areas of the island.

In London, UPI diplomatic correspondent K.C. Thaler said the United States and Great Britain had agreed to put off any new quest for a settlement until the Turks stop fighting.

Thaler quoted a British government spokesman as saying, "There is no basis at present for pushing a new peace initiative in the escalated Cyprus conflict, nor are there any willing partners to participate in any such effort at this stage."

Britain and the United States agreed on their wait-and-see line in transatlantic telephone conversations between Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary James Callaghan and President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the officials said.

Diplomatic sources said it looked increasingly as if dividing the island into self-governingenclaves or even independent Turkish Cypriot and Greek Cypriot states would be the eventual outcome.

Petaluman Injured In Auto Wreck

A Petaluma mother was seriously injured and two other persons were slightly hurt in a two-car collision at 3:30 p.m. yesterday on Lakeville Road south of Petaluma, California Highway Patrol officers reported today.

A pickup truck driven by Dennis W. Richardson, 26, of Rio Vista, Solano County, drifted onto the shoulder, and Richardson overcorrected, hitting the oncoming, southbound car driven by Jo Ann J. Hartmann, 32, of 1661 Acapulco Court, Petaluma.

Hillcrest Hospital spokesmen said Mrs. Hartmann was in stable condition today in the intensive care unit, with both legs broken. Her daughter, Michelle, 3, and Richardson were treated and released.

Assassination Figure Clay Shaw Is Dead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Clay Shaw, who was tried and acquitted on charges filed by former District Attorney Jim Garrison he plotted to assassinate President John F. Kennedy, died early today apparently of cancer.

Shaw, 60, was at his home at the time of his death. He had been admitted to Ochsner Foundation Hospital several times since February when his illness was diagnosed as cancer. A hospital spokesman announced the death but said the cause had not been determined.

Shaw, the only suspect ever tried in the Kennedy assassination, was acquitted by a jury two years to the day after his arrest.

Garrison then tried to prosecute Shaw on a charge of perjury but the federal courts ruled against the district attorney.

Garrison was defeated for reelection last year and is now a candidate for the Louisiana Supreme Court.

Dies in New Orleans

Shaw's $5 million lawsuit, naming Garrison and several wealthy businessmen who helped finance the Kennedy investigation in the 1960s, was due for hearings in federal court next month.

Shaw retired as director of the International Trade Mart at New Orleans two years before Garrison brought charges against him.

among drug dealers throughout Sonoma County" as a result of the arrests, which so far have been only in the Santa Rosa area.

Striepeke said that during the past two months undercover agents have bought drugs with a street sale value of more than $200,000. These included 100 drug transactions, largely heroin, and 15 purchases of stolen property, he said.

This evidence was presented to the grand jury that was empaneled only last week, resulting in the massive new crackdown.

The three officials said their effort was aided by special criminal justice grants from the state.

Four arrest teams began their sweep at 10:30 p.m. yesterday, minutes after Superior Court Judge Kenneth M. Eyemann signed the indictments. The teams worked until 6 a.m. there was "no shooting, no violence, no hassel" in any of the arrests, the sheriff said. "It went very smoothly."

The arrest teams were to spread out again this afternoon after a few hours' sleep, Striepeke said.

Sheriff's reserves headed by Capt. Galen Zumwalt of Petaluma transported the arrestees to the county jail in Santa Rosa throughout the night.

In a joint statement, the county and city officials said that "the number of grand jury indictments shows the depth of the narcotics problem in Santa Rosa and the county in general." They said all law enforcement agencies in the county are cooperating to halt sales of narcotics and restricted drugs.

"Our aim is particularly to go after dealers selling to junior high and high school students," the sheriff added.

Larkspur Man Is Hurt In Accident

James Radu, 17, of 24 Liberty Street, Larskpur, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with multiple fractures of the right leg.

Larkspur police reported that Radu's motorcycle collided with a car driven by Mary Ann Louise Gray, 32, of 21 Chanticleer Avenue, Larkspur, when she was backing out of her driveway at 8:05 a.m. yesterday. No citations were issued.

Tomales Bid Rejected By Commission

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — The California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission yesterday refused to hear an appeal by Herbert H. Angress to build a $2.5 million resort-lodge on Tomales Bay, ending a five-year fight by the West Marin dairyman to erect the project. (Another commission story, page 1.)

Ruling that no substantial issue existed, the state coastal commission let stand two earlier denials of a permit by the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

If the state legislature approves a pending appropriation, the Angress property and other Tomales Bay parcels will be acquired by the state for park use.

The regional commission turned down a second appeal by Angress July 12 to build a scaled down version of the condominium-resort. Angress refused an offer in January by the Audubon Canyon Ranch to buy his west Tomales Bay property for $24,301.

San Rafael Man Hurt In Crash

Edward F. Curtis, 46, of San Rafael was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with injuries received last night in a two-car accident on North San Pedro Road in San Rafael.

The Highway Patrol said Curtis' eastbound auto attempted to pass a car driven by Robert Lewis Dieffenbach, 26, also of San Rafael.

The Curtis car struck the left side of the Dieffenbach auto, jumped a curb, crashed into a utility pole and overturned, according to officers, who said Curtis was traveling at "a high rate of speed" when the accident occurred about 9:45 p.m.

San Rafael Architect's Plan Favored

A San Rafael architect's proposal for a long, narrow park alongside Washington Creek was favored last night by the Petaluma Park, Recreation and Music Commission over designs submitted by two other firms.

City recreation director James R. Raymond said the commission passed all three drawings on to the city council for a decision. Sid Lewin of San Rafael said his fee would be $1,500 for schematics and preliminary drawings of the design the commission favored. Other firms bid higher, up to $2,500, Raymond said.

None of the designers was asked to estimate construction costs, Raymond said. The land has been dedicated to the city by developers and would be improved with "bedroom tax" funds required from subdividers.

The city is considering installing a 4,000-foot-long bicycle path on one bank of the Washington Creek flood channel and a park ranging from 10 feet to 30 feet wide on the other bank, behind the Greenbriar and Washington Square developments.

The Petaluma Park, Recreation and Music Commission also:

BICYCLE PATHS — Was told that bicycling enthusiasts represented by Richard Courier and Irene Eisenhut will report to the commission Sept. 11 how local groups can assist in making a reality of the paths drawn in the city's master plan.

PICNIC — Postponed to Nov. 13 a decision on whether to restrict use of city picnic facilities to Petaluma groups only.

BOND ISSUE — Called for local organizations and citizens to help the city campaign for passage of a $2 million park bond on the Nov. 5 ballot.

ADJOURNMANET — Adjourned to Sept. 11.

views from highways, and contribute to pollution.

The report said Shoreline Highway, which runs past Sea Ranch, was a valuable recreational asset in danger of being overwhelmed by residential traffic.

"Should the taxpayers of the entire state be asked to pay for improvement of Shoreline Highway, if the principal need for improvement is to better serve second home subdivisions?" the report asked.

Castle and Cooke Inc., the developer, and the Sea Ranch lot owners association, were expected to challenge the decision in the courts.

Park government have sparked protests at home and abroad.

In the past two months 194 persons have been convicted at special military trials of taking part in a plot to overthrow the Park government. Several of those convicted have been sentenced to death.

Park was half-way through his 20-minute speech commemorating the 29th anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan when the gunman rose from his front-row seat and opened fire, bringing screams from the 2,500 persons in the audience.

Mrs. Park was a quiet, unassuming first lady considered by many South Korean women to be a model of national beauty. She married Park in 1950 and once referred to herself as "a bride supervised by the whole nation."

NIXON

comment on Ehrlichman's move and declined to say whether Nixon would be called as a prosecution witness.

The subpoena, addressed to Nixon at the "Presidential Compound, San Clemente, Calif., read:

"You are hereby commanded to appear in United States District Court for the District of Columbia ... to testify on behalf of defendant John D. Ehrlichman."

It was signed by Ehrlichman's attorney, Andrew G. Hall, and copies of it were released in the federal courthouse in Washington.

Nixon was named as an unindicted coconspirator in the cover-up case but was not indicted by the grand jury because Jaworski said he did not believe such action could be taken against a president in office.

The grand jury indicted seven Nixon associates, including his two top aides, Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman, but charges against Charles W. Colson were later dropped when he pleaded guilty to charges in the Ellsberg break-in case.

Jaworski was to file late today his response to motions to postpone the trial. It was expected he would not oppose a brief delay to give his staff more time to study the latest batch of Nixon tapes.

Erhlichman, Haldeman and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell have asked for a delay in the trial and a hearing is set for Monday before Federal Judge John J. Sirica.

Ehrlichman had tried to subpoena Nixon while he was still President, but at that time his lawyers argued he could not be compelled to appear while he was still in office.

Lawyers for Haldeman contended yesterday in asking for delay of the trial that the public has been so poisoned against him that no jury would find him innocent of Watergate crimes.

He said any prospective juror who could honestly say he knows nothing about Watergate or had formed no opinions in the case would be "so oblivious to national affairs" he would not be smart enough to serve on the jury.

Another defendant, former Nixon campaign lawyer Kenneth W. Parkinson, filed papers opposing any delay. He asked instead that he be given a separate trial and that it be moved away from Washington.

Parkinson's lawyers said he has only a "peripheral attachment" to his codefendants, "all of whom are politicians" rather than practicing lawyers as he is, and four of whom he does not even know. He said his case could be wrapped up at a separate trial within a month.

The trial of the "Watergate Six" also includes Robert C. Mardian and Gordon Strachan.

Haldeman also argued that Nixon's release of the crucial June 23, 1972, tape of their discussion limiting the FBI's early Watergate investigation severely damaged his case.

"With the complete impregnation of the public mind by the continuous reporting of alleged proofs of guilt on the part of this defendant, a fair trial by an intelligent jury cannot be obtained at this time," Haldeman's lawyers said.

Marinite Injured In Collision

A San Rafael driver was seriously injured when his car slammed into a boat and camper truck parked alongside Highway 101 in Petaluma yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol said Ruby C. Philpott of Gilroy, Santa Clara County, had stopped the camper to trade seats with her husband when their boat and trailer were ploughed into by the auto driven by Jessie Rudolph, 51, of 15 Clyde Avenue, San Rafael. Rudolph suffered two broken legs and a broken wrist, according to Hillcrest Hospital spokesmen. He was transferred to Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco.

The accident at 5:15 p.m. a quarter-mile north of the Washington Street overpass shoved the outboard motor through the 24-foot cruiser's transom and drove the bow several feet into the camper, officers said. They were unable to question Rudolph about the cause of the accident.

Mill Valley Doctor Is Honored For Book

Dr. Paul Bach-y-Rita of Mill Valley has been awarded the 1974 Franceschetti-Liebrecht prize of the German Opthalmological Society for his book detailing a substitute sight system for the blind.

Bach-y-Rita

He and an associate, Dr. Carter C. Collins, developed a system in which images are taken by a television camera which activate a series of vibrating stimulators in a grid over the skin of the back or abdomen. A blind person learns to translate the painless impulses into crude images within his brain.

Bach-y-Rita is associate director of the Smith-Kettlewell Institute of Visual Sciences and professor in the Department of Visual Sciences at the San Francisco campus of the University of the Pacific.

An Outbreak Of Malaria Is Reported

MARYSVILLE (AP) — State and federal health officials say they are trying to stop an outbreak of malaria in three Northern California farm counties, the first such outbreak in the state since 1958.

Five cases of malaria have been reported recently in Butte, Sutter and Yuba counties, said Stephen Foster, a spokesman for the State Department of Health.

"They're attempting to track it down," he said. "Apparently, there is an individual or individuals who were infected while outside the country."

Authorities in the three-county area have been spraying in the area in an effort to eradicate the mosquitoes which health officials say have been spreading the disease.

"Our reason for being here is to attempt to find ways of controlling the mosquitos and prevent other persons from being infected," said Dr. Mitchell Singal of the state Department of Health.

Singal has been joined by Dr. Peter Shaw of the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. in the effort to wipe out the disease.

Bleak Prediction On Environment

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Supreme Court Associate Justice William O. Douglas says only local action can save the environment because the government is too big and complex to deal effectively with conservation measures.

"The country is on the verge of being put under the bulldozer, put through great rock crushers and being converted into an enormous pile of debris," the justice said in an interview yesterday.

DeMolay To Honor Mill Valley Advisor

GIBSON L. CRAWFORD
A DeMolay award

Gibson L. Crawford of San Rafael will receive the Cross of Honor, the International Order of DeMolay's highest award, at 8 p.m. Aug. 25 at the Fairfax Masonic Lodge in Larkspur.

Crawford is being cited for his work as an advisory leader of the Mill Valley Chapter of DeMolay.

DeMolay is an organization affiliated with the Masons that is composed of young men ages 13 to 21 who perform community and civic service projects. A recent project, for instance, of one Marin chapter was to construct a footbridge across Redwood Creek at Muir State Beach.

Crawford, 52, has served on the Mill Valley chapter advisory council for six years as an advisor, chapter dad and past president. He assisted the chapter with their annual Christmas tree lot, ecology clean-up campaigns and other activities.

Crawford's other community activities include work with the boy scouts and the Marin Chapter of the American Cancer Society. He is a member of the Marin Shrine Club.

A past director and president of the San Francisco Life Underwriters Association, Crawford was a 1970 recipient of the Prudential Insurance Company's Civic Leader Award.

He's been a resident of Marin County for 18 years and now lives at 1081 Las Gallinas Avenue. Crawford is married and has two sons.

Arraignment Scheduled For Pair In Robbery

Two Novato men arrested in the aftermath of an armed robbery in front of a Sausalito nightspot yesterday were to be charged today in Marin Municipal Court, according to the Marin District Attorney's office.

One of the men, Douglas Lamar Woodard, 21, was taken into custody in front of the Boathouse restaurant after allegedly drawing a gun on a 30-year-old Sausalito woman.

The other man escaped when two passersby came to the aid of Beverly Rodgers, but Sausalito police tracked him down and arrested him about noon yesterday.

He was identified as Richard Thomas Berry, 21, of 5935 Redwood Highway.

Bail for both men was set at $10,000 and both remained in jail pending arraignment today.

CARACAS (UPI) — The Venezuelan government has proposed that every car in the nation's capital be kept off the streets one day a week.

Farm Labor Bill Moves To Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A farm labor bill giving Cesar Chavez a chance to revitalize the dwindling ranks of his United Farm Worker Union (UFW) today is before the full Assembly.

Despite opposition from growers and the Teamsters Union, which represents most farm laborers, the bill advanced from the Assembly Ways and Means Committee yesterdayon a narrow 12-6 bipartisan vote. Eleven votes were needed for passage.

No such bill has advanced this far in recent California legislative history. The measure (AB3370) allows secret union elections and secondary boycotts, one of the UFW's chief weapons.

Some 400 of Chavez' followers in the audience cheered when the vote was announced, but there was an absence of noisy demonstrations which marked an earlier hearing.

The bill would create a state Agricultural Workers Commission to oversee farm labor elections determining which union would represent workers.

The UFW had 320 growers and 55,000 workers under contract a year ago, but Teamster organizing initiatives have cut UFW ranks to 12,000 workers and 15 growers under contract.

Supported by Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy, the bill was authored by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles.

The legislation is patterned after the National Labor Relations Act, which does not cover farm labor. The bill allows "recognitional strikes" to force an election. But it does not cover secondary boycotts.

The bill was amended by the committee to outlaw for one year jurisdictional strikes by the defeated union and to permit Seventh Day Adventists, who do not believe in unions, to work without joining either organization.

Congress Speeding Ford Bill Through

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Banking Committee quickly approved today President Ford's request for a new cost of living task force to spotlight economic excesses and scheduled it for floor action Monday.

Turning back all attempts to go beyond the President's wishes, the committee approved 27 to 7 a bill almost identical to the one Ford asked for. Four liberal Democrats and three conservative Republicans voted against the bill.

Many members expressed skepticism that Ford's new task force, which would amount to a "jawboning agency," could do anything to slow inflation. Several Democrats urged that the bill not be changed because it could do neither harm nor good but Ford should be given his wish without congressional interference.

Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., urged the committee not to change Ford's request because "he believes it will work and I sincerely hope he is correct for the sake of the country." Patman, however, has expressed his doubts.

Congress handled the proposal with unusual haste, perhaps in deference to Ford. In his first policy speech Monday, Ford asked Congress to revive the council which expired last April 30, in a modified form. The Senate has already begun hearings.

The new task force would be composed of nine top Ford counselors and cabinet members plus a director to be appointed by the President.

It would review all areas of the economy, work with labor and management to improve collective bargaining, review federal programs and hold public hearings to spotlight excessive price or wage increases.

The task force would not have the powers —such as forcing rollbacks in wages and prices it thought inflationary — that former President Nixon's Cost of Living Counsel had.

The bill differs only slightly from Ford's original request. The committee added the secretary of commerce to the task force, required quarterly reports to Congress and terminated the task force as of June 30, 1976.

Mansfield Sets Senate Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield today established a longevity record for Senate leaders.

Mansfield has served as Senate Democratic leader for 13 years and 225 days.

The old record was held by Sen. Joseph T. Robinson, D-Ark., who served in the late 1920s and 1930s as both majority and minority leader.

Striking Firemen In San Mateo Meet Council

SAN MATEO (UPI) — Negotiators of striking San Mateo firemen met with the city council yesterday in the first face-to-face session between the two sides.

"We don't know if we accomplished a single thing," said lawyer Thornton C. Bunch in behalf of the firemen.

However, City Mgr. John Lilly said he thought the "clear the air" session was useful—at least for the fire fighters.

"Successful? It was from the union standpoint. For one hour and 45 minutes they talked to us about their story," he said.

The strike began nine days ago and firemen from the state Division of Forestry have since been manning city fire stations.

Early August Car Sales Reach Nine-Year High

DETROIT (UPI) — Buyers looking for bargains before prices shoot up $500 helped push early August new car sales a nine-year high and their best year-to-year performance since last September.

The four U.S. automakers reported yesterday that Aug. 1-10 sales were up 2.2 per cent from last year, the second 10- day period in a row that sales have topped the year-ago performances. That's a feat the automakers haven't been able to pull off since last summer before the energy crisis.

Some dealers reported high buyers' interest due to reports General Motors will hike prices of its '75 models by an average $500 and Ford by $418. Auto company sales executives said there was new consumer interest in the mid-and full-size cars that weren't selling during the winter gasoline crisis.

"The people we have coming in now are worried about the price increases," said Jim Gilmore, a Cadillac-Pontiac dealer in Kalamazoo, Mich. "I'm positive there will be a customer rebellion if prices keep increasing."

Paced by GM, which showed a 14.6 per cent gain over last year, the auto companies sold 207,624 cars, compared with 203,172 in the Aug. 1-10 period last year.

MAKES WAY FOR THE NEW

Workmen, manning cranes and bulldozers, remove slabs of concrete and twisted steel rods as the old Washington Street Highway 101 overpass in Petaluma is torn down. An adjacent, wider overpass with a lower slope was opened to traffic last weekend. The state Division of Highways reports that the northbound onramp to Highway 101 from Washington Street is closed through Aug. 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. as workmen rebuild the onramps.

Thunderstorms Batter Farmers

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Weather again has played the part of the villain in the continuing tale of farmers' woes, this time unleasing violence that destroyed eight graneries and damaged numerous other farm buildings in North Dakota.

Violent thunderstorms were widespread in parts of the Midwest and Southeast last night, adding to the problems of farmers who earlier took a beating from a severe drought.

The storms, which eventually diminished to only a few showers and isolated thunderstorms as the night progressed, spawned tornadoes which struck farms about 20 miles northeast of Jamestown, N.D.

The tornadoes destroyed at lease eight farm graneries and damaged several other graneries and farm buildings. However, there were no reports of injuries.

The thunderstorm activity in the Dakotas diminished early today and moved into Minnesota. There were scattered showers and thundershowers in eastern Kansas, southeast Nebraska, northern Oklahoma and western Missouri.

However, the rainfall did little to help farmers suffering extensive crop failures caused by the earlier drought.

At Tahoka, Tex., Lynn County agent Bill Griffin said yesterday dryland cotton farmers would survive this year's drought with the help of loans from banks and credit agencies. However, he said a repeat of the dry weather next season could force many of them out of business.

"Most of (the farmers) will get a crop of weeds," Griffin said. "They'll try to control the weeds through the summer then break the land up and get ready for next year. "Most of them will be around next year. Now if we had another (drought) next year, we'd lose a lot of producers."

Griffin said Lynn County, which produced 275,000 bales of cotton in 1973, will harvest only 50,000 bales this season.

But crops weren't all that suffered because of the drought. The Kansas State University Extension Service reported yesterday that a boom in Kansas farm land also has shriveled. The service said farm land prices soared 30 per cent in a 12-month period ending March 1, but slowed between April 1 and July 1, rising only 2 or 3 per cent.

Oklahoma Gov. David Hall, citing estimated losses of a half billion dollars in his state alone, yesterday asked the federal government to extend drought disaster designation to the entire state.

"The impact on the economy of Oklahoma is and will continue to be disastrous," Hall said.

He said Oklahoma oat production was down 59 per cent, barley 64 per cent, sorghum 27 per cent, wheat 14 per cent, hay 32 per cent and peanuts 18 per cent as compared with 1973.

Showers and thunderstorms also spread into western Montana, northern Colorado and southern New Mexico today. However, skies were clear over New England, the Great Lakes and much of the Ohio Valley.

Foes Of Vitamin Controls Are Gaining Backing In The Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Critics of the Food and Drug Administration's proposed vitamin controls appear to be finding some sympathy in the Senate for their drive to overturn regulations scheduled to take effect early next year.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who has lined up 44 of his fellow senators behind legislation to undo the FDA proposal, said yesterday the FDA is trying to play God with the nutritional rights of millions of Americans.

Proxmire, as well as health food store representatives, vitamin industry forces and others appear to have found an ally in Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., a member of the Senate's Health subcommittee which conducted hearings on the subject.

Schweiker repeatedly and closely quizzed FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt on the possibility that the regulations would mean some vitamins would be available only under a doctor's prescription. Schmidt steadfastly denied anything like that would happen, based on present knowledge.

The FDA wants to declare to be a drug any vitamin, food or food supplement containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any one vitamin, and to outlaw certain combinations of vitamins which it believes are irrational.

Once classified as a drug, vitamins could continue to be sold over the counter just as aspirin is, but they would also be subject to a safety and effectiveness review by an FDA panel which is examining all nonprescription drugs.

Vitamins could potentially wind up restricted to prescription, but Schmidt contended there is no reason now to suspect they would. He also contends forces opposing the regulations are using the prescription argument as a scare tactic to frighten consumers and stir up mail against the plan.

Goldwater Feels Bush Is Ahead

Columbia, S.C. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's "gut feeling" is that President Ford favors Republican National Chairman George Bush for the vice presidency.

The Arizona Republican, here to address a GOP dinner, said yesterday he could not explain why he thinks Bush is in the lead.

"I would call it just a gut feeling," he said.

Goldwater, commenting on reports that he is also in the running for the vice presidential spot, said he would accept any nomination from Ford.

Company Reports Supply Robbery

Metal grates valued at $2,025 and pipe valued at $562 were taken from the Freeman and Songroth Construction Co. storage yard between Atherton and Olive avenues, Novato, between June 17 and July 5, the company reported yesterday.

Foreman David G. Flores told Novato police the material was taken during a strike period and the loss wasn't discovered until inventory was completed.

San Rafael Man Held In Theft Case

A 22-year-old man, awaiting sentencing in Marin Superior Court for a trespass charge stemming from a burglary arrest last March, was again arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of stolen property.

Gregory Crawford Gocher, of no known address, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $1,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

San Rafael police said Gocher is suspected of stealing antiques from the San Rafael residence of his mother and selling them to a local store.

Gocher was arrested last March on suspicion of burglarizing a San Rafael home twice and was later convicted of misdemeanor trespassing. He will be sentenced on that charge Aug. 27 in Marin Superior Court.

Panama Students Pelt U.S. Embassy

PANAMA (AP) — Panamanian students stoned the United States Embassy here, smashing 80 windows as Panamanian national guard troops stood nearby directing traffic around the demonstrators.

Officials said the protest, which included banana peels thrown on the embassy's front steps, was against the refusal of an American banana company, United Brands, to pay the export tax levied by Panama, Costa Rica and Honduras.

An Embassy spokesman said a formal protest would be filed with the Panamanian government because of the demonstration yesterday.

An estimated 300 high school students gathered in front of the embassy and for 45 minutes protested peacefully. But as most of the students began to leave, some of the group tried to haul down the American flag in front of the building.

Failing to do so, the students sang the Panamanian national anthem, burned a crude reproduction of the U.S. flag and threw banana peels on the front steps.

At this point five national guardsmen who usually protect the embassy called in reinforcements but they did not try to break up the protest.

The embassy spokesman said no one inside the embassy was injured in the rock throwing spree. He said some of the rocks went through the windows of the office of Ambassador William Jorden.

New Citizen Pleased With Adopted Nation

Elena Guiseppina Sessi, a native of Italy, thinks America is wonderful. "It's nice, nice, very good," she said, in broken English. "I like the people, the work, everything."

Mrs. Sessi was one of 23 residents of Marin and Southern Sonoma counties to be naturalized last month by the District Court in San Francisco.

She was born in 1911 in Ponte San Pietro Bergano, a small town in northern Italy.

Mrs. Sessi lived there most of her life and worked for 30 years in a cotton processing factory on the outskirts of town.

At the urging of an aunt, Maria Locatelli of Dos Palos, Merced County, Mrs. Sessi moved to America eight years ago. She stayed with the aunt for a little over a year and then moved to San Rafael, where a cousin, Teresa Carminati, introduced her to Artemide Sessi, a retired San Rafael barber.

The couple were soon married and have lived at 23 Clorinda Avenue in San Rafael ever since.

Other new citizens naturalized in the United States District Court are:

CORTE MADERA — Ricardo Echave Lopez of 940 Meadowsweet Road.

GREENBRAE — Katsuko Shiroma Stover of 77 Corte Encanto and Louis Sanchez of 2 Almenar Drive.

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE — Takoko Chappelle of 263 Bolling Drive.

INVERNESS — Gabrielle Marie-Helene Kosinski of 140 Camino Del Mar and Olinda Counto Medeiros of RCA Ranch.

Reds Impressed By Crime Gear

MOSCOW (UPI) — Hundreds of Soviet policemen yesterday had their first look at Western crime detection equipment. They appeared impressed.

"Very interesting, very interesting," said a uniformed Moscow militiaman as he looked over a $15,000 American-built mobile crime laboratory at the opening day of "Krimtechnika-74."

The two-week exhibit, in which 60 firms from a dozen Communist and Western nations are participating, is the first of its kind in the Soviet Union.

Shortages Of Water Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department said yesterday its water management experts fear "significant water shortages" by the year 2,000 in the upper Colorado River basin.

Water supplies were studied there because of prospects of development of coal and oil shale deposits in Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico and Arizona.

Sure energy production developments guzzle water in enormous quantities and in the five state area over 30 major energy development projects are in operation, under construcion, or in planning and these will require the diversion of water.

"The surface water supply in the upper basin is already over-appropriated, especially in Colorado and Utah," the department said.

"Demands for water for other uses such as municipal and industrial, agriculture and environmental purposes are also expected to increase greatly," the department said. "These competing uses in the area could result in significant water shortages by the year 2,000."

The department recommended that the states begin evaluation and planning.

Princess Anne Awarded Medal

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II today awarded her daughter Princess Anne a 24th birthday medal for "calm and brave" behavior during a shooting attempt to kidnap her five months ago.

The Queen made Anne a Dame Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order in recognition of her conduct during the March 20 incident in the Mall leading to Buckingham Palace.

Anne's husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, 25, was made a Commander of the Order. Rowena Brassey, Anne's lady in waiting who was in the royal car, became a member of the order, fourth class.

Ian Ball, a 26-year-old Londoner, was committed to a mental institution for the single-handed attempt to kidnap Anne for ransom.

Two newly ordained women priests in the Episcopal church, Allison Cheek (standing at right) and Jeannette Ridlon Piccard (seated), yesterday attended a communion service held during a special session of the church's House of Bishops. The ordination of 11 women as priests in defiance of church orders has caused an uproar in the church and both sides presented their case yesterday to the special session. The bishops planned today to discuss what to do about four bishops who defied church hierarchy with the ordinations.

DENVER (UPI) — The new superintendent of the Air Force Academy, Maj. Gen. James P. Allen, says women aren't tough enough to be admitted into the nation's military academies. Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., says he's dreaming.

"I'm always amused when an academy superintendent, who is waited on hand and foot by military servants and is whisked about in limousines, starts talking about how tough the Air Force and the Air Force Academy is," she said Wednesday.

"He is living a myth," said Rep. Schroeder, a member of the House Armed Services subcommittee. "It is time it (the academy) was brought into the real world."

California Bid To Block Hotels Fails

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Bruce Thompson, despite a personal reluctance, yesterday rejected a California suit to stop construction of two hotel-casinos on the Nevada side at Lake Tahoe.

Thompson refused to issue a preliminary injunction to prevent work on Hotel Oliver and Tahoe Palace which are planned near Stateline. The owners of the hotel said work would start immediately.

Thompson agreed with arguments by attorneys for Oliver Kahle and Ted Jennings that a July vote by the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency left the proposals unresolved and therefore automatically approved.

Kahle's attorney Fran Breen told the court the TRPA compact requires a majority vote by both California and Nevada representatives to act. He said the 7-3 vote with all five Californians against and three Nevadans for allowing construction was legally no action at all.

Breen argued therefore the 60-day time limit for considering such proposals applies to both the hotels.

The State of California filed the suit after the vote by the TRPA.

Deputy California Attorney General Zan Henson said allowing the developers to begin grading on the properties would cause irreparable harm to the environment in the Tahoe basin —including the California side.

He said the 7-3 vote by the TRPA was a final action and that the 60-day approval clause does not apply.

"It's a very simple legal question whether or not the vote of the TRPA was final action or not," he said.

He said the hotel owners have promised to restore the sites if they lose in court. But he questioned how they could restore 150 full grown trees or a meadow.

"If the buildings are partially up, what relief is available to the plaintiffs then? The likelihood of a court ordering them to tear it down is somewhat tenuous," Henson said.

Breen argued, "They are taking a position that is exactly the same as ours with one exception. Three members from California —or Nevada — could stop any project.

Police To Ask Board For Vests

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The board of supervisors will be asked for $200,000 to equip policemen with bulletproof vests.

The city's police commission was unanimous yesterday in its decision to make the request.

Police Chief Donald M. Scott had asked that the vests be made standard equipment for policemen after a patrolman wearing one escaped serious injury although hit in the chest by a bullet fired at point-blank range.

Our Votes Increase Or Curb Inflation

Inflation has been our No. 1 domestic problem for quite a long time. Now that we are at last rid of Vietnam and Watergate, perhaps it will get the attention it deserves.

President Gerald Ford has served notice that it will get his attention as top priority item. And in his address to Congress on Monday night, he had some good advice for all of us: Don't vote for the big spenders.

MR. FORD, who is known as a "good party man," served notice that he considers a firm stand against increased government spending more important than party label. He said that in the upcoming congressional elections he will urge voters to support candidates, "Democrats or Republicans, conservative or liberal, who consistently vote for tough decisions to cut the cost of government, restrain federal spending, and bring inflation under control."

In saying this, he reached the heart of the problem; for we, the voters, are responsible for inflated government spending that is a primary cause of the steady shrink in the value of the dollar.

We are responsible for it because we vote into office men and women who won't make those though decisions, who instead promote special causes for the sake of votes.

THOSE SPECIAL causes always have appeal. Whether the money is for housing subsidies, open space purchase, expanded welfare benefits, handouts to the schools "to provide better education," or whatever, it is always appealing. It always has a constituency, as the politicans put it. That is why it is so tough for them to vote "no."

We are told that each program will enable the government to do something for us that we are unable to do for ourselves.

Unmentioned, however,is the fact that we are able to do less and less for ourselves because we must pay more and more for government. Unmentioned is the fact that deficit spending by the federal government causes a steady decline in the dollar's value, diminishing our savings, our real earnings — and, along with them, our ability to do things for ourselves.

ALL OF US should apply the same test that President Ford says he will apply — and not just to candidates at the federal level. Increased state and local taxes also cut into our ability to do things for ourselves.

Our incumbent candidate for Congress, John L. Burton, has a record as a big spending advocate while in the state legislature. Our incumbent state senator, Peter H. Behr, has a big spending record both as state legislator and as county supervisor. Assembly candidate Michael Wornum has a record for big spending as county supervisor.

Their opponents have not been in offices where they made the decisions on whether to spend for good causes (and votes) or to curb government spending for the sake of a stable economy. We need to put them "on the spot" to find out where they stand.

"It does no good to blame the public for spending too much when the government is spending too much," said President Ford in his address to Congress.

There is a corollary to that: It does no good to blame the government for spending too much if we keep returning to office those who promote and authorize such spending.

U.C. Regents Give Hitch Benefits Budget Denied

By EARL G. WATERS

Although regents and top management of the University of California have complained bitterly from time to time of the failures of Gov. Ronald Reagan and Finance Director Verne Orr to recognize the financial needs of the university, they have consistently acted in a manner not likely to win public sympathy for their complaints.

For instance, at their latest meeting the regents voted a 7.5 per cent salary increase for President Charles J. Hitch, although the salary increase for university employees voted by the Legislature, with the governor's approval, was only 5.4 per cent.

It is one thing to give an assistant professor earning $12,000 a year a 5.4 per cent raise to adjust for cost of living. That is only about five bucks a week after deductions. But for Hitch, whose $55,000 annual salary was already $6,000 more than that paid the governor, it means close to a $100 a week, which is more than many, paying the taxes to provide the salary, earn.

THOSE FAMILIAR with government know that the inequity doesn't stop with Hitch. Having raised his salary, it can be expected that similar raises, in excess of those granted the rank and file professors who do the primary job in education, will be accorded the rest of the university top brass.

These things might not be so much of an irritant to the public if everyone's salaries were keeping pace with inflation. It seems everyone is aware that this is not the case excepting those at the highest levels in the educational system.

Hitch and the regents constantly plead the need for more tax dollars to run the university. And each year the Legislature appropriates increasing amounts of tax dollars.

And it may be that the students are getting shorted in some areas of educational needs.

Still, when the university has, in addition to the half billion tax dollars annually appropriated by the Legislature, funds from endowments, grants and other sources nearly equal to those given by the state, the needs become a little difficult to understand.

THEY GO BEYOND understanding when the regents not only pass out salary raises to a privileged few, in excess of those given to all other employees, but divert endowment funds to bestow huge fringe benefits upon that chosen few after the Legislature had denied them.

For it was at that same meeting that the regents voted to use endowment funds to furnish Hitch and the chancellors free housing, servants and entertainment funds which had been slashed from the budget by the Legislature.

The question raised by this action is, what are the students to be deprived of by this diversion of endowment money? And, if it was not being used, why couldn't it have been earmarked for some of the things which the regents and Hitch are representing to the governor and the Legislature can't be done for the students because of a lack of funds?

The only conclusion to be drawn is that as far as Hitch and the regents are concerned, the top officials are not to be deprived anything, even though it means the educational needs of the students must be sacrificed.

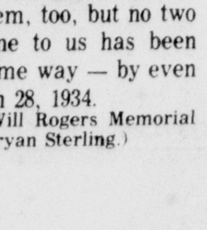
WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .



"With old inflation riding the headlines, I have read till I am bleary-eyed, and I can't get head from tails of the whole thing. We are living in an age of explanations, and plenty of them, too, but no two things that's been done to us has been explained twice the same way — by even the same man." — Jan 28, 1934.

Dippers Into Public Till Best Rewarded

With regard to the "Sacramento Scene — High-Pay Legislature," it has become a matter of survival and severance, not of the free, but of those in power.

If things were to go on as they have in the past, inflation, bust, and depression, one would see who was the best rewarded, those paid out of public treasuries, dippers, double dippers, and triple dippers: knights around the armored table.

We are threatened, and it is hell to be poor!

College Needs To Cut Down On Expenses

It was shocking to read that the College of Marin is going to require a tax hike of 3 cents per $100 assessed valuation over and above the enormous raise in the 1974 reappraisal of property by our county assessor. Much of Mill Valley property has been reappraised upward 40 per cent and more.

The result of this one item means that, to this taxpayer, the cost of the community college will increase by 65 per cent over last year — in actual dollars, $71.83 more per year.

It is time to tighten the requirements for students at the College of Marin. How about fulltime students being required to take a minimum of 15 units with grade accomplishments of gentlemenly C's? How about doing away with the munificent policy of allowing students to drop a course two weeks after the mid-semester grades are filed? How about allowing academic probation for one semester instead of two? These changes would discourage the vacationing student.

How about charging tuition for all part-time, unemployed students? How about those who attend courses for enrichment sharing in the actual cost of the course?. . .

Thoughtless Mob Will Pounce On Ford, Too

The shocking behavior of those people who played with firecrackers and danced on Pennsylvania Avenue after President Nixon's speech announcing his resignation should not surprise those of us whose sense of decency would not allow us to display such extremely bad taste, even if we shared their political views — which I do not.

They have always been around: they were the kind who mocked and spat on Jesus Christ and cast lots for His clothing as He hung on the cross; they were the kind who perpetrated the Salem witch trials. Ignorance is their forte and stupidity their bedfellow.

They hate greatness — probably because they are so small, intellectually and emotionally — and are never happier than when they can (in a group and seldom singly) step in and give a downed fighter another kick.

One thing is certain: they will be in there, pitching, the moment Gerald Ford makes a mistake — as he will, being only human.

Faith Is Restored As Truth Emerges

After reading Joan Smith's letter in the I-J (Aug. 7) in response to my letter of 7-31-74, I was going to sit down and answer each question posed to me. However, I think all I need ask her is I presume she wrote the letter prior to "her president's" startling revelations of Aug. 5.

As for your sympathy for my "situation" I have found the two cheapest commodities are sympathy and apathy.

It's one thing to wave the flag, "my countryman," but it's no excuse for being deaf, dumb, and blind to what's going on around you.

You're absolutely right, Joan Smith, my upset stomach has disappeared and I'm thankful. . . for this day of all days the truth is finally emerging! My faith has been restored.

Petaluma Sewer Charge Criticized

There is no law that says the city must furnish sewer service to those outside the city limits. So speaks the broken record at city hall. If ignorance is bliss, stupidity must be very painful.

Those of us who can read and can also find our way to the polls know that the people of the city pay a small part of the direct cost of the city sewer and plant. The rest of the bill is picked up by our Uncle Sam.

Ridicule of the high court's decisions by the city council and staff, collectively or individually, is out of order at all times. Yet city hall persistently and stubbornly tries to get around the court's order by tactlessly introducing a new ordinance which would demand more money from the people outside the city than the recently outlawed ordinance did. This is certainly nothing to be proud of.

An inconsiderate city manager who habitually places controversial issues at the end of the agenda should be highly reprimanded. (Some of us go to work early). . .

Isn't it interesting to note that some of these citizens pay less in total city taxes than members of Petalumans Unincorporated are requested to pay for sewer service alone?

Return To Economics Responsibility Of All

Labor unions now ask for a 19 per cent wage increase, justifying their demand on the increase in cost of living. What will they ask for tomorrow, when the dollar devaluates at the rate of 50 per cent per week?

Since the early '30s our educators have been teaching astronomics in place of economics. Under their theory a little inflation is good, and debt spending by Federal and local governments creates jobs and the general improvement of our society. As the debt grows larger, you don't worry because there is always more and more money in circulation, and the debts always stay in proportion to our ever cheaper dollar. So goes the spiral of astronomics. Unfortunately we are learning that a "little inflation" is like a dop addict taking "a little" heroin.

We should tell our teachers, asking for a 15 per cent wage increase, that this is no longer the fad and to get back to economics. Labor unions instead of asking for more and more, should spend their time, much more profitably, fighting increases in costs of spending. We have seen the success of housewives putting the damper on the price of beef by refusing to buy any more than the absolute minimum needs. This action puts back the value in the dollar. Our federal and local governments should postpone all new projects and programs that aren't absolutely necessary. No raises should be given to anyone, unless the intended recipients can show they are going to produce more than in the past for the same dollars expended. This holds the purchasing power of the dollar and goes under the old theory of economics. Only when we return to this sytem will we beat inflation. It is the responsibility of all of us and not a particular segment of our society.

Hutchinson Tower Enchanting Landmark

In looking over some old I-J's after returning from a recent vacation, I ran across your article on the Hutchinson Quarry tower. My wife and I have been enchanted with this structure ever since moving to Marin County. In fact, we have a magnificent colored pen-and-ink drawing of it crafted by a close friend who is an artist.

We would like to add our names to what we hope is a long list of people interested in preserving this charming piece of Americana.

Nations Participate In U.N. But Refuse To Pay Dues

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The countries of the world point to their participation in the United Nations to suggest their own humanitarian impulses.

But when it comes to paying the U.N. assessed dues, it is another matter.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' fiscal watchdog agency, recently undertook a review of United Nations' finances and U.S. efforts to help correct the situation.

It found that as of the end of last year, 92 nations owed more than $204 million in assessments, $132 million for the world organization's peacekeeping activities in the Middle East and the Congo in the mid1950s and early 1960s.

PEACEKEEPING, OF COURSE, has been the U.N. activity most people have pinned their hopes on.

But when the organization levied the assessments, several nations questioned their legality and, despite a ruling in the U.N.'s favor by the International Court of Justice, continued to refuse to pay.

In addition, another $72 million in outstanding dues relates to late payments and withholdings by members for some regular budget items to which they object.

Attempts to solve the problem from within the U.N. organization date to 1965, but have not yet been successful and, according to the GAO, "the majority of the membership has ignored the charter provision regarding their collective responsibility for the U.N. obligation."

IN ITS REPORT, which was focused primarily on the U.S. role in efforts to alleviate the United Nations' financial problems, the GAO generally praised the U.S. efforts carried out through the State Department.

But the two agencies did disagree over the use of the collective responsibility clause of the U.N. charter in relation to financial difficulties.

"Inasmuch as a political accommodation will probably be required to settle the withholding controversy," the GAO said, "we recommend that the secretary of state, in any such accommodation, call upon all United Nations members to reaffirm the basic principle of collective responsibility."

But as long ago as 1965, the United States expressed its own reservation to the collective responsibility clause.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT has been pushing internal budgeting improvements, and, independently of the GAO, been pushing for reform at the United Nations.

But, as both the GAO and State agreed, unless the principle of collective financial responsibility is honored, the United Nations' survival "as a fiscally viable organization is seriously prejudiced."

Latest Khadafy Turnabout Aligns Libya With USSR

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the kaleidoscopic events of the Middle East, none has turned more dizzily than the affairs of Libya since the takeover by revolutionary young officers led by Col. Moammar Khadafy.

Since September, 1969, Khadafy has proclaimed unity with, among others, Egypt, the Sudan, Tunisia, Malta and Uganda.

Best publicized of these love affairs was the proclamation of unity with Egypt announced in a joint communique on Aug. 2, 1972. It declared that Khadafy and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had agreed on the union of their two countries.

YET WHAT DID WE HEAR on Aug. 7, 1974, two years later almost to the day?

Sadat is accusing his erstwhile friend of plotting to blow up the presidential retreat in Mersa Matruh on the Mediterranean, of plotting to kill a prominent Egyptian journalist and of demanding return of French-built Libyan Mirage jet fighter bombers stationed in Egypt.

A stiff note from Sadat to Khadafy noted the seeming close coordination between plans to blow up the Mersa Matruh guest house with word circulated by Libyan information sources that a coup might be expected in Egypt on July 23.

AS EGYPT HAS SWUNG away from both Libya and the Soviet Union toward closer ties with the United States, Libya and the Soviets have moved closer together despite bitter ideological differences. Simultaneously, Khadafy's accusations against the United States have grown more shrill.

How long this new romance will last is a logical matter for speculation.

Khadafy frequently has annoyed Moscow with his denunciations of Soviet policies in the Middle East and of many Marxists.

He supported Sudanese President Jaffar Nimeiry against an abortive Communist coup in the Sudan and condemned the Soviet Union as a "colonialist power" for its support of India against Pakistan in the Bangladesh war. As a show of disapproval he recalled his ambassador to Baghdad after signing of the Iraq treaty of friendship with Moscow.

Despite these barbs there was good reason for Moscow's enthusiastic response to Khadafy's unexpected overtures.

LONG BEFORE MOSCOW gained its first real foothold in the Middle East with the distribution of arms to the Arab nations, it had sought to make Libya a base for its operations in the Eastern Mediterranean.

After World War II the Soviets sought to become one of the occupying powers in former North African Italian colonies. Among them was Libya. That move was blocked by the western allies.

In March, 1972, the Libyans and Russians signed an economic and technical agreement which really never got off the ground.

In May of this year, on Khadafy's initiative, they tried again.

In a joint communique they pledged "every assistance" to the Palestine guerrillas. It furthered Soviet moves to retain influence in the Middle East against American initiatives. And it gave support to Khadafy's hatred of Israel.

Presumably the agreement also included undefined technical aid for Libya and perhaps some military aid in return for an increase in sale of Libyan oil to the east European Communist bloc.

Thar's Gold In Them Thar Streets Of San Francisco

(Reprinted from The Wall Street Journal)

When gold was discovered at Sutter's mill in the Sacramento valley, men deserted their families, sailors jumped ship, and even women and children left home to rush to California's gold fields. Very few '49'ers ever struck it rich, though, and even John Sutter was ruined after hordes of prospectors destroyed his property. But the gold strike quickly transformed the sleepy settlement of San Francisco into a brawling, robust city of more than 25,000.

Yet if San Francisco's streets were not exactly paved with gold, there are riches there after all — at least for those who sweep them. Because of a provision in the city charter tying street sweepers' salaries to those of construction and industry in the area, San Francisco's street sweepers will be earning $17,000 annually by next June. According to Associated Press, artists, students, laborers and housewives are among the 750 daily applicants and inquirers eager to get in on the bonanza.

We would imagine the city's 230 street sweepers are counting their blessings, content that all things come to those who wait. Meanwhile, though, it doesn't hurt any to have influential friends in city hall.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

The Committee for Fairness to the President can relax now, but it should never go out of business entirely.

President Ford is counting heavily on his friendships in Congress. Remember when LBJ thought he could do that?

Before the change at the White House, there was a news report of a man walking a tight wire between two buildings. A lot of people immediately assumed it was Gerald Ford.

High-sounding organizations make elections confusing. How can we choose between one candidate's Committee for Better Government and another's Honest Citizens' League of Patriots?

ART BUCHWALD

Ford Assures Continuation Of Gastronomical Detente

One of Gerald Ford's first acts as president was to ask Paul Delisle to stay on as maitre d' of the Sans Souci Restaurant. As most people know, all the important government decisions are made at lunch time at the Sans Souci, and the president felt it was essential to an orderly transition of government that no personnel changes should take place at the restaurant.

A White House aide told me: "We feel that Paul will serve us with the same loyalty that he served previous administrations. The whole world is watching what we do, and I can't think of a better way of instilling confidence than Paul remaining in this key post in government."

MANY AMBASSADORS who eat at the Sans Souci expressed delight at the news that the president asked Paul to stay on. "We don't know President Ford," one told me, "but we do know Paul and we can deal with him. I have already cabled my government that Mr. Delisle will keep his maitre d' post, and despite the changeover in government, our country can still be assured of a table."

Lawyers and high officials of the media were also pleased that Paul would stay on. One leading pundit said: "In this grave hour of crisis the country needs continuity. By asking Paul to keep his position Mr. Ford is saying, 'No matter what happens America will survive.' "

As soon as the announcement was made I went over to see Paul to congratulate him on the appointment.

He read a statement. "I am proud and humble that the White House would ask me to remain in office. I promise to see that nothing but the prices will change at the Sans Souci. Despite the anguish of the past year and the shock that everyone has undergone, we must never forget government officials still have to eat. We have to forget the past and look to the future. The Sans Souci stands ready to face the challenge. I will now take questions."

"PAUL, IT SEEMS to me your major problem is going to be to take care of President Ford's aides who work at the White House. How will you be able to do this?"

"It will be hard at first because I won't know who they are. Unless they make the reservation in the name of the White House, I may make a mistake and turn them away, but as time goes on I will know where the power is and adjust my reservation list accordingly."

"But can you handle all this new business?"

"I believe I can. Many of the former Nixon aides are no longer in Washington, for one reason or another, so their tables will be filled by the new regime."

"Will you still accept reservations from former Nixon people who have not been sent away?"

"Of course. They may have to wait until the present White House staff is fed, but as long as I am maitre d' anyone who worked in the White House and can still afford it will be welcome. I still have customers from the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, although they no longer have decision-making powers, they get the same food as everybody else."

"ONE LAST question. Some of the plotting of Watergate and the coverup took place at the Sans Souci. Did the FBI ever question you about what you knew?"

"Yes, but I couldn't give them much help. Every time they asked me about someone I always replied, 'That wasn't my table.' "

Nixon Phones Ford To Laud His Speech

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Ford telephoned former President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday night to thank him for a message of congratulations on Ford's address to Congress, it was disclosed yesterday.

It was their first chat since Nixon resigned last Friday and flew to his San Clemente home while Ford was being sworn in to succeed him.

Jerry terHorst, Ford's press secretary, said in Washington that Ford made the telephone call to Nixon from his home in Alexandria, Va., and that the conversation lasted more than 15 minutes.

The former pesident watched the Ford address Monday night on television and afterwards sent a message of congratulations to him.

Nixon has not appeared publicly since he came Friday to what formerly was known as the Western White House. One change that has occurred is that Nixon has lost his former private beach to surfers.

Labor Relations Committee Has A New Chairman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy yesterday named Assemblyman Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, chairman of the labor relations committee.

Greene, a black, replaced McCarthy as head of the Assembly committee.

"In Bill Greene the legisnture has a man sensitive to the needs of the working man," McCarthy said. "He is also a man who can and will, with experience, move to solve the growing labor problems of minorities and women."

Greene was a key vote in McCarthy's speakership fight with Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., a San Francisco black Democrat.

Beef Prices Remain Below Last Year

DENVER (UPI) — Retail beef prices rose an average of 11 cents a pound in 19 American cities in the past month but were still below the levels of a year ago, the American National Cattlemen's Association reports.

Ground beef and chuck roast prices rose six to eight cents a pound and steak prices advanced nine to 15 cents a pound during the month, ANCA President Gordon van Vleck said. Van Vleck said the recent drought and factors hanging over from last year's price controls have caused the rise in prices of beef cattle. The drop in corn production probably will send prices still higher, he said.

GEN. ALEXANDER HAIG
Nixon's chief of staff

Haig Will Remain As Ford Aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided to keep Alexander M. Haig as White House chief of staff. The new President also asked all holdover Nixon Cabinet members to remain but a close associate said it was believed about half of them would be replaced by the end of the year.

Press Secretary Jerry terHorst said yesterday Ford had asked Haig to stay on "for the duration" —meaning indefinitely —and that Haig had agreed to "stay aboard."

Sources familiar with planning in the new Ford administration said there were indications that some members of Ford's old vice presidential team who have moved to the White House were wary of Haig's power, but that Ford already had learned to rely on Haig and was comfortable with him.

One source said that the first Cabinet member expected to leave was HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger, and budget direector Roy Ash was also expected to go shortly.

The source said Ford would make replacements gradually —that he wants his own Cabinet but that no one would be summarily dismissed.

"Ford is a very compassionate man," the source said. "The President wants to avoid the appearance of bloodbath, and he would not want it to seem that he is dumping anybody."

The source said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was considered "the only indispensable member of the Cabinet."

11 Are Killed In Illinois, Texas Fires

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Fires killed seven persons in a farmhouse in rural Illinois today and four persons in a frame boarding house at Fort Worth, Tex.

Five of the victims at a twostory wooden farmhouse near Flanagan, Ill., were children, sheriff's officers said.

Coroner Keith Von Qualen identified the dead as Michael Kovacievich, 26, his wife Gloria, son David, 2, daughter Kimberly, 7 weeks, three cousins of the Kovacievich family, Michael Koepke, 14, his brother Mark, 11, both of New Lenox, Ill., and Timothy Gotch, 11, of Rome, Ill.

The victims in Texas, all middle-aged or elderly men, were not immediately identified.

Yukon Indians Coin Names For Settlers

WHITE HORSE, Y.T. (UPI) — In the Chinook language the word 'chee' means new or fresh and the word 'chako' means to come. Thus, the word cheechako was applied to newcomers in the Yukon at the time of the Klondike gold rush of 1898.

It was generally agreed that a cheechako who had seen the winter ice come and go on the Yukon River was entitled to be called a sourdough, or veteran of the North Country.

HUSSEIN FLIES

Jordan's King Hussein smiles his pleasure from the pilot's seat of a new Boeing 727 Tri-Jet purchased by Royal Jordanian Airlines. Hussein flew the plane for several hours yesterday near Boeing's Seattle headquarters. Today he is in Washington, preparing to join President Ford for meetings and the administration's first state banquet tomorrow.

Shepherd Will Not Fight Dismissal

By PAT ANGLE

The executive director of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency and Housing Authority said yesterday he has no plans to fight his dismissal from the housing authority post.

Wallace K. Shepherd was fired from that job Tuesday by a 4-1 vote of the authority board. He will, however, continue in the redevelopment agency post.

(Because of a technical problem, the story reporting Shepherd's firing did not appear in all copies of yesterday's Independent-Journal.)

"It was an irresponsible act," Shepherd said of his ouster. "There's no telling what's behind it. The only thing that came out at the meeting (at which he was fired) was that I was a strong administrator.

"If I was fired for doing my job, well, that's OK."

Shepherd said he feels "obligated" to the county of Marin because "I owe the county a great deal for giving me an opportunity to prove my worth."

(No formal charge has been brought against the executive director. However, board member Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. said Shepherd refused to admit that the authority board, not himself, is reponsible for making policies. He also charged that Shepherd created antagonism on the board, was an inadequate administrator and was arrogant in dealing with the authority's low-income tenants.)

Shepherd said he currently is considering several job offers from agencies engaged in housing and community development.

But he also noted he is "enthusiastic" about a proposal by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to merge the housing authority and redevelopment agency.

"One of my dreams and major objectives has been a housing and community development agency run by the county, under the authority of the board of supervisors," he said.

Supervisors already have declared their intent to assume control of both agencies and will consider the matter more fully in late September or early October.

Shepherd told the Independent-Journal he had worried that the controversy surrounding him on the housing authority board might jeopardize the planned consolidation.

"I wrote to Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere on Aug. 4 and told him I was willing to resign from the housing authority. I also told the board that I was willing to resign."

(Shepherd said it is possible that he could be a candidate for the job of director of the agency which would be formed by the merger, but added: "I really don't know about that yet.")

Shepherd said he also told Roumiguiere that he was determined to "divest myself of responsibility" for certain recent actions of the housing authority board "over which I cannot exercise any effective control."

He told the I-J the authority board has taken actions "which I consider detrimental to the authority's best interests," but declined to specify what those were.

Meanwhile a spokesman for the redevelopment agency board — which supports the executive director — said that agency plans to continue its lawsuit to block the authority's unilateral firing of Shepherd without the consent of redevelopment board members.

"Our position hasn't changed," said Chairman Collie B. Gaines.

Under a long-standing policy Shepherd served both agencies at the joint pleasure of the respective boards. The housing authority abrogated that policy last month, but the redevelopment agency claims it had no right to do so.

Shepherd has been executive director of the two agencies since December of 1970. He has worked for the housing authority since 1968.

He and his wife, Artimae, and three children live in Novato.

Sex Attack Admitted By Novatan

A Novato ex-Marine pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to raping a 15-year-old Inverness girl and received a one-year sentence in Marin County Jail.

George Roland Call, 39, a 20-year veteran of both the Marines and the Army, also was placed on five years' probation and was ordered to take part in counseling and therapy.

Judge Charles Read Best said Call's assault on the girl, to whom he gave a ride April 27, "appeared to be an isolated incident."

Instead of taking the girl to Inverness, Call stopped his car on the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road and attacked her.

Judge Best dismissed two other counts, a second rape charge and kidnaping, against Call, a Mare Island Naval Shipyard worker.

Jones Released

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Composer Quincy Jones was released yesterday from Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where he was treated for 10 days for a urinary tract disorder, a hospital spokesman said.

Performance Dates Correction Made

The Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts production of "Oh Kay!" will run Fridays and Saturdays this week and next at 8:30 p.m. at the Mill Valley Golf Course Clubhouse.

An item in yesterday's Independent-Journal gave the wrong performance dates.

SHADOWS ON THE SUBJECT

Most of us were brought up photographically on the old saw of having the sun peering over our shoulders and shining directly on the subject. If we look into our viewfinders and see heavy black shadows, we have a tendency to give up.

The fact is, shadows can help give you your very best pictures. They emphasize details and textures, add drama and impact to ordinary scenes, and become an interesting additional element in the composition of the picture.

One reason we can forget the old rule and shoot pictures in shadows is that modern films have such a wide latitude compared to the comparatively insensitive films of the past which needed all the light they could get. With today's sensitive films you can capture detail in shadows that would have seemed impenetrable a photographic generation ago.

Speaking of films, you'll find the right film for your particular needs when you come to us. Stock up now, where you always find everything photographic.

Weird Device Falls From The Sky

Look, up in the sky . . .It's a bird . . . it's a plane . . . it's . . no, wait, it's a sonar depth charge.

Or maybe it's a sonar sounding device, or a sonar buoy. The military isn't exactly sure.

Whatever it is, it fell into a Lagunitas yard, and the bomb disposal squad at the Presidio of San Francisco doesn't exactly know what to do with it.

At 11:45 a.m. Sunday, Paul Berensmeier of Lagunitas looked up into the sky and there it was, a three-foot cylinder with a propeller on the end, plunging to earth.

It hit the ground with a thump in a neighbor's back yard right next to the woodpile and about 25 feet from where Berensmeier was standing.

A deputy sheriff came to look at the thing and found a serial number.

After a few telephone calls, the deputy had the answer: it was a sonar depth charge apparently dropped from a Navy plane.

The Presidio bomb squad was called to take the device away, but offered no explanation of how it came to fall from the sky.

Neither could public information officers for the Sixth Army in San Francisco and the Alameda Naval Air Station.

The air station spokesman said it sounded like a sonar buoy, a nonexplosive device dropped by an airplane to detect submarines.

He allowed as how it could have been dropped by accident by a Naval Reserve plane in a flight over Marin.

The Army spokesman said members of the bomb squad aren't familiar enough with Navy equipment to tell if the gadget is a sonar depth charge or a sonar sounding device — the difference being that the former has an explosive charge and the latter does not.

If the Navy or the Coast Guard doesn't claim the device before the end of the week, bomb squad personnel will blow it up, he said.

Meanwhile, the sonar depth charge, or sounding device, or buoy, sits quietly in a bunker at the Presidio, waiting for its owner to step forward.

Ford Impresses Mayors In White House Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty mayors and governors, normally wary as alley cats let into the kitchen, went to the White House to talk to President Ford yesterday and came out purring like kittens.

"The difference in this meeting (and the past) was the difference between the sun shining and a drab day," said Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania after 15 governors of both parties met with the President.

"We were impressed with his openness and honesty," Democratic Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans told reporters on the White House lawn after Ford's separate session with a bipartisan group of mayors. "The warmth was a refreshing change over what we have had in the past."

"We feel very, very good that there is a man in the White House who is listening to the cities," said San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto after a one-hour session with Ford.

Alioto, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, led a 16-member delegation into the conference with Ford.

Alioto and Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley sat on either side of the President as they discussed the plight of the nation's cities.

"It didn't make any difference whether we were Republicans, Democrats or independents, this was a new start," Alioto said afterward.

The two meetings were more than political "stroking" sessions. By all accounts, Ford made it clear he would support the multibillion dollar general revenue sharing program the governors and mayors have come to count on to balance their budgets, and that he would work to cut red tape in the transfer of funds from Washington to the states and cities.

Ford also talked about the economy, and according to Gov. Calvin Rampton, Democrat of Utah, made it clear "he had no magic formula to turn off the spigot of double-digit inflation."

That impressed Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, chairman of the Democratic Governors' Conference: "I like the fact that he was honest about it." Anderson said bipartisan cooperation with the new President was likely "as long as he maintains this openness."

Mayor Keneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., a black Democrat, said he outlined his city's use of revenue sharing funds to reduce property taxes, and "the President said he wanted to use the Newark figures as an example of the effective use of general revenue sharing."

But everything was not rosy agreement. Democratic Mayor Abraham Beame of New York, while calling Ford's demeanor "very encouraging, very open —he wants to help," expressed concern that the President wanted cuts in federal mass transit subsidies that were far below what his city needed.

"He is not thinking in the same dollar amounts we are," Beame said.

Republican Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia said Ford "cut the cloth square," and called the meeting excellent.

Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, chairman of the GOP Governors Conferences, said he told the President his state was burdened by excessive recordkeeping under revenue sharing. "He got the message," Dunn said.

Shapp said he told Ford states had to deal with as many as 60 federal agencies on energy matters. "The President made a note of that," Shapp said. "I think that situation may change."

Phantom Cat Finally Caught

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Miss Phantom stepped into a baited trap in the city's new theater Tuesday, ending the Calico cat's lengthy career as a prowler.

Miss Phantom had lurked in the hall several months before the building was opened to the public in June.

"She was a very clever cat. You would see her outside when all the doors were locked and the next minute she would be inside," said one employee.

Miss Phantom will be put up for adoption.

First Lady To Select A Secretary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford was expected to select Nancy Howe, who used to sell White House guide books, as her personal secretary.

Mrs. Howe, of Lynchburg, Va., has been working with Mrs. Ford since last fall at the start of Gerald Ford's vice presidency. The new first lady has not yet announced the names of other staff members.

She was busy packing the family's personal belongings to move into the White House on Monday. Ford has been commuting to the White House daily from his Alexandria, Va., home.

Susan Ford, 17, was the first member of the family to finish her packing. She is going on vacation next week and won't get settled in the White House until after she returns.

Mrs. Ford is doing her own packing of the family's personal belongings. But the government movers are expected to come in to transport the major furnishings.

Mill Valley, Sewer Districts To Meet

The Mill Valley City Council will meet with representatives of sanitary districts which pump their sewage to the city for treatment today at 8 p.m. at city hall to discuss sharing of sewer permits recently granted to the Mill Valley area by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Milk Price Hearing Is Requested

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A resolution calling on the Reagan administration to conduct public hearings on the price of milk was approved yesterday by the Senate Rules Committee.

Consumer advocates, who sought the measure, said it could lead to evidence that state-controlled milk prices should be reduced.

But the author of the proposal (SR114), Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, acknowledged the possibility that the hearings could reveal the need for even higher milk price levels.

The measure was sent to the floor on a 3-1 vote.

It was opposed by the state Grange on grounds there already have been "many" such hearings.

"There is no indication in the foreseeable future of any reduction in these costs. In fact, costs are rising," said Grange spokesman Herman Grabow.

Consumer activists led by Roy Alper of the California Citizens Action Group had appealed directly to the Department of Food and Agriculture for the hearings, but were turned down.

A similar resolution is pending before the Assembly.

Talks Continue In Transit Strike

OAKLAND (UPI) — Negotiators for the AC Transit District and striking bus drivers met for nearly three hours yesterday in an attempt to end a 46-day walkout.

State Conciliator Tom Nicolopulos said he had been meeting separately with the two sides for several days in an effort to resume face-to-face talks.

A tentative contract agreed upon by the bargaining teams has been twice rejected by rank-and-file members of Division 192 of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

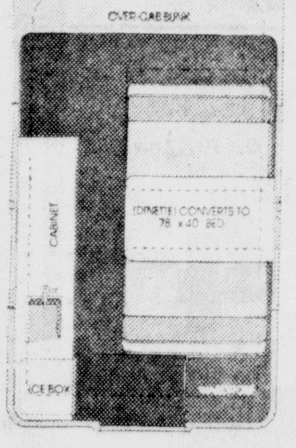
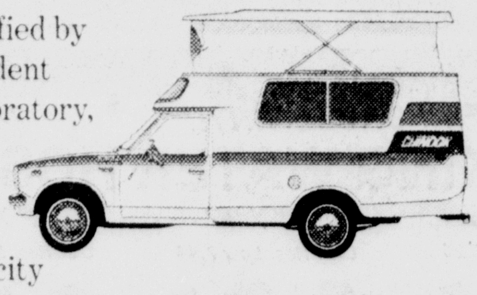
Introducing the Toyota-Chinook Round Tripper.



It takes you just about anywhere within a 120 mile radius and back again! On one 13.7 gal. tank of gas.

That's something you wouldn't expect from a bigger camping vehicle. But this one gets over 19 miles per gallon!

(Tests, verified by an independent testing laboratory, were conducted over mountain roads, city streets and freeways in Southern California.)



Yet, you still get the basics you expect in the bigger vehicles. Like a sink. A dinette. An ice box. Carpeting. And a couple of beds.

It's fully integrated, too. Just walk back through the cab and pop up the top for over six feet of headroom.

*Distances were measured, according to the AAA, from city hall to city hall by the most direct route. Actual gas mileage, of course, depends on personal driving habits and road conditions.

Fashion Experts Say Miniskirt Is Dead

By GAY PAULEY
By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The miniskirt is dead, say many fashion experts in Paris, Rome, London and New York. But, devotees are fighting back.

The mini's epitaph seemed to be written in London, where the short, short skirt originated 10 years ago, when the C and A group of clothing stores, which sold 18,000 minis a day at the height of the fashion, said the style was finished.

"NO WAY," said a typical male, Mike Timko, 20, in San Francisco.

"I don't believe hemlines will go down," said Sharon Alwart, 30, of Appleton, Wis., a secretary visiting New York. "Too many American women are too free in their ideas. They'll wear what they like. American women are more liberated than other women."

Lucille Richards, a clothing store owner in New York, said she doubted the longer skirts would be popular because they are "just not a flattering length for most women. They're ugly."

IN U.S. CITIES and resorts, the mini seemed very much alive, at least for the summer. It may be the last gasp.

This year's fall and winter collections from Paris, Rome and New York definitely drop the hemlines below the knee. UPI Correspondent Aline Mosby in Paris reported that French girls hardly ever wear minis now, although Scandinavian and German girls do.

"I haven't been able to sell a mini in over a year," said the operator of a Chicago women's apparel shop which caters to women from 18 to 85.

. . . OR THIS?
1974 fall style, by Galanos

"THE LENGTH now is right around the knees. I bought some calf-length midcalf for fashion items only, but I expect they will be shortened to the knee before they sell."

Paris designers stopped doing minis two or three years ago. The only designer bucking the longer hemline trend is Andre Courreges.

"I always have liked the short look," said Courreges, whose hemlines rest at the top of the knee in his new collection. "It's younger."

Courreges doesn't have any minis for fall and winter but he does not include midcalf hemlines either.

"LONG SKIRTS are here but actually this doesn't mean the mini is dead," said Patricia McColl, who is based in Paris with Women's Wear Daily.

"That's old-fashioned thinking, to say that one thing is in or out. Women are liberated now and they can wear what they want to when they want to. You can hardly say a fashion is dead."

Muriel Sinclair, of Joseph Magnin Co., San Francisco, said even young people now "have definitely swung to longer skirts.

"But miniskirts are still available and are still sold (although) not the real mini-mini, short-shortie skirts of the 60's."

Edith Gillespie, a New York housewife, figured now was a bad time to tamper with lengths.

"With inflation so bad, not many women will want to invest a lot of money in a whole new set of clothes," she said.

Claud Vetengles Feted On 50th Wedding Anniversary

By MOLLY MARIN

Relatives and friends gathered last month to honor the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Vetengle of Fairfax.

The garden party was held at the home of Jack and Vi Stamper of San Anselmo and was hosted by the Stampers; Etta Palmer, the sister of Mrs. Vetengle; and the couple's daughter, Etta Mary McArdle of San Anselmo.

Claud and Catherin Vetengle were wed July 19, 1924, in San Francisco, moving to Fairfax in 1935. While gardening is their "real work now," the two still work part time; she in San Francisco and he at a pet shop in San Anselmo where he has worked for over 20 years.

Thirty-five guests attended the party including their grandchildren, Chris and Cindy McArdle of San Anselmo.

A NUMBER of Marinites will be on hand Monday to eye the high-fashion offerings of New York designer Oscar de la Renta in a show sponsored by the Auxiliary of San Francisco's Presbyterian Hospital.

Reservations have been made by Mmes. Peter Bakker of Ross, William Nickels and Benedict Viering of San Rafael, Gerald Stratford, Charles Beltz and Clifford Schwarberg of Tiburon, S. M. Zweig of Sausalito, Herbert Hussin of Corte Madera and Jorgen With-Seidelin of Mill Valley. Mrs. Schwarberg's husband, incidentally, is administrator of the hospital.

The show-goers will gather for cocktails and lunch in the St. Francis Hotel Grand Ballroom. All proceeds will benefit the Pacific Medical Center.

In the collection, we understand, will be 17 black dresses for wear "for the cocktail hour and later on."

The new Velvet Turtle restaurant in Terra Linda was jammed with party-goers Tuesday night as members and friends of Planned Parenthood turned out for a cocktail benefit.

Faces in the crowd: Board President Mrs. Ian White (and Mr.), Barbara Boxer, Dr. and Mrs. N. Edward Boyce, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Juliet, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Birkie, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Hohe (he's the new chairman of the group's medical advisory committee), Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waxman.

Mrs. Mason Flemming, chairman of the party, reported close to 300 people turned out to sip cocktails and pay their money to support the Planned Parenthood Clinic at 710 C Street in San Rafael.

GETTING AWAY from planes, Richard Duste, president of Marin Aviation, Inc., in Novato, and his family took a trip to Alaska on the ship, Spirit of London. Mr. and Mrs. Duste and their three sons, Rick, 21, Bob, 18, and Tim, 10, who live in Terra Linda, went by Amtrak to Vancouver, B. C. and then went aboard the ship.

Helen Duste said they stopped at Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway, Sitka and cruised Glacier Bay where they saw beautiful blue icebergs. In Sitka they saw the rebuilding of the Orthodox Church which burned a few years ago and enjoyed seeing the old wooden sidewalks. Arriving home Aug. 7, Mrs. Dusk said the weather was beautiful all the way, with the daytime temperature never below 70 degrees.

Living in Sebastopol after their wedding last month are the former Cheryl DeBaun of Santa Rosa and Richard Thomas Reis of Novato.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. DeBaun, works in the accounting office of Servodyne Corp. Richard is employed as production manager at Air Monitor Corp. in Santa Rosa. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Reis.

Both young people were graduated from Novato High School.

Their wedding took place at St. Eugene's Church in Santa Rosa.

A WEDDING dress worn by her mother and sewn by her grandmother and great-grandmother was worn by Teresa Briones when she became the bride of Robert Steele in a noon ceremony July 27 at St. Rita's Catholic Church in Fairfax.

The gown was of white satin and lace.

Maid of honor was Cindy Urquart of San Anselmo, with bridesmaids Bea Kenney of San Rafael, Dennie O'Brien of San Geronimo, Julie Storrs of San Anselmo and Betty Briones, sister of the bride.

Best man was Dennis Gallagher of San Anselmo. Serving as ushers were Dave Stillian and Mike O'Leary of Fairfax and Ken Mazzetta of Petaluma.

TWO PROGRAMS

Quilting Art To Be Shared

By BETTY FROST

In the old days in Hawaii, individualized quilt designs were so jealously guarded that the women who created them would hang them on the clothesline lining side out, so they couldn't be copied.

Deborah Kakalia, Hawaiian quilting expert now visiting in Marin, finds the openness of quilting enthusiasts here remarkable. "It is so nice for everyone to share this knowledge," she said.

Mrs. Kakalia is sharing her knowledge of Hawaiian quilting at programs today and tomorrow at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. The programs — from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. — are sponsored by the Mill Valley Quilt Authority.

MARIN'S FABRIC houses are dazzling, the quilter said, with a far greater variety of cloth available than in Honolulu. She has bought many yards of cotton and polyester cotton to take home for her own use.

The process of reverse applique observed here was also new to her, since Hawaiians create their quilts by the applique process, often using only two colors. The whole business of patchwork, used by thrifty American colonists and pioneers to give bits of leftover fabric a new usefulness, is outside the Hawaiian experience, she said. When she goes home, she will experiment with designs using scraps.

Wives of missionaries began teaching island women to sew in the 1820's. The small supply of calico print scraps which the New England women had brought with them soon ran out. Bolts of bright colored cloth were available, and this may account for the unified designs where large motifs in applique are set upon a bed-size square of cotton.

"THE 'KAPA KWICKI,' (quilted blanket) uses traditional designs that relate to the Hawaiian royal family," Mrs. Kakalia explained. In creating an individualized folk art, the women used flower and lei motifs, the Spanish comb traditionally worn by the queen, a crown, the Hawaiian coat of arms, the lamp on the palace grounds, and such natural subjects as the 'maile lei,' a vine used in royal ceremonies.

The central design is outlined with quilting stitches symbolizing ocean waves, and is frequently completed with a decorative border.

The Hawaiian flag also has special significance. When the last royal ruler, Queen Liliuokalani was deposed and imprisoned in 1893, the Hawaiian flag could to longer be flown. Women of Hawaii, working in secret, created many quilts to preserve the treasured national emblem.

"It is 'kapu' (forbidden) to sit on a flag quilt, or on any of the symbols of royalty worked into a quilt," the visitor said. "However it is considered good luck for a family member to sleep under such a quilt."

AS A PERSON of Hawaiian ancestry, Mrs. Kakalia is entitled to membership in two Hawaiian societies, the Koahumanu (which means feathered cape) for women, and the Hale o Na Alii (the House of Royalty Lodge) for both men and women. These groups are dedicated to preserving the old customs.

At home, she is a teacher of quilting and also designs and makes quilts for clients. Her skills are all the more remarkable, since she taught herself to quilt after she was 40 years old.

"Many of my friends had inherited quilts," she revealed, "but I knew I would have to make my own heirlooms."

Since it is traditional for each member of the family to be given a personalized quilt, and Mrs. Kakalia has seven children and 20 grandchildren, she is continually working on those heirlooms.

SHE HOPES her Marin friends will begin with the "ulu" or breadfruit design. The breadfruit is a sign of progress, and means, "if you make one quilt, you will make another," according to island lore.

The question Mrs. Kakalia is most frequently asked here is, "Why do you need quilts in Hawaii where the weather is so warm?"

"We are used to a warm temperature in the islands, and when it goes below 70 degrees, we feel the cold," is her answer.

Apparently the coverlet filled with cotton batting is just the right weight to ward off the chill from Pacific breezes and tropical rain squalls.

Marin Women

School For Children With High Potential

"Hands On," school for high potential children, will open Sept. 10 in Mill Valley, at the United Methodist Church.

Open house for parents interested in enrolling their children in the new school will be held Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the church. On display will be students working with computers, animals and science equipment, some of the tools to be used at Hands On.

Hands On, said one of its organizers, is a school that will be a "real hands on experience where students learn by doing." Using the "finest equipment available" and teachers with expertise in their fields, the school hopes to foster individualized thinking, said Jessie Harsham of Tiburon, president of the Board of Trustees and one of the organizers of College for Kids at the College of Marin.

The school for youngsters 5 to 9 years of age was designed especially for the high potential, intelectually gifted or very creative child, said Mrs. Harsham.

The curriculum will include "all the normal subjects that every child is required to take" in school, "but that's the beginning," she said. A student will have the opportunity at Hands On to delve deeply into a subject that really excites him, she said. "There's no strict time schedule, she continued. Students will be able to learn at their own rate through individualized teaching.

Mrs. Harsham estimates that there are 5,000 children in the county that have an IQ of at least 132," a figure by which the state defines a gifted child. "We do practically nothing for the high potential child" who can be our new leaders, she said.

Students at the new school, said Mrs. Harsham, will be taught to "live in the real world": for example, they will study the local system of justice by visiting juvenile hall and police stations, later discussing their observations.

"(If you) give kids what they want," she said, "(they can) grab and run with it."

The school is also relying on parent participation and one of the requirements is parent involvement with the school at least once a month.

Elaine Reber of Greenbrae is educational director and one of the three teachers, her specialty being computers, computer math and physical science. Chris Johnson-Lyons of Nicasio will teach biology, social science and "Surviving in Marin," a class on backpacking and exploring the county. A third teacher is yet to be selected.

Besides the teachers, a student teacher and a parent, Mrs. Harsham said guest "teachers" will come each day drawing from such fields as astronomy, gymnastics and music.

Parents Probably Overreact To Hammer Home A Lesson

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My two girlfriends and I were sleeping out in our backyard when two guys came over to see us. All we did was talk but my parents came out and discovered them there and got very upset.

They say we invited the boys over, when actually we just accidentally mentioned we were sleeping out when we saw them earlier that day.

Our parents figure they know "exactly what we were thinking" because "they were once that age." They say the boys will make up ugly rumors and our reputations will be ruined. When we just talked?

We know we should have told Mom and Dad when the guys showed up and then it would have been okay because we wouldn't have been "sneaking" as they say. What we can't understand is, if they'd let the boys visit, knowing they were there, why did they get so pushed out of shape, finding out for themselves?

Now we're restricted indefinitely, as our parents say they've lost all faith in us.

How can we get their trust back and prove we aren't "bad girls?" — INNOCENT BUT CONVICTED

I BUT C:

I think your parents may be acting more shook than they actually are to make sure you remember their number one slumber party rule: no boys allowed, especially through the back gate or over the fence!

They know you "just talked" (so did my parents when I was giving junior high school sleep-outs and somehow a boy or two always managed to find out when and where). But as chaperons for you girls, they can't take chances.

Let them know you see their side and they'll soon be trusting you again. (I doubt that they ever stopped). — SUE

DEAR IN. BUT CON.:

Ah, those junior high slumber parties. . .and the worries we chaperoning parents suffered! We knew that if other parents learned boys "had been sneaking around," we'd be blamed. . .and we also knew they'd try to jump the fence, without much argument from the girls. Not that the girls were "bad," but having your slumber party crashed was a safe and daring adventure. It gave you status with the kids.

I'll bet your mother remembers when she and her teen friends "just accidentally mentioned they were sleeping out, to a couple of guys". . .and how her folks reacted! — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I feel lost, unwanted, rejected, not needed. I never contemplated suicide before but there's a first time for everything. I guess maybe I was a big mistake.

When I was a little girl I was quiet and shy but happy. Why am I so miserable now? I was never popular with the kids and not well known by boys. I feel as if I'm invisible. I'm there but no one sees me or cares to try. They're all too busy to bother with a nobody like me. My parents say they care and they try but I still feel like an empty shell, with no personality, nothing. . .

I think I need psychiatric help but we can't afford it. What can I do? — NO ONE SPECIAL

DEAR SPECIAL:

More than anything else, you need friends! We believe you could find them if you'd join a group that specializes in helping teens. You'll find such groups in churches, youth centers, the YWCA, hobby clubs. But you must make the first move — with your parents' backing. It won't be so hard after you realize how many other kids feel invisible, too.

P.S. If you'll send us your name and address, we'll forward the mail that will surely come in answer to your letter. Our readers never let a lonely person down! — HELEN AND SUE

Vallejo Adobe To Be Wedding Scene

The first wedding to be performed at the General Mariano Vallejo Adobe home since 1860 will be held on Sunday, Aug. 18 during the Old Adobe Fiesta in Petaluma.

Michael Alexander and Diana Waggoner of San Francisco will be married during the festival in the courtyard of the adobe. The bride will arrive at 1 p.m. in a horse-drawn carriage once owned by the Vallejo family. Immediately following the ceremony, to be performed by Judge Alexander McMahon, the wedding party will be taken by horse-drawn carriage to a barbecue in the eucalyptus grove across the road.

A foot pump organ will provide music, along with two fiddlers. The Petaluma Garden Club will decorate the area where the couple will be married, according to Ed Manion, a Petaluma historian, who is handling the arrangements.

Anyone dressed in Russian, Spanish or Pioneer costume may attend the wedding.

The last couple married at the Vallejo adobe was William Jones and Rebecca Ann Farley in February, 1860. The Farleys were living at the ranch at that time and renting the adobe home. The adobe was built in the 1830s.

BASED IN SAUSALITO

Music Community Backs School

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Music: Discuss contemporary styles and Marin County has to crop up. There probably are more rock and pop musicians per square foot here than anywhere else.

So it's a wonder that none has done it before, establish the kind of music school that can provide a focus, a cultural and intellectual center, for all this energy and talent to come together. A place where musicians can feel comfortable sharing their skill, experience and ideas.

Perhaps it has been tried, but the kind of money and organizational ability required for such a project has not been there. Musicians, for the most part romantics like other artists, deal in fluff, dreams, abstractions. They push air around. Whatever self discipline and management power they possess usually is spent keeping their own act together.

So it is with a considerable degree of enthusiasm that the local pop music community is getting behind a new venture: Family Light Music School.

The physical facility itself is taking shape on Harbor Drive in Sausalito, where workmen and acoustical engineers are dividing up a former design studio into classrooms, practice rooms and offices.

Family light brochures are seemingly everywhere that a musician or aspiring musician might be found, from music stores to bars and restaurants.

What is impressive is the ambition of this effort. Promotional material lists 60 teachers. Instrumental instruction will include piano, flute, saxaphone, fiddle, violin, cello, classical harp, voice, lute, zither, dulcimer, mandolin, Indian woodwinds, percussion and, of course, guitar, including bass, pedal steel and dobro in styles ranging from rock, blues and jazz to bluegrass and country.

Pamela Polland, professionally known as singer Melba Rounds, will teach the art of performing. Frank Kofsky, with a doctorate in jazz history, will lead a course in black music history. Agent and manager Diane Sward will dissect the music business.

Also planned are courses in disc jockeying and recording techniques and even a class for roadies, those unsung heroes who transport from gig to gig the amplifiers, instruments, microphones and other gear that a modern rock band requires.

The list goes on and on. Behind all this is Jan Tangen, a 28-year-old guitarist who has been performing and teaching since his college days in Berkeley 10 years ago.

Tangen, a slight, wiry fellow with a Fu Manchu Moustache and enough nervous energy to power a set by the Rolling Stones, says the problem with most music schools is that they are, frankly, straight. Generally, they aren't the kind of places that a working musician learning his craft playing the dance club circuit, for example, can step in and teach a course, take a few himself and talk shop with other players in the same circles.

There are exceptions, Blue Bear Waltzes in San Francisco, primarily a rock and blues school, and the Ali Akbar school in Fairfax, specializing in Indian music. But the directors of these have purposely limited their scope.

Tangen's motto, inscribed meticulously with a fountain pen in the looseleaf notebook he carries to keep track of his ever mounting appointments, is that "there are no limits." He truly seems to believe it, as the array of courses in his school catalog suggests, and, more importantly, seems to infect those around him with his optimism and confidence.

Over the past year, he has arranged the financing, found a building "that felt right for a music school" and developed most of the curriculum, assisted by Ginger Lee, a former dancer who most recently sharpened her administrative and business talents marketing women's fashions.

Tangen, of San Rafael, was reared in Marin, graduating from San Rafael High School. As a boy, he was introduced to rock music through Elvis Presley, as so many his age were, and received his first guitar as a barmitzvah present.

After high school, it was off to Berkeley, where he studied history at the University of California, dabbled in radical politics and discovered the blues.

It wasn't long before he abandoned plans to become a lawyer, moved to Washington, D.C., and studied guitar under jazz great Charlie Byrd.

Since returning to the Bay Area in 1966 he has continued to refine his chops as a member of several musical groups, including a four-month stint with Sylvester and His Hot Band. Most recently, he played with a band called Change with brothers David and Jon Fromer, the latter best known as the host of "Git Box Tickle," a Bay Area television show aimed at introducing children to music through guitar playing and songs.

Jon Fromer will teach children's guitar classes at Family Light, whose faculty is expanding daily, according to Tangen. "At first," he explains, "we decided the courses and tried to find the best teachers we could. Then musicians started calling me, even before we had a building, with offers to teach this or that. The enthusiasm is overwhelming and it keeps spreading. The school name is totally appropriate. It really has become a musical family venture."

Private lessons are under way and group instruction is scheduled to begin sometime in September, when renovation of the school building is finished.

Already there are plans to open a nightclub, Family Lighthouse, which will showcase student talent, and to expand the school to include dance and other arts.

"Projects like this usually do go broke," Tangen acknowledges. "But this can't miss," he says with a confidence he credits to Erhardt Seminar Training (est). "There's so much happening, it's hard just keeping a lid on it."

Baton Twirlers Spin In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If you somehow got the idea that twirling a baton and tossing it high in the air is something that belongs in a nostalgia movie, then step into the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

The United States Twirling Association is holding its Grand National Competition here, with 3,500 twirlers from across the country, and some from Europe and Japan.

Maybe their mothers were dreaming of happier days gone by when they started these kids in the suburban twirling school. But the lithe young ladies and young men who strut and twist as they zip their silver batons through the air are putting as much enthusiasm into their work as anybody did in the good old days.

"This is the biggest meet yet," says Jack Crum, head of the association. "It's getting bigger all the time."

Crum says nobody really knows how many boys and girls are in baton twirling around the country but he said it is the biggest youth activity next to scouting.

Contestants spend months practicing, maybe six or eight hours a day, getting ready for the nationals. Then they have two minutes on the floor before the judges.

Tiffany Lee, a pretty blonde 8-year-old twirler from Indianapolis, Ind., squats on the floor in her pink spangled tights. She has a tiny silver crown on her head. She is about to get her two minutes.

Three other little girls rush up to Tiffany and hand her a vase with three carnations in it. Then each clasps her little finger in Tiffany's little finger. That's the good luck gesture among twirlers.

Is dropping the baton a tragedy for a twirler?

"It's only five-tenths of a point," says Barbara Monte De Rey, of Sacramento, Calif., the mother of twirler Maria De Rey, 7. "They are judged on the variety of their routine, the difficulty, speed, smoothness and showmanship —20 points for each."

The most disastrous event of the meet so far happened to Kira Cutler, 9, of Sacramento. She was in her final spin, her baton flying. In the last intense maneuver to catch it, Kira fell and broke an arm.

That was two points against her. She will be back next year.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture & TV Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The Council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association Magazine and Parent's Magazine, unless otherwise stated. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Herbie Rides Again" — Helen Hayes, an eccentric granny in distress, aided by an old Volkswagen in this Disney sequel to the "Love Bug." Fun for all.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Ben" — The further adventures of Ben, a highly intelligent rat adopted by a sickly young boy. Several men are slain by Ben and 4,000 trained rats finally meet their doom. May appeal to children more than adults.

"Brother Sun, Sister Moon" — A film about St. Francis of Assisi and the founding of the Franciscan Order in 1200 A.D. Picturesque and dramatically portrayed.

"Claudine" — Diahann Carroll and James Earl Jones star in romantic comedy that depicts black family life with honesty, wit and compassion. Frank dialogue and a lot of cursing.

"Cops and Robbers" — Skillful comedy of cops turned robbers. You may end up rooting for the bad guys if your morals don't get in the way.

"Play It Again Sam" — A one-joke comedy about a movie buff. Most of the humor stems from Woody Allen's constant self-deprecation. Amusing take-offs on old movies. (mature teens)

"Three Musketeers" — A spirited production of the classic story of bravery and intrigue. Very entertaining. Some sex and violence.

"T. R. Baskin" — Candice Bergen as an unhappy girl whose cynical wit doesn't disguise her dread of ultimate disappointment. A semi-comedy of little value. Some nudity. (Not for youth under 15.)

"Uptown Saturday Night" — Delightful ghetto comedy with a distinguished cast, headed by Cosby, Belafonte, Poitier and Flip Wilson. Strong visual humor. Some coarse language.

"Arnold" — Well-acted but tedious comedy rehash of old mystery formula in whicha group of greedy heirs get knocked off. Cursing, partial nudity.

"For Pete's Sake" — Barbara Streisand in a mediocre slapstick comedy. Borrowing money to help her husband she gets involved in prostitution, cattle-rustling, etc. to repay her debt. Questionable humor, black ethnic and black macabre comedy. Cursing. (Over 17)

"The Sting" — Two 1930 con-men set out to ruin a powerful Chicago racketeer. Entertaining for the mature. Cursing, violence.

"Vanishing Point" — A film as boring as it is pointless. Much sex, nudity, violence and cursing. (Over 16)

ADULTS ONLY

"Blazing Saddles" — A wildly inventive assault on every cliche in the Western movie business. A ribald, knowingly sly, bawdy comedy. Offensive language. Definitely not for children or adolescents.

"Buster & Billie" — A sordid story of a 1948 high school boy and girl. Should have been a love story but turns into a savage human drama, showing gang rape, violence, murder and nudity. (Box Office)

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles Chinatown of 1937. Good cast and costuming. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Death Wish" — Western good guys and bad guys theme. Vigilantes, violence and gun culture explored. Charles Bronson gives it popular appeal.

"The Exorcist" — A nonsensical, stomach-turning, horror tale of a 12-year-old girl possessed by the devil. For adults with strong stomachs, weak minds. All others no.

"New Centurions" — Based on the best-seller about the Los Angeles police force. Violence, nudity, crime and cursing.

Old Adobe Fiesta Set In Petaluma

The 13th annual Old Adobe Fiesta Sunday in Petaluma will offer a full day of food, games, entertainment and education and even a real, live wedding, according to Ross Smith, president of the fiesta.

Throughout the day, local service clubs, youth groups and charitable organizations will man food, games and sales booths in the eucalyptus grove across Adobe Road from the landmark. Thousands of Petalumans and visitors from all over the Bay Area are expected to attend, Smith said. Both parking and admission to the fiesta will be free.

Smith gave the following timetable for the fiesta:

SATURDAY

In the evening — the time's not certain — the old sailing scow Alma will arrive from San Francisco at the Petaluma River turning basins to be moored there until Sunday evening.

SUNDAY

7 a.m. to 1 p.m. — Adobe Lions Club pancake and ham breakfast at Walnut Park, D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South. The $1.50 price. will benefit Lions' service projects.

3 p.m. — Judging of whiskerino contest.

Thin Man Escapes From Hospital Cell

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — A 36-year-old inmate starved himself for five months until he was thin enough to slip through the bars of his cell and escape from a psychiatric hospital.

A hospital official said the man filed off a single iron bar to flee the institution where he was under observation after being convicted of 18 break-ins.

SHORING UP A SLIPPING HILLSIDE

A bulldozer crawls over the skinned face of a crumbling hillside that has threatened to swallow the Fountain Motel, on Shoreline Highway at the entrance to Tennessee Valley. Underground water has been removed by installation of subdrains, according to the county public works department, and earthmovers are busy grading and pushing loose soil back into place. Massive movement of the bank occurred in 1970, and again last winter, forcing the motel owners to undertake the current work on repairing the slide. Some of the earth is being dumped in a nearby quarry site.

Candidate Van Camp Feels Office Is Too Partisan

The Republican candidate for California secretary of state believes the office should be made non-partisan.

It is entirely too partisan now, contends Brian R. Van Camp, who was in San Rafael this week to set up his Marin County campaign.

"Jerry (Edmund G. Brown Jr.) Brown has used the office for his own partisan political purposes," Van Camp charged. Further, he declared, he asked Brown Jr., the secretary of state, to have his own campaign expenditure statements processed by the attorney general, but Brown refused.

"He certifies his own filings, and then uses the contributor lists of other candidates in his own campaign for governor," Van Camp alleged in an interview.

Van Camp's November opponent will not be Brown, who is seeking the governorship, but March K. Fong, Chinese-American assemblyman from Oakland best known for her campaign against pay toilets.

But Van Camp contends that the secretary of state, who is in charge of California's election machinery, should be elected on a non-partisan basis, as is the superintendent of public instruction. The same proposal has been made by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

BRIAN R. VAN CAMP
Decries partisanship

Besides conducting elections, the secretary of state has charge of such things as processing filings of corporation papers. Under Brown's operation, the office's efficiency has suffered until such processing (formerly completed in a matter of days) now takes several months, Van Camp claimed. He would restore efficiency, and do it without increasing personnel, he declared.

Although born in Kansas, Van Camp has been a Sacramento resident since the age of 6. He is a graduate of University of California at Berkeley (where he was student body president) and U.C.'s Boalt Hall School of Law.

He served as a deputy in the state attorney general's office following his admission to the bar, then was attorney for the Sacramento Redevelopment Agency. He joined Governor Reagan's administration in April 1970, as assistant secretary of business and transportation, and was appointed acting secretary the following February.

In August 1971, at age 31, he was named state commissioner of corporations — the youngest person ever to hold that position in California. He resigned that office to campaign for secretary of state.

In 1973, Van Camp won the "Young Man of the Year" award of Active 20-30 International. He and his wife, Moni, have two daughters, aged 10 and 11.

Attorney Peter B. Brekhus is chairman of Van Camp's Marin campaign committee. Allan Herzog and James Dawson are in charge of finance; Gerald J. Hood, speakers' bureau, and Wendy Johnston, publicity. No Marin County headquarters is planned.

Killer Storm In Venezuela Losing Force Over Mountains

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Alma swept over northwestern Venezuela and began spending its strength against the mountain peaks today after claiming 48 lives and driving hundreds of persons from their homes.

Officials in Caracas said most of those routed from their houses lived along the eastern coast of Venezuela, where some of the smaller airports were forced to close for several hours as the storm passed.

Meteorlogical authorities in Caracas said the winds dropped to gusts during the night and that by noon the storm will have left the mainland.

Romulo Marin of the Venezuelan Air Force weather office said there were reports of damage to housing in the Guiria area. He said the roofs of some houses were torn off and some trees uprooted.

At 9 a.m. EDT the disorganized center of the storm was estimated just east of Lake Maracaibo and was moving west at 28 miles an hour.

Forty-seven of the deaths attributed to Alma occurred when an airliner crashed Wednesday on the resort island of Margarita, off the Venezuelan coast. The other victim was killed when the storm swept across the island of Trinidad with 55 m.p.h. winds.

Officials at the National Hurricane Center in Miami downgraded the storm to a tropical depression today after top sustained winds dropped to 35 m.p.h., with gusts of 45 m.p.h.

Forecasters said no change in intensity was expected during the day but warned the system might become better organized tonight as it moves off the coast of Columbia into the southwestern Caribbean.

"Gale force winds extend outward about 75 miles in the northern semicircle, but only a short distance to the south," forecasters said. "Some further loss in strength is likely as the storm moves over the mountains."

The 9 a.m. advisory warned of locally heavy rains and strong gusty winds along the coast of Venezuela and northeastern Colombia with flash flooding in the mountains.

Small craft were warned to remain in port.

Gale warnings were discontinued for the Netherlands Antilles islands of Bonaire, Curacao and Aruba, but remained in effect for the Paraguana Peninsula in Venezuela and the Guajira Peninsula in Colombia.

The storm center was passing 60 miles eastward yesterday when a Linea Aeropostal Venezolana turboprop airliner crashed into a hill on the Venezuelan island of Margarita while circling the Polamar airport, apparently unable to land due to near zero visibility.

"The only factor that could have caused it was bad weather in the region," said an airport radio operator. "Visibility was almost zero and the plane was circling the field when the accident occurred."

Alma's death toll rose to 48 when a housewife in central Trinidad was fatally slashed by a sheet of galvanized iron as her home collapsed around her. Several other persons were injured on Trinidad and damage was heavy.

Hurricane forecaster Paul Hebert in Miami said that in addition to its rapid movement, Alma's course is unusual.

It is at a very low latitude. Very few storms move along the coast like that.

"Alma is barely a tropical storm. What is unusual is that it has maintained itself at the rapid speed of 20 to 25 miles an hour. It is likely that the rapid speed has kept the storm from intensifying," Hebert said.

He said if the present course is maintained, the storm will strike the Venezuelan mountains. "It certainly won't intensify, it might weaken, it has a lot of land to cross. But it is possible for the storm center to stay over land and still have gale winds over the (Netherlands Antilles) islands."

If it continues westward beyond the Venezuelan peninsula, "it can reorganize. We have had cases where storms have done this, others fall apart," he said.

Alma is the first tropical storm since the 1974 hurricane season began June 1. It was first spotted Tuesday morning by a U.S. Navy hurricane hunter plane from Puerto Rico.

Fairfax Budget At $765,157

The Fairfax Town Council, again wrestling with a proposed budget for 1974-75, has boosted the spending program by $78,320.

The proposed budget now stands at $765,157, up from last year's $719,774. The proposed fiscal plan, merely a compilation of departmental requests, originally totaled $931,506.

The council Tuesday night cut $12,000 from various accounts in the street, police and fire departments, then added $90,320, according to Mayor Frank J. Egger.

The hike came as councilmen included in the plan funds to finance an employee wage and fringe benefit package, as well as a street overlay project, an open space plan and other matters.

Included in the hike is a $11,000 allocation to clean up a deficit in the corporation yard account due to overspending over the past two years the mayor said.

"Maybe the spending (for the corporation yard) was justified but the deficit was never brought to our attention" by former administrator Robert E. Crowe, Egger said.

Egger said the budget may require the council to boost last fiscal year's tax rate of $1.80 per $100 of assessed valuation by five cents.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall to again review the spending program, Egger said.

Fairfax Town Council Votes To Support Growth Committee

The Fairfax Town Council last night voted 4-1 to support a committee working on a growth control ordinance for the upper Ross Valley.

But it had strong reservations about creation of another "layer of bureaucracy" in a proposed residential review board for the city and unincorporated area which would include San Anselmo, Sleepy Hollow, Oak Manor and Fairfax to White's Hill. Local control rather than growth control was the issue.

Mayor Frank J. Egger, who has met with the committee, said that such a review agency would not force a town to accept a development it didn't want.

But councilman Jean Marie Mahoney, who opposed committee support, said, "I'm opposed to overlays of agencies. We all have general plans now. We do co-operate with our neighbors now. I see consolidation of Marin County as one city and I don't happen to like it."

Councilman Albert E. Gately agreed. "Growth control is probably something we will need in the future, but I don't see why we need another layer of administration. If any of it is a mandatory thing, it will get a poor reception from me." He opposed passing city authority to an area-wide review board.

Egger and councilman Priscilla C. Gray said cooperation in planning and growth control could be beneficial. A possible pooling of area services such as refuse compacting might be explored, Mrs. Gray suggested.

The council consensus was that it might approve its own growth control ordinance if a suitable proposal could be adapted from the residential review board study committee.

The Fairfax Town Council also:

Younger Balks At TV Debate

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Plans for a live televised face-to-face debate between candidates for state attorney general have been scraped because of Republican incumbent Evelle J. Younger's refusal to participate, television Station KNXT said yesterday.

The station extended invitations to candidates in statewide races offering free debate time to be carried throughout the state by CBS-TV affiliates.

Younger's opponent in the race, Democrat William A. Norris, had accepted the invitation.

Weight Loss Clinics Face Lawsuit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Medical Weight Loss, Inc., a statewide chain of weight reducing clinics, is charged with the "unlicensed practice of medicine" in a suit filed by the state Board of Medical Examiners.

"Our position is that medicine is being practiced by lay individuals," Deputy Atty. Gen. Jeff Miller of San Diego said yesterday. He has led an investigation against Medical Weight Loss, owned by Darrell P. Simpson, and another firm, the Simeon Weight Clinics Foundation.

A court hearing is scheduled Sept. 6 to determine whether Medical Weight Loss and two associate firms, Medical Weight Control and Paramedco, should be prohibited from advertising and conducting their controversial "HCG" treatments until the lawsuit is resolved.

The lawsuit, filed this week in Superior Court, is supported by a statement from Dr. Gregory Camp of Palo Alto, who managed five of Simpson's clinics in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Camp sued Simpson last June for $3 million, contending Simpson interfered with the clinics' operations.

Closed Meeting Law Goes Before Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate moved yesterday towards eliminating another bulwark of legislative secrecy — closed meetings of two-house conference committees where the final form of bills often is shaped.

The rules committee approved on a 4-0 vote and sent to the full Senate two measures (SB2467) and (SCR149) which would assure the news media, but not the general public, access to the traditionally private sessions.

The proposals were offered by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, the dean of the Legislature.

After 34 years in the Senate, Collier said, "I've come to the conclusion it doesn't make too much difference" whether or not committees are closed.

That was a sharp turnabout for the powerful finance committee chairman, who was until recently a critic of trends to open up more of the legislative process.

Conference committees, where lawmakers thrash out the differences between Senate and Assembly versions of bills, often are held on short notice in the rear of the chambers, or sometimes blossom into lengthy closed-door sessions.

Major legislative proposals usually are negotiated and resolved in conference.

It was originally proposed by Collier that the public be allowed into all conference meetings. But it was reduced to reporters only because of concern that making accommodations for the public would consume too much legislative time.

Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, said finding a special room where the public could attend would slow legislative work, especially during the frantic last days of a session.

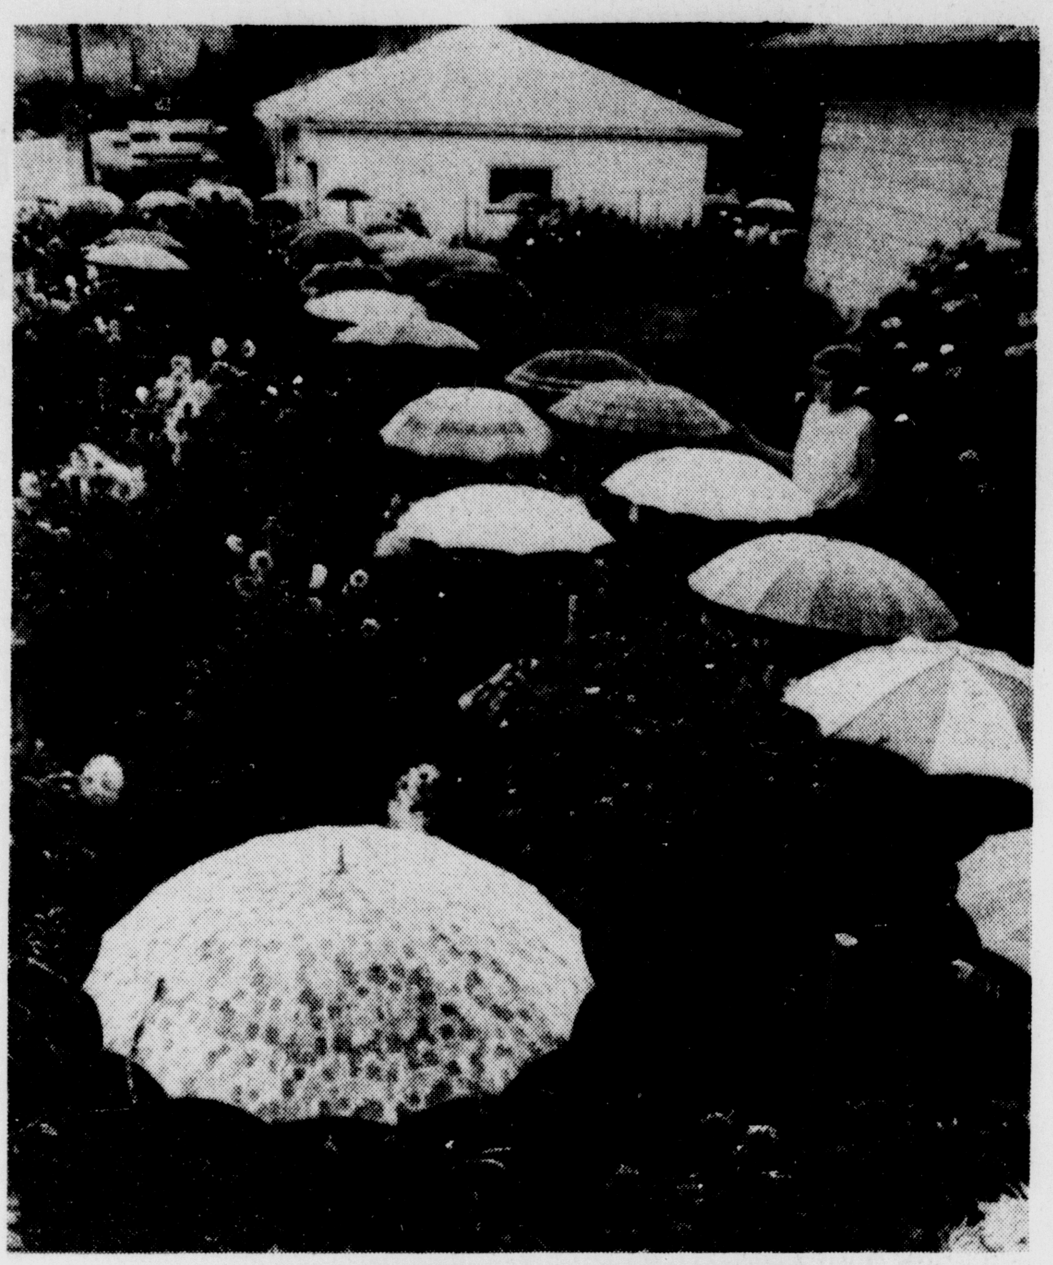
The only conference committee now open to the media or public is the special committee on the budget.

If Collier's measures were enacted, committees still could meet privately to discuss personnel matters and lawmakers could go behind closed doors for party caucuses.

Hypnotist Ruled Incompetent

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Night club hypnotist Ronald Dante, former husband of actress Lana Turner, has been ruled mentally incompetent, for the time being, to stand trial for attempted murder.

A superior court judge granted Dante's own request to be placed in psychiatric care for 30 days, and scheduled another comptency hearing for Sept. 16. Dante is charged with trying to hire a killer to slay a rival hypnotist, Michael Dean of La Jolla.



GOOD DEED FOR DAHLIAS

Mrs. Arlene Dixon of Wenatchee, Wash., checks one of the many umbrellas that dot her garden. Mrs. Dixon explained that her husband, Marion, placed the umbrellas over his prized dahlias to protect them from the hot sun. Too much sun will make the flowers fade, she said.

Committee Report: Nixon Lied and Violated Laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its final act on impeachment, the House Judiciary Committee concludes that Richard M. Nixon left the presidency for good reasons —he lied, violated laws and subverted the Constitution.

The charges are spelled out in a report the panel will submit to the full House next week, explaining the actions it took on impeachment the past 10 months, laying out the evidence supporting the three articles of impeachment it adopted and offering conclusions on guilt. Nixon, faced with the certainty that he would be impeached and removed from office, resigned last week.

"For more than two years, the President engaged in a course of conduct which involved deliberate, repeated and continued deception of the American people," the report said.

The committee members have until the end of today to submit any additional or differing views to the report, which exists only in draft form. The 193-page draft was circulated to the 38 committee members late yesterday.

Nixon violated federal laws, the report said, "by engaging in a course of conduct or plan designed to delay, impede, and obstruct the investigation of unlawful entry, on June 17, 1972, into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee; and to conceal the existence and scope of other unlawful covert activities."

That course, the report said in a conclusion justifying the 27-11 committee vote on July 27 for Article One charging obstruction of justice, "caused illegal surveillance for political purposes, and the concealment of responsibility for that surveillance, obstruction of justice, perjury, destruction of evidence —all of which are crimes."

Such conduct, the report said, was "to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice and subversive of our Constitution..."

The draft outlined the evidence supporting the abuse of powers article adopted by a 28-10 committee vote and said, "The pattern of conduct charged in Article Two constitutes a repeated and continuing misuse of the powers of the presidency..."

It added: "The abuse of a President's power poses a serious threat to the lawful and proper functioning of the government and the people's confidence in it. It was for just such presidential misconduct that the impeachment power was included in the Constitution."

So that future Congresses would have the power to carry through with the impeachment process, the report stated its case for adopting Article Three by a 21-17 vote, charging Nixon with failing to comply with committee subpoenaes.

"Unless the defiance of the committee's subpoenas under these circumstances is considered grounds for impeachment," the report said, "it is difficult to conceive of any President acknowledging that he is obligated to supply the relevant evidence necessary for Congress to exercise its constitutional responsibility in an impeachment proceeding.

"If this were to occur, the impeachment power would be drained of its vitality. Article Three, therefore, seeks to preserve the integrity of the impeachment process itself and the ability of Congress to act as the ultimate safeguard against improper presidential conduct."

The report, handiwork of special counsel John M. Doar, will be submitted to the House next week as if Nixon had not resigned and impeachment were still going on. The House had planned to take up the articles next Monday, but now there are no plans for either approval or disapproval of the report.

Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., has emphasized repeatedly that the report establish for history that the articles of impeachment were justified. "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow people will look back on how we handled this," he said.

Bill Revived To Allow Larger Trucks On Nation's Highways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to allow bigger trucks on the interstate highway system, once thought dead for this session of Congress, has been revived by the public works committees in both House and Senate.

The House committee has attached both big truck and wider bus measures to a $20.4 billion mass transit bill tentatively scheduled for debate today. The Senate Public Works Committee has agreed on a separate big truck bill.

The American Automobile Association wrote all House members, urging defeat of the section which would increase truck weights and lengths. "Available evidence indicates that large trucks pose a grave threat to the safety of all drivers," said AAA official John de Lorenzi.

Rep. William Harsha, R-Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Public Works Committee, argued that larger trucks would mean fewer trucks on the road, contributing both to safety and environmental considerations.

The House bill would increase the present maximum truck weight of 73,280 pounds to about 90,000 pounds, which would have to be spread along the axles of a truck according to a "bridge formula." Maximum axle weights would be increased from 18,000 pounds to 20,000 pounds for a single axle and from 32,000 pounds to 34,000 pounds for a tandem axle. For the first time, there would be a federal length limit of 65 feet, although states could set shorter lengths.

In addition, maximum bus width would increase from 96 inches to 102 inches.

The Senate Public Works bill would deal only with truck weights, adopting the same axle weights as the House bill but with a maximum weight of 80,000 pounds.

Harsha, House GOP Leader John Rhodes of Arizona and GOP policy committee chairman Barber Conable of New York said in a joint news conference that they supported the heavier truck weights.

The news conference was called mainly to denounce the mass transit bill as inflationary. Rhodes said he would recommend a presidential veto unless the dollar amount of the bill was not trimmed substantially. Republicans plan to offer amendments cutting the bill almost in half — to $11.2 billion.

Bill Is Signed Which Increases Congress' Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has signed a bill providing the $708 million needed to keep Congress and its agencies operating through the current fiscal year.

The Legislative Branch Appropriations Act, signed yesterday, will provide an increase of $46.9 million for Congress over the amount appropriated in fiscal year 1974.

The Senate will get a boost of $9.5 million and the House an increase of $11 million.

The increases will go for federal contributions to employe health insurance, expansion of House and Senate staffs and increased pay costs.

Governor Plans Mendocino Trip

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan will visit Round Valley Indian Reservation in Mendocino County and the Modoc County Fair in Cedarville Aug. 22, his office said yesterday.

Reagan has not visited the scenic Round Valley area since he rejected a water development plan in 1969 that proposed construction of a dam at Dos Rios on the Eel River Watershed.

If built, the dam would have flooded parts of Round Valley and the reservation. Reagan plans to meet with reservation leaders.

There's a smile on the way.

We have a very special restaurant. It's very beautiful, without sideshows. And very delicious, without bills that give you the feeling you also bought dinner for the people at the next table. Your drink is made the way you'd make it yourself. Your waitress is unusually courteous. And your steak tastes as if the chef overheard the exact way you said "medium rare." Enjoy superb steaks and beef recipes. Or fine seafoods like Medallions of Lobster en Brochette (tiny "slipper" lobster tails skewered and lightly breaded) served with mushroom buttons and drawn butter, or tender Abalone delicately sauteed in butter and crowned with toasted almonds.

Drink and dine on couches and chairs so relaxing you'll think you're dining in a comfortable living room. In fact, the only thing that may remind you that you're not in a fine home is the bill. But it's a very gentle reminder.

TRADE TALK WITH PHILADELPHIA

Bonds Beats 'em, Says He'd Like To Join 'em

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — San Francisco outfielder Bobby Bonds is having a season most players would settle for, but not Bobby Bonds.

Bonds hit .283 last season with 39 home runs and 43 stolen bases. He just missed becoming the first player ever to hit 40 or more homers and steal 40 or more bases in a season.

This year Bonds is struggling at .264 with 17 homers and 29 stolen bases. He admits that he's frustrated.

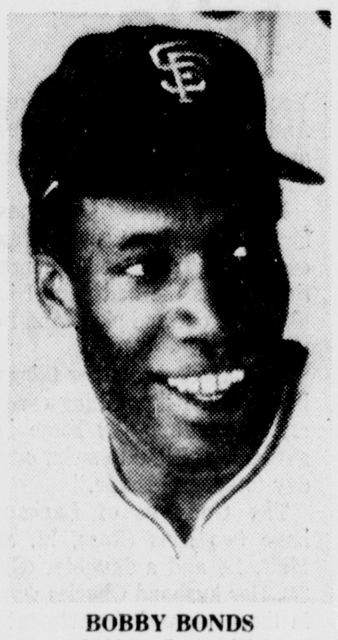
"I'm not having the year that I want to have, but I'll make the best of it," says the 28-year-old Bonds. "I'll wind up hitting .290 with 25 or 26 homers."

Every once in awhile the real Bobby Bonds shows up at the ball park. Last night was one of those times. He led the Giants to a 6-4 win over Philadelphia.

Bonds doubled and scored in front of Gary Matthews' 14th home run to tie the Phillies 4-4 in the eighth inning. He came up in the ninth with two out and hit his 17th homer to win the game.

Bonds doesn't come right out and say it, but the 6-foot-1, 190-pounder indicates he would like to be traded.

"I wouldn't mind going to Philadelphia," Bonds said last night. "Philly has a good ball club with youngsters and veterans, just what you need for a pennant contender."



BOBBY BONDS
Making best of it

Bonds admitted that he heard the rumors he was headed for Philadelphia. The Phillies made a pitch for the budding superstar after slugger Greg Luzinski was injured in June. The Giants turned it down.

Bonds indicated he was tired of playing for a loser. He's disgusted being 21½ games behind first place, with playing in the wind tunnel that is Candlestick Park in San Francisco. He described the Giants' home playpen as the toughest park in the league to play in. He's also disturbed about the small turnouts in San Francisco.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead with a run in the first on a bases-loaded walk. San Francisco starter Charley Williams protected it with hitless pitching until Ollie Brown rapped a tying two-out home run in the fifth.

San Francisco went ahead again in the sixth on a wild pitch with the bases loaded.

The Phillies rallied in the seventh. Jay Johnstone led off with a walk, and took second on a passed ball. Williams was relieved by Elias Sosa, who completed a walk to Brown.

After Bob Boone forced Brown, Bill Robinson lashed a two-run double to send the Phillies ahead 3-2. Robinson scored when Larry Bowa beat out an infield hit and Giants' second baseman Tito Fuentes threw the ball away for an error.

The Giants, now 4-2 on the current road trip, had today off before opening a three-game stand in St. Louis.

NOW STARS FOR YANKS

Pitcher May Is Sorry Angels Were So Patient With Him

OAKLAND (UPI) — Rudy May must be sorry the California Angels waited so long to write him off.

Since being sold to the New York Yankees on June 15, the 30-year-old southpaw is 5-1 with an earned run average of 1.48. After stopping the A's 4-1 on four hits last night, he has thrown 28 consecutive innings without permitting an earned run. As a Yankee, May has hurled a two-hitter, three four-hitters, a six-hitter and a seven-hit, 2-1 victory over the Angels.

"I had reached the point in my career where I had to start proving I could pitch well if I wanted to stay in baseball," May said after taming Oakland on Elliott Maddox' two-run, tie-breaking double in the ninth inning off loser Vida Blue (14-10).

"There's a big difference pitching for the Yankees," May added. "This club wants to win. On the Angels, everybody was concerned only about looking good. There is a difference.

"And it's really helped having Thurman Munson as my catcher. Not once in the seven games I've pitched for the Yankees have I had to shake off any of Thurman's signals."

May, a one-time Oakland high school star in four sports, was 51-76 in five-plus seasons with the Angels. He had a poor spring training record this year and was relegated to the bullpen.

"We felt he'd be better off with another team," said former Angel Manager Bobby Winkles, fired two weeks after May was sold. Winkles is now a coach for the A's.

"He was at an age where he had to help himself or he couldn't help the ball club. And he wasn't an effective relief pitcher," said Winkles.

The A's, whose lead in the American League West was trimmed to 5 ½ games by May, had today off, but open a three-game series here tomorrow night against Detroit. Jim Hunter (17-9) will face Tiger southpaw Mickey Lolich (13-14).

Belligerent Talk Dies Down

It's Time For Business At All Training Camps

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

All the belligerent talk by both striking players and coaches seems to have died down and it's business as usual in the National Football League camps.

Yesterday was the reporting date set by the NFL Players Association to begin a 14-day cooling off period in hopes of bringing about a contract settlement. And there were few problems as most camps reported a good number of veterans reporting or planning to report soon. Talks are scheduled to resume today in Washington.

Twenty-seven striking Atlanta veterans reported and Coach Norm Van Brocklin said there would be no animosity toward the striking players and the regulars would start Saturday night's pre-season game with Cincinnati in Atlanta.

"All of what has been said and done was forgotten when they walked through that door today," said Van Brocklin.

At Houston, one incident did occur as outspoken striker Fred Willis carried the ball and was met by linebacker Al Cowlings, a strike breaker who reported earlier this week. Cowlings shouted at Willis, the two came face-to-face but no punches were thrown.

The honking of car horns signaled the arrival of a caravan of Minnesota Viking veterans at their training camp at Mankato State College. Thirty veterans showed up at the same time, traveling in a long string of vehicles from Bloomington, Minn., where they had been working out daily as a unit at a high school field.

The only experienced player not in camp was all-pro tackle Alan Page, a member of the negotiating committee, who will be in Washington today.

"Now's the time to get ready for another season," said quarterback Fran Tarkenton. "It's great to get back."

Coach Bud Grant wanted no part of the strike dispute.

SID GILLMAN
No easy game

"I haven't asked anybody if they're going to leave in two weeks," He said. "I have no control over it. I'm a coach, not an owner. My job is to get the players in shape for a game."

Matson, the Bengals' player rep, said, "we've decided to forget about the whole thing and just play football. There comes a point when you've got to shrug things off. It's arrived."

Gillman, who angered Houston players by cutting seven veterans early this week, claims he's not running for most popular man in camp.

"This is not an easy game we're in," he said. "It is not calculated to win popularity contests. You try to win. (Vince) Lombardi didn't lead any popularity contest. They say they hate (Tom) Landry, but all Landry does is win. They say they hate (Don) Shula, but all Shula does is win. I don't know, what is the answer?"

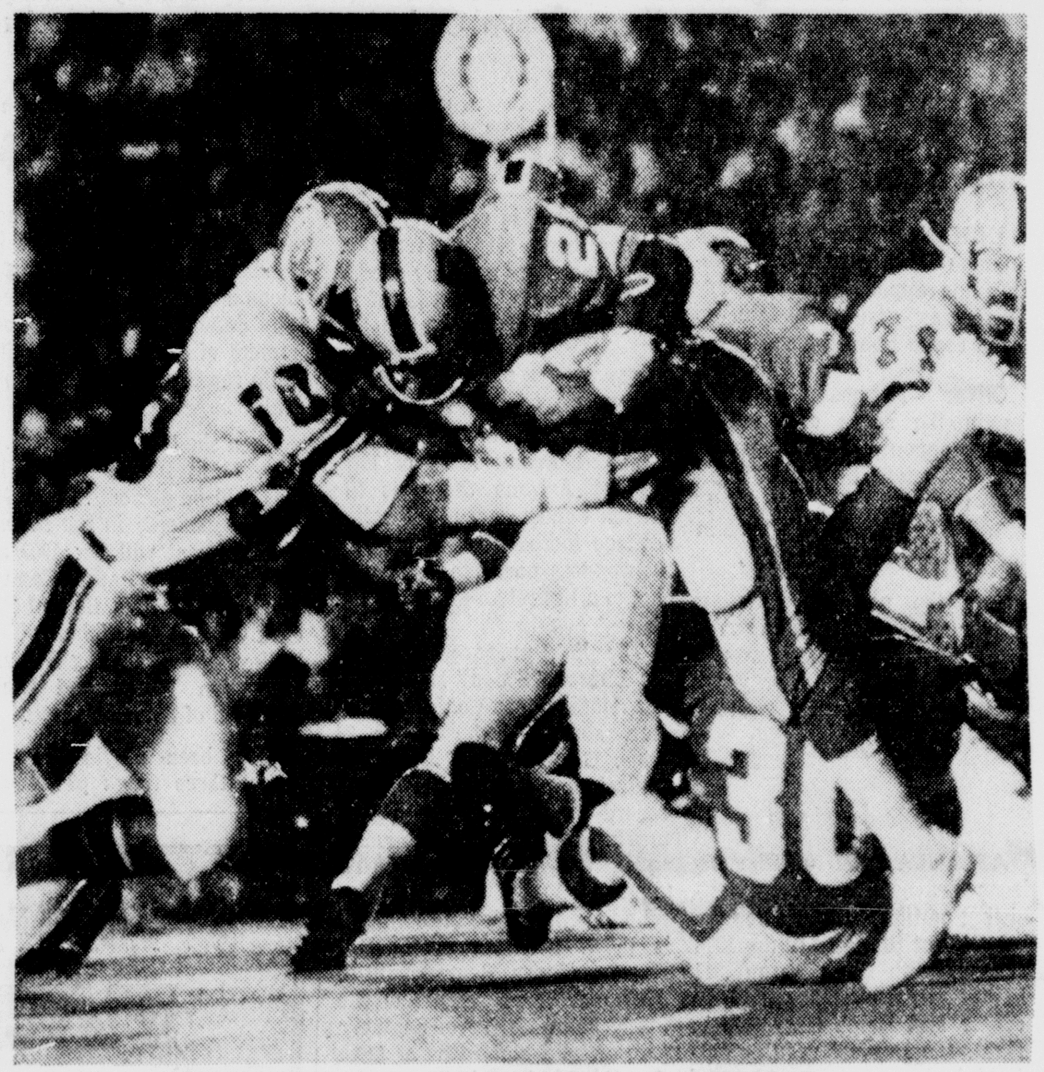
Don Shula, coach of the World Champion Miami Dolphins, showed no signs of retribution toward the 12 returning veterans, but no mercy either. He put them through two sessions under the broiling Florida sun.

Larry Csonka, the Super Bowl most valuable player who will play his last season for Miami this year, showed up with a cold and made what he hopes is his final statement on jumping leagues.

"I would like just one year, for crying out loud, to play football without all the side issues like strike and contract hassles and whatever else has been going on," he said. "I'm going to play the best football I possibly can and so will Jim (Kiick) and Paul (Warfield). I'm going to play my guts out, not because I owe the Dolphins anything, but because I have the pride to want to win for myself and all the other guys with the same pride to win."

The Baltimore Colts met with club officials and decided to report as a group Sunday.

A few deals marked the players' return. The New York Giants sent defensive end Carter Campbell to Cleveland for tight end Chip Glass. Both are playing out their options and heading for the WFL next season. Cincinnati traded punter Dave Lewis to New England.



BUTTING HEADS ON GRIDIRON

Fire linebacker Ron Porter butted heads with Philadelphia Bell running back Alan Thompson last night in Chicago during the second quarter of a World Football League game. Porter made the tackle in the contest won by Chicago, 32-29. See story, page 28.

Undefeated Fortuna Threatens Italian Club in DiMaggio Play

The Italian Athletic Club will be looking for its third straight championship as the Joe DiMaggio Regional baseball tournament opens tomorrow at Novato High School — but a formidable obstacle stands in the way.

An undefeated team, Fortuna, will challenge the local favorites.

The four-team, double-elimination tourney begins tomorrow with two games. Fortuna will meet Sebastopol at 2:30 p.m. and the Italian Club will face Coast-to-Coast Stores of McKinleyville at 5:30 p.m.

Tomorrow's losers will play Saturday at 10 a.m., and tomorrow's winners will meet Saturday at 1 p.m. The 10 a.m. winner and 1 p.m. loser will clash at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Championship games will be held at 11 a.m. and (if necessary) 2 p.m. on Sunday. Winner advances to the state tournament Aug. 21-25 in San Jose.

Fortuna racked up a 21-0 record in DiMaggio play up north, but coach Shirley Bartow insists, "We're not that good. The league's not that good." Outside the league, Fortuna was 14-4.

The team boasts two good left-handed pitchers, Randy Niemann and Roger Sanderson. Niemann is the team's leading power hitter and bats cleanup. The top hitter for average is catcher Dave Steele, with a mark around .400, according to Bartow.

The Italian Club, which won the Southern Division of Marin Joe DiMaggio competition with a 15-3 record, boasts brilliant pitching.

Two big, strong, overpowering right-handers, Gene Frey and Eddie Andersen, will team up with two careful, crafty southpaws, Mark Ruggles and Jeff Lucchesi, to make opponents think they are seeing double Sebastopol, the Marin North winner at 11-7, is led by pitcher Vic Holmstedt and .400-hitting outfielder Gary Bartee. McKinleyville has a .500 hitter in the lineup, shortstop Jack Belcher.

Each team is allowed to add three players from elsewhere in its league for the tournament, and McKinleyville picked up a remarkable player from Outdoor Store of Arcata.

First baseman Dennis Marshall, only 16 (the upper age limit is 18), has an artificial leg, but nonetheless is a fine hitter. He was voted the outstanding player earlier this year in a Eureka-area Colt League tournament.

Italian Club has added Toby's Truckers' pitcher Tom Cronin and utility man Jeff Knotts and Rohnert Park first baseman Marshall Brant. Sebastopol grabbed Bank of Marin hurler Mike Bird and Holiday Magic catcher Dave Steele and shortstop Mike Farris — creating the possibility that in tomorrow's opener, both teams will have a catcher named Dave Steele.

Tickets cost $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students and are available at the gate.

49ers Trade 2 WFL Signees

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) -- The San Francisco 49ers yesterday traded two veterans headed for the World Football League to the Chicago Bears for return specialist Cecil Turner.

They sent receivers Dick Witcher and John Isenbarger, who will join the Southern Californian Sun and the Hawaiians respectively next season.

Since the 49ers also shipped linebacker Jim Sniadecki to St. Louis, star tight end Ted Kwalick remains the only player on the San Francisco roster who is headed for the WFL next season.

Turner, former National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division sprint star at Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, returned 108 kickoffs for 2,616 yards in six years with the Bears.

Every other San Francisco 49er veteran is now with the team except for running back Vic Washington, who was sent home Aug. 5 after a squabble with Coach Dick Nolan over missed practices.

The 49ers admit they are trying to trade Washington but the veteran back has enlisted the aid of his friend, the Rev. Cecil Williams of San Francisco's Glide Memorial Church. Washington wants him to get together with Nolan to talk over their situation.

The 49ers yesterday cut three free agents. They were kicker Pepe Guzman of New Mexico, tackle Ed Rosett from University of California at Santa Barbara and defensive back Terry Patterson of Sacramento State.

3-2 Softball Victory

Independent Electric defeated Bank of Marin, 3-2 in a San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department adult softball league game played yesterday at Memorial Park.

'Strong Medicine' Destroys Quakes

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Ron Newman, the fiery coach of the Dallas Tornado, thinks his team found a spoonful of "strong medicine" last night.

The Tornado captured its North American Soccer League quarterfinal from the San Jose Earthquake 3-0 with a second half rush that Newman quickly proclaimed his club's best half of soccer this season.

That set up a semifinal playoff meeting between Dallas and Miami Saturday night. The winner of that game will host the championship game Aug. 25.

"That second half was just the kind of strong medicine we needed," Newman said. "The first half (a scoreless standoff) we didn't play with confidence. We were nervous. We looked for the obvious play and didn't use any imagination."

But it took only 20 seconds for Dallas to score in the second half.

Mike Renshaw fired a pass to Kyle Rote Jr., Rote pushed the ball back to Renshaw and he drove it into the net past goalie Mike Ivanow.

From there it was all Dallas. Roy Turner, who scored only one goal all season, drilled one in with 38 minutes left and Renshaw scored a second goal with 25 seconds remaining.

"That first goal was the key," Newman said. "Then they had to come at us and it opened up all sorts of opportunities. We could have scored two or three more times."

Newman said NASL President Phil Woosnam decided the winner of Saturday night's Dallas-Miami game will host the league's championship game against either Baltimore, Boston or Los Angeles.

Baltimore and Boston will meet in Boston in a quarterfinal match tonight with the winner of that game traveling to Los Angeles for a semifinal contest Saturday night.

Since the NASL title game will be nationally televised for the first time this year, league officials want to have the best stadium possible for the telecast. Dallas plays its home games in Texas Stadium and Miami plays in the Orange Bowl, so one of those two stadiums is assured for the championship game.

Even Anderson Getting Tense

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Cincinnati Reds are giving their own manager the shakes so you can imagine what they're doing to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Look, I can hardly hold it," said Manager Sparky Anderson last night as he juggled a roast beef sandwich after the Reds pulled out a "cliffhanger" 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "The Dodgers aren't out of the woods yet because they have six games left with the Pirates."

The Reds' victory moved them to within 4 ½ games of the first-place Dodgers in the National League East. The Reds were four games behind the Dodgers as late as Aug. 30 last season and still won the division crown.

"When you win one out of three and still pick up a game in the standings, it makes you feel good," added Anderson, referring to the fact that the Reds won only one game of their series with the Pirates but gained ground because the Dodgers lost their three-game series with the New York Mets. The Mets completed the sweep yesterday with a 3-2 triumph.

Cesar Geronimo drove in the winning run when he doubled home Dave Concepcion with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning but Anderson's "hero" was 22-year old lefthanded relief pitcher Will McEnaney, who entered the game with Pirates on first and third and none out in the ninth and retired the side without allowing a run.

Rusty Staub's single climaxed a two-run ninth inning rally which gave the Mets their sweep of the Dodgers and tagged Iron Man reliever Mike Marshall with his eighth loss. Ken Boswell's walk, a sacrifice and an error by centerfielder Tom Paciorek enabled the Mets to tie the score at 2-2 before hits by Felix Millan and Staub brought the winning run around. Tug McGraw won his third game against six losses.

St. Louis defeated San Diego 5-1, Atlanta beat Montreal 6-1, San Francisco topped Philadelphia 6-4 and Chicago shaded Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

Cardinals 5 Padres 1

Reggie Smith's three-run homer climaxed a five-run fifth inning rally which enabled the Cardinals' Alan Foster to win his seventh game with a sixhitter.

Braves 6 Expos 1

Hank Aaron hit his 16th homer and the 729th of his career and Dusty Baker also homered to lead the Braves' 10- hit attack. Baker's homer was a three-run shot in a four-run first which sent Carl Morton off to a fast start toward his 12th win against seven losses.

Cubs 6 Astros 5

Don Kessinger's triple and singles by Jose Cardenal, Billy Williams and Andy Thornton gave the Cubs a 4-1 lead in the first inning and they held on for the win with the late-inning relief pitching of Oscar Zamora and Jim Todd.

CONTACT AT SECOND — A hard slide by Indians' runner Charlie Spikes failed to break up a game-ending doubleplay last night in Cleveland. Minnesota Twins' shortstop Danny Thompson was cut down after relaying the baseball to first. (UPI Telephoto)

Oliver Tabbed Indiana Aide

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers announced today the appointment of Jerry Oliver as assistant coach to head coach Bob Leonard.

Oliver's responsibilities will be in the areas of scouting Pacer opponents and prospective collegiate talent, working with the young players coming into the Pacers' camp and in the area of public relations.

For the past two seasons Oliver was the coach at Warren Central High School and was an assistant coach for four years at Indiana University from 1968-71.

Best Hitters

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves claimed the best-hitting outfield in major league baseball at the start of the 1974 season. With Hank Aaron .311 in left, Dusty Baker .296 in center and Ralph Garr .318 in right, the Braves' regular outfield had a career average of .311.

'Terrible' Tillie Seeks Golf Title

(Second in a series)

"I've been playing terribly. My chances are not very good."

Are these the words of a golfer with a defeatist attitude?

No, it is the candid assessment of defending champion Tillie Gondak. She is attempting to become the second to successfully defend the women's Tournament of Champions golf title. Tillie represents Marin Country Club.

When she tees off at 9 a.m. on Aug. 23 at Indian Valley, her task will be difficult. Mrs. Gondak's opponents in the seventh annual event will be: 1969 and 1970 champion Laura Cann of Meadow Club, Liz Cole of Peacock Gap, Terry Nichols of Mill Valley Municipal, Peg Williams of Indian Valley and Nancy Gapinski of San Geronimo.

"I've been playing just as much (three times per week), but not as well. Laura and Nancy are both playing well. I'd bet on either one of them."

Mrs. Gondak, a nine handicapper, admitted she has not played at Indian Valley very much. "But it is a nice course. You have to be accurate there. And landing in the rough amounts to a penalty shot, because it's rough to hit out."

Though tourney time is nearing, Tillie is not overly concerned. "I'm not one to practice. That's the bad part. I just like to go out and play. And I do that.

"But there are other things I like doing. I like taking care of my family and my home and gardening. I like to swim every day to keep in shape."

The Gondaks of Larkspur have two sons (Ross, 21, and Matt, 19) and a daughter (Cris, 24). Her husband Charles works in the personnel department of Pacific Telephone in San Francisco.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Joe Paterno, coach of the fifth-ranked Penn State gridders, replaced Frank Kush of 10th-ranked Arizona State as the nation's most successful active college football coach in terms of won-loss percentage, according to a list released yesterday.

The list, prepared annually by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins of the Southeastern Conference office, showed Paterno has 74 wins, 13 losses and 1 tie for an .848 winning percentage. Kush's record is 132-34-1 for a .793 mark. Last year Paterno's squad was 11-0, while Kush's team was 10-1.

Bo Schembechler of Michigan is third, followed by Darrell Royal of Texas, Bear Bryant of Alabama, Woody Hayes of Oio State, John McKay of Southern Cal, Charlie McLendon of LSU, Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Frank Broyles of Arkansas.

Fourth Street Tops Softball Rival, 5-4

Positively Fourth Street scored three times in the seventh inning last night to claim a 5-4 victory over Odyssey in San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball "B" league play at Albert Field.

Perry's defeated Ball Fours, 5-4, and the Flyers beat Izzy's Aces, 13-2, in other games.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Decker Giving Twins A Lift

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Minnesota Twins continue to languish in fifth place in the American League East, but Joe Decker cannot be blamed.

The right-hander from Petaluma turned in another fine pitching performance last night, shutting out the Cleveland Indians for eight innings in Minnesota's 1-0 victory.

Decker gave up only four hits, striking out five and walking two, before yielding the mound to reliever Bill Campbell, who nailed down the victory with his 17th save.

A regular in the Twins' rotation the past two years, Decker is 12-10 this season.

Glenn Borgmann hit a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning to score Bobby Darwin with the game's only run. Fritz Peterson (8-7) pitched well but took the loss for crumbling Cleveland.

Another local pitcher, Bill Lee of Terra Linda, was not so fortunate last night. The California Angels drove him from the mound and defeated Boston, 5-0.

Lee (13-11) gave up all five runs on six hits and five walks, and departed in the fifth inning.

Royals 9, Tigers 1

Steve Busby, supported by home runs by Orlando Cepeda and Tony Soliata, earned his 18th victory as surging Kansas City whipped Detroit.

White Sox 5, Orioles 4

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a homer and a single but the White Sox also needed a run-scoring single from Brian Downing in the eighth inning to edge Baltimore. Dick Allen had two hits to stretch his hitting streak to 15 games for the Sox.

Brewers 6, Rangers 5

Tim Johnson's pinch single in the eighth inning led Milwaukee over Texas. Doubles by George Scott and Darrell Porter tied the score before Johnson's hit won it. Cesar Tovar went 5-for-5 for the Brewers in the losing cause.

GATERS CAN CINCH SPOT IN PLAYOFFS

OAKLAND (UPI) — If the Golden Gaters can beat Hawaii at the Oakland Coliseum Arena tonight, they clinch a place in next week's World Team Tennis playoffs.

Even though Hawaii has a 14-27 record compared to the Gaters' 21-20 mark, the match should not be an easy one for the Bay Area team.

For one thing, the Gaters have been playing poorly in their recent outings. For another, Hawaii brings a team which appears stronger than its record would indicate. Dennis Ralston heads the Leis, who also feature Val Ziegenfuss, San Mateo's Ann Kiyomura and Australia's Ross Case.

4-Way Fight For America's Cup

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI) — Four contenders headed into the finals today to select a defender for yachting's prized America's Cup, with the eliminations heightened by a sudden skipper change on aluminum hulled Mariner.

Emphasis was on crew precision and boat speed in what was shaping up as a classic two-boat battle between early favorite Courageous and two-time winner Intrepid for the right to defend the Cup against the French or Australians beginning Sept. 10.

In a random drawing paralleling those of previous trials, Courageous and Intrepid were matched in the first race with Mariner paired against berthmate Valiant.

In a last ditch effort to better the odds for troubled Mariner, Commodore George Hinman, syndicate manager, juggled skippers with Valiant. Dennis Conner, 1973 Congressional Cup winner, was named to Mariner's helm while Ted Turner, an Atlanta television executive, was switched to wood-hulled Valiant.

Conner brought four crewmen with him from the original Valiant team and added Mariner's builder, Bob Dereektor, to the crew.

Mariner, earlier billed as a radical 12-meter yacht, lost precious preparation time with a five-week stint in drydock to rebuild her hull. Valiant also appeared a long shot based on performance in previous duels with Courageous and Intrepid.

Skipper Gerry Driscoll said Intrepid's victory margin, 6-4 in the June and July trials, will help the wooden old lady in the final series.

The boats will alternate pairings on a daily basis, the trials to continue until one yacht has proven her superiority over the widest possible range of winds. The two least promising candidates will probably be eliminated after a week or so. The New York Yacht Club selection committee must make its choice by Sept. 3.

Southern Cross, the Australian contender, and France, the French 12, begin their best-of-seven elimination series Aug. 22.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew, who celebrated his "day" at Minnesota Sunday by driving in the decisive run, became one of the top 10 designated hitters in the American League for the first time this year by hitting .400 in the DH slot last week, the League office announced yesterday.

Mike Hargrove of Texas continues to lead with a .340 average, but he is only three at-bats above the minimum for inclusion in the rankings.

Kelly, Lamonica Enter Camp

Combined AP & UPI

SANTA ROSA — Quarterback Daryle Lamonica and running back Leroy Kelly checked into the Oakland Raiders' training camp last night but they won't begin workouts until next week.

The Raiders held two workouts yesterday in preparation for tomorrow's pre-season contest with Detroit in Tiger Stadium.

Kelly, the National Football League's leading active rusher, was obtained by the Raiders on waivers in June. He took part in the player's strike.

Both Lamonica and Kelly will be on the practice field when the club regroups Monday in Santa Rosa, a team spokesman said.

Auto Racing

ONTARIO — The sixth annual California 500 March 9 will highlight the 1974-75 season at Ontario Motor Speedway, it was announced yesterday.

Speedway President Parnelli Jones said the track will host four other major racing events, all in 1974. They are: The California Grand Prix for Formula 5000 cars Sept. 1; the American Motorcycle association Road Race Oct. 6; the Supernational World Finals Oct. 13; and the Los Angeles Times Grand National Stock Car 500 Nov. 24.

SAN FRANCISCO — Wimbledon champion Jimmy Connors returns to the scene of one of his earliest victories when he participates in next month's $100,000 Firemen's Fund International Open Tennis Championships.

Connors, who this week won the U.S. Clay court title, agreed by telephone to enter the Fireman's Fund event Sept. 23-30, tourney, director Barry MacKay said yesterday. In 1972, Connors won the Pacific Coast International, forerunner to the firemen's tournament.

TORONTO — Sweden's Bjorn Borg yesterday posted a second-round 6-4, 6-2 victory over Georges Goven of France and Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., downed Austria's Hans Kary 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 in the $130,000 Canadian Open tennis tournament.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — No. 1 seed Arthur Ashe yesterday defeated New Zealand's Jeff Simpson 6-1, 6-4 in an opening-round singles match at the $50,000 Buckeye Tennis Championships.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Trapped Again

By LEE TREVINO

Some golfers spend so much time in the sand that their wedges sprout cactus. Can you believe Johnny Miller needing three shots to clear a bunker in the '74 U.S. Open at Winged Foot?

Coming out of sand traps is reduced to three basic rules: (1) Open the blade at address, (2) Strike the sand an inch or two behind the ball, and (3) Swing smooth and follow through.

An inch is plenty if your ball is lying on top of level sand. If it stops on an uphill incline, strike the sand very close to the ball —even simultaneously with the ball if the slope is steep.

A downhill bunker shot can be downright humblin' if it's buried. On this shot, use a 9-iron so the blade can gouge into the sand quickly to throw the ball out.

The main thing to keep in mind on an unburied downhill bunker shot is to cut across the ball sharply to give it a quick climb. Nip very little sand or it won't rise.

On uphill lies, lean into your left leg to prevent falling back. Falling back changes the hitting area, and you may have to call the Foreign Legion for help.

5 Unhappy Quarterbacks Impress In WFL

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

It was the kind of night those unhappy quarterbacks dreamed of when they decided to cast their fate with the new World Football League.

George Mira, Virgil Carter, Tom Sherman, John Huarte, Bob Davis—all were either unhappy with their backup roles in the National Football League and decided to make the jump. And last night they came up big winners.

The unbeaten Americans blasted the Hawaiians 39-0 before 43,297 in Birmingham, the Fire edged the Philadelphia Bell 32-29 before 27,607 in Chicago, the Memphis Southmen crushed the winless Detroit Wheels 37-7 before 14,424 at Ypsilanti, Mich., the Stars whipped the Portland Storm 38-16 before 16,222 in New York and the Florida Blazers downed the Jacksonville Sharks 33-26 before 23,890 in Orlando. The Southern California Sun is at Houston against the Texans tonight in a nationally televised game.

Americans 39, Hawaiians 0

Mira, who knocked around in San Francisco, Philadelphia aad Canada for a while without making it big, came off the bench and threw two touchdown passes—one a 95-yarder to Alfred Jenkins—as Birmingham blasted the Hawaiians. Mira, making his first appearance since injuring his ankle three weeks ago, relieved Matthew Reed with the Americans ahead 8-0 and directed Birmingham to four TDs. He also passed 26 yards to Dennis Homan for a score. Willie Smith had an 81- yard punt return for a TD, Jimmy Edwards ran seven yards for another and Art Cantrelle plunged a yard for still another as the Americans, the only undefeated team in the WFL, ran their record to 6-0.

Fire 32, Bell 29

Carter, who played at Cincinnati and Chicago before falling out of favor, threw an 11-yard TD pass to Jack Dolbin with 1:34 left to play to lift the Fire over Philadelphia. Carter his five straight passes as he moved Chicago 80 yards in the last two minutes for the winning score. Carter earlier passed six yards to Cyril Pinder for a score and Pinder and Mark Kellar each ran a yard for TDs.

The Bell's King Corcoran, the WFL passing leader, had TD passes of two yards to Alan Thompson and 45 yards to Claude Watts and ran a yard for another score.

Southmen 37, Wheels 7

Huarte, a former Heisman Trophy winner at Notre Dame, banged around the NFL for 10 years. He has a starting job at Memphis and he's making the most of it as he helped the Southmen to their fourth win in 9six games Wednesday night. Huarte threw a 12-yard TD pass to Ed Marshall and set up a pair of one-yard TD bursts by Willie Spencer as Memphis manhandled Detroit. Davis Thomas also had a 39-yard interception return for a TD and sub quarterback Danny White passed 31 yards to Gary Powell for another score.

Detroit, now 0-6, got its only TD on a one-yard plunge by Bubba Wyche.

Stars 38, Storm 0

Sherman, who never really got much opportunity in brief trials with New England and Buffalo, had his best game of the young season as he threw two TD passes to veteran George Sauer and ran five yards for another score to lead New York to its fourth straight win. Sherman, who was playing in the minors in recent years, hit Sauer on TD passes of 20 and three yards and helped set up Andy Huff's four-yard scoring burst.

The Stars led 38-0 before Greg Barton, who relieved rookie Ken Johnson in the second half, threw TD passes of 15 yards to Jim Krieg with 1:43 left and 12 yards to Ken Matthews as time expired. Portland is now 0-5-1.

Blazers 33, Sharks 26

Davis, who spend the last few seasons as understudy to Joe Namath in New York and Archie Manning in New Orleans, ran a yard for one score and set up a pair of short TD plunges by Jim Strong in Florida's victory over Jacksonville. The Blazers built up a 31-11 lead after three periods and held on in the final quarter as Reggie Oliver ran nine yards for one TD and passed seven yards to Tom Whittier for another. The victory left Florida, now 5-1, in first place in the East.

Casper's Chances 'No Good'

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Billy Casper says he still is playing poorly and thinks his chances are "no good" to win for an an unprecedented fifth time here as the Sammy Davis Jr.- Greater Hartford Open opened today.

Casper, 43, said he had a "hot" 72 yesterday in the pro-am warmup played with Sammy Davis Jr. on the 6,583 yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

"I'm having trouble breaking 75. I'm having trouble with every swing, every hole," said the San Diego, Calif., native whose last tour win was here in 1973.

Casper won here in 1963 and 1965 when the tournament was known as the Insurance City Open and his win last year was preceded by a 1968 victory.

The par 71 course is referred to as a "putter's course" but Casper, acknowledged as one of the best putters the game has ever had, said that has gone bad.

When asked how his chances were for a fifth win, Casper said, "no good." He said he four-putted the par 4, 11th hole in the practice round from about 15 foot and that included a backhand attempt.

Referring to his poor showing in the PGA last week where he shot a total 297, Casper jokingly said he was "in the rough so much that I'm sending four bales of hay I cut to feed my cattle on the West Coast."

Lee Trevino, whose win in the PGA boosted him to third at $166,886 on the money list, said after a pro-am round 68 that he will take it easy after this event, "passing up Westchester to go home and rest."

Better Business Bureau Issues Warning On Firm

Maurice Rappaport, a man of many aliases and enterprises, is back in San Francisco after a mysterious absence of four years, the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco warned this week.

Donald W. Schwartz, president of the San Francisco BBB, identified Rappaport's latest enterprise as Excel Health Foods at 4754 Million Street, which is operating without a permit from the San Francisco Bureau of Environmental Health.

Investigation by the Better Business Bureau showed that receipts or sales slips were not always given, prices were switched either up, for the unsuspecting, or down, to get a sale, at the whim of Rappaport.

Schwartz reported that the BBB files on Rappaport date back to 1966 when he attempted to establish his AAA TV Appliances in Daly City.

"The Better Business Bureau of San Francisco has kept abreast of Rappaport, his aliases, activities and advertising, and has publicly advised consumers and newspapers that caution should be exercised in dealing with any firm owned or operated by Maurice Rappaport," said Schwartz. "The bureau is now again warning the public."

Among aliases used by Rappaport are Michael Howard, Maury Rapo, Roger Benning, Leslie Clifton, Michael Rafford, Aaron Clark, R. Jordan, Michael St. John, Charles White, Chester White, M. Morris, Roger Blair, Mike Arnold and James Morris. His businesses included appliances, television, perfumes, furniture, furniture rentals and films.

INFLATION

Economic Schools Divide On Solution

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Since the economy is the number one problem, President Gerald Ford's honeymoon isn't likely to have an indefinite run.

Eventually, if not immediately, he must decide on what anti-inflation course he will pursue. And that means he might offend large segments of economic society, despite his desire for cooperation and mutuality.

The schools of economic thinking today can be divided and subdivided more sharply than at almost any time in a decade or more. In the extreme, one side insists on an economic straightjacket, the other urges more freedom.

This division is partly the legacy of five years of experimentation that led the Nixon administration back to where it began — tight money, a spending holddown, a balanced budget.

Alan Greenspan, who was Nixon's choice to be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, exemplifies this thinking. Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve, does to a large degree. So does Herbert Stein, outgoing council chairman.

But those economists more identified with the Democrats, such as Walter Heller, Otto Eckstoen and James Tobin, all advisers in the Kennedy-Johnson years, disagree sharply.

They suggest that moderation, exceptions to the rule, special handling of sensitive issues such as housing — even a little experimentation — might still be called for, despite Nixon's failures in these directions.

Perseverance in a tight monetary-fiscal policy, they believe, might lead to social dislocations even more severe than those attributed to inflation, such as joblessness, financial disorder, recession.

In arriving at their conclusions, each side sometimes uses the same reasons as the other.

The Democratic economists argue that an overly tight monetary policy would bring more financial disorder.

Indications that the divisions are even more extreme can be gathered from the growing assumptions of some legislators, businessmen and others that the entire policy of tight money may be counterproductive.

This position is based on the assumption that inflation isn't domestically generated nearly so much as it is caused by foreign events, such as oil prices, over which tight money has no restraining impact at all.

President Ford is acclaimed for his ability to elicit cooperation from all parties, but if he can handle the anti-inflation program without offending great numbers of people, that acclaim will become awe.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $4.41 cents per fine ounce down 6 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $4.41 down 6 cents and fabricated silver at $452.0 down 6.2 cents.

Prices Move Irregularly On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices moved irregularly during the first two hours today on the New York Stock Exchange. Turnover was light.

Shortly before noon the Dow Jones industrial average had chalked up a skimpy gain.

The improvement in the Dow brought little cheer to analysts. Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton described it as a "half-hearted rally" which would have been more impressive with greater volume.

"There is still lots of caution around," Zinder commented.

Joe Generalis of Shearson, Hammill was similarly unimpressed. He said he saw "no significant" move in the stock market until around Labor Day, adding that the current bear market "still has much further to go."

The most active issue was Maremont Corp., followed by Union Carbide and AT&T.

Reynolds Metals, which doubled its quarterly dividend to 25 cents, added ⅜. PPG Industries, announcing a rise in caustic soda prices, slipped ¼.

ITT reacted briefly on the upside and Avis Corp. on the downside to news ITT is buying an additional $17.2 million of Avis stock. ITT, which has a major interest in Avis, also reported record quarterly and half year sales and earnings.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange turned easier in light trading. Most active issue was Giant Yellowknife Mines, off 1/2 to 14 1/2.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hot Stock Cools But Should Improve

By ROGER E. SPEAR and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. I recently purchased 500 shares of Union Corp. (NYSE) at $7. What is your opinion on averaging down on this stock? — J.H.

A. This conglomerate, which reached a high of 25½ on its expected entry into the soft lens market in early 1972, has not as yet received clearance from the Food & Drug Administration for its product. While the shares may be held on a speculative basis, new commitments are not favored.

In line with most conglomerates, Union has expanded revenues via the acquisition route, a road that has mot led to increasing profitability. Discontinued operations contributed a one cent a share loss to operating earnings in fiscal 1973 and a 29-cent a share loss for disposal of these businesses in the March period. Cost reductions and cutbacks should eventually improve profitability.

Q. My purpose in acquiring mutual funds is long-term capital growth for retirement in 15 years. I hold Price Growth, Edie Special Growth and Nicholas Strong Fund. I add about $1,200 annually to the first two funds but I have not added to Nicholas Strong since I bought it two and a half years ago. If I sell now it will be at a loss. Should I switch any of these funds? — H.S.

A. Two of your funds, Edie and Strong, are speculative and thus highly volatile, exceeding market swings both in up and down markets. In the 18 months from June 1970 to December 1972, the performance for the latter was a 230 per cent gain, with Edie showing a 102 per cent rise. The subsequent declines (from 12/31/72 through 6/30/74 were 44 per cent for Edie and 62 per cent for Strong. By comparison, the Standard & Poor's Average of 500 Industrials rose 73 per cent and dropped 23 per cent.

In any case both funds seem to have strong recovery potential and this would not be the opportune time to switch out of them.

Price Growth, with a quality portfolio, has a less dynamic but above-average performance record. However, with a sizable investment in this one fund already accumulated, I would suggest you hold what you now have and put new money into David L. Babson Investments for greater diversification.

Young Law Offenders Hardening

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Youth Authority said yesterday its youthful offender population has become "older, harder and more delinquent-oriented" as local communities put state-financinced probation supervision programs to work.

In a report released by the CYA, figures showed that institution "wards" were being committed in greater numbers for violent crimes. Nearly 34 per cent of those committed in 1973 were for crimes like homicide, robbery and assault.

In addition, three times as many youths were carrying weapons when they were arrested in 1973 compared to 1965. And 28 per cent of the "wards," which now average 18 years of age, have used alcohol to excess.

"They're getting older, harder and more delinquent-oriented," said CYA spokesman Art German. "They are those from whom society needs protection."

German said the figures reflect local efforts to keep less serious offenders in the community where they are "more easily dealt with."

Under probation subsidy, counties in California are given funds to finance probation supervision programs so that youthful offenders not considered a threat to the public can be rehabilitated more effectively in the community where they go to school, work and live.

German said the subsidy program was created because of a "cycle of institution construction" that looked never ending.

"Now, we're not building institutions," he said. "We're leaving the institutions for those who need that type of supervision."

The report also showed that the number of young women sent to institutions had decreased from 15.8 per cent in 1965 to 8.1 per cent last year.

Criminal court commitments had also increased from 25 per cent in 1965 to 46 per cent in 1973, while the number from juvenile courts totaled less than one-third that figure.

Benefit Increase Agreement Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate and House negotiators have agreed on a 23 per cent increase in educational benefits for Vietnam era veterans, the biggest increase since World War II.

If the Senate and House approve the agreement, it will be sent to the White House. Former President Nixon indicated the bill was inflationary and he would veto it, but there is no indication what position President Ford will take.

The compromise was reached Monday and announced yesterday. The legislation would also provide veterans with loans to supplement their monthly benefits and would extend eligibility from 36 months to five school years.

Press Secretary Has Odd Name

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's new press secretary has a Dutch ancestry and a confusing spelling of his name.

Jerald F. terHorst says his relatives were split on how to spell the family name, and his father insisted on the lower case "t" as it is spelled in the Netherlands where his parents were born.

TerHorst said that his father was determined that his surname be spelled right after immigration authorities "bollixed up his first name."

His father's name was Jan and he was dubbed "John."

Today is Thursday, Aug. 15, the 227th day of 1974 with 138 to follow.

The moon is between the last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American novelist Edna Ferber was born Aug. 15, 1887.

On this day in history:

In 1914, an American ship passed from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, officially opening the Panama Canal.

In 1935, American humorist Will Rogers and pilot Wiley Post were killed when their plane crashed in Alaska.

In 1966, The New York Herald Tribune went out of business after 131 years of publication.

In 1871, President Nixon ordered a 90-day wage-price-rent freeze and announced imposition of a 10 per cent surcharge on foreign imports.

A thought for the day: British novelist George Meredith said, "Who rises from prayer a better man, his prayer is answered."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

Leading Players Design To Rob Opponents Bidding Room

The opening bid of three in a suit, as practiced by most of the leading tournament players, shows a long topless suit with no side strength. The idea is to rob the opponents of bidding room.

Opening lead — ◇ K

TYPICAL HAND

East's hand is typical of the opening three-bid. West had a pretty fair hand, but he never for a moment considered a further bid.

North had a normal, but minimum reopening double. South had to jump to game in his strong five-card suit, since a response of only three spades might well be based on a completely worthless hand. North would have to pass a timid bid of three spades.

West opened the king of diamonds and dummy won with the ace. Now declarer led a low trump from the dummy. It would have been fatal to lead the king of trumps first.

HIGH ODDS

East was known to have length in diamonds. The odds were very high that East was short in spades, perhaps even void.

This turned out to be the case. When East discarded a diamond, South played the ace of spades and returned a spade toward dummy. West put up the ten and dummy won with the king. Dummy then returned a low trump and South's seven of trumps forced out the queen.

CONTINUE SUIT

West led another diamond and East continued the suit. Nothing could stop South. He could draw the last trump, give up one trick to the ace of clubs, and take a finesse in hearts if necessary.

If declarer had begun the trumps by leading the king from dummy, he would have lost two trump tricks. The contract would then be doomed to defeat.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠- K 8 4 2
♥- A Q 10
♦- A 5
♦- Q 10 6 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club. The hand is not quite strong enough for one notrump. Bid clubs first when you have four cards in each of the black suits.

Ford Accepts Invitation From Japan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has accepted an invitation to visit Japan later this year, one that had already been accepted by former President Richard M. Nixon.

The White House and the Japanese Embassy announced the trip yesterday, but neither said how long the visit would be.

U.S. and Japanese officials speculated the trip, Ford's first announced foreign journey, would not take place until after the congressional elections in November. The Japanese invitation said only that Ford had agreed to come "before the end of the year, at the earliest opportunity agreeable to both sides."

Ford will become the first U.S. President to visit Japan while in office.

Crime Reporting Number 'Busy'

SEATTLE (UPI) — As soon as a gunman fled the coin shop managed by Mike Pittman, Pittman reached for his telephone and dialed the emergency police number, 911.

And what he got on the other end was a recording: "All our lines are busy. Please hold."

It turned out later that two witnesses had seen the hold-up in progress and called police, only to get the same recorded message.

Increase Seen In Hog Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pork prices will decline this fall at the farm level, at least, but probably will advance sharply next year because a short 1974 corn crop is sending livestock feed prices up, an Agriculture Department report indicated today.

The report said hog prices this summer will average in the middle $30 per hundredweight range, an increase from spring levels because production was down seasonally from the spring although above the unusually low level of last summer.

In the fall, prices will sink to the low $30 range because of a seasonal increase in hog slaughter and competition from expected bigger supplies of lowgrade beef, experts added.

Florida Beaches Forced To Close

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A fish-killing red tide in the Gulf of Mexico has driven hundreds of small sharks and sting rays toward shore, forcing the closing of at least two beaches.

Tourists and youngsters disregarded warnings in some areas and plunged into the surf to seize sharks by the tail and drag them onto the sand.

There were no reports of injuries from the sharks.

Non-Lawyer Judges Hit By Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Only judges who are attorneys may preside over criminal trials for offenses punishable by a jail sentence, the California Supreme Court ruled yesterday.

The court held unanimously that use of non-attorney judges in such cases violated the defendant's due process of law unless he had waived that right.

The ruling will apply only to trials which begin after the opinion is final in 30 days. The court ruled in the cases of Lewis Gordon, charged with disturbing the peace in Yuba City, and Santiago Arguijo, charged in Grover City with drunk driving.

Both men objected to being tried in justice court and claimed they had a right to be tried by a judge trained in the law. The Supreme Court agreed in an opinion written by Justice Louis H. Burke.

The court said that there was a reasonable likelihood that non-attorney judges would be unable to provide a fair trial to defendants facing jail sentences. It noted that although the judicial council gives a three-hour examination to non-attorney justice court judges, it is far less rigorous than a state bar examination.

"We also note the absence of any requirement of college or law school education in order to qualify as a justice court judge," the court said.

The opinion pointed out that non-attorney justice court judges may continue to function in civil cases and in criminal cases not involving a possible jail sentence. They may also serve in cases in which the defendant or his counsel waive the right to disqualify them.

Non-lawyers preside in 129 of the state's justice courts, located in 49 of the state's

President Names Aide To terHorst

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has chosen Justice Department information director John W. Hushen to be top assistant to Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst, UPI has learned.

Hushen, a veteran newsman, is to replace former President Nixon's deputy press secretary, Gerald L. Warren.

'Apple's Way' Will Change

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Apple was an incurable busybody with no visible means of support. His family on "Apple's Way" was so nice it was beyond belief.

The television series last season was unbelievable. It was too saccharine, too cute.

Of course, all of that would be immaterial if the show had been doing well in the ratings.

But it wasn't. It is running a poor third on Sunday nights to "The Wonderful World of Disney" and "The FBI."

John Furia realized this when he was brought in as producer in April. And this fall "Apple's Way" will be different — from characterizations to the camera work.

"The elements and the actors obviously were appealing to the audience," he said. "Yet everyone agreed there were flaws in the show."

His assignment was to pinpoint the flaws and eliminate them before the series went into production for the fall season.

Furia, 44, had been a writer much of his career and is the president of the Writers Guild of America. He previously produced "Kung Fu" and had been an associate producer in the earlier days of live TV.

Furia's immediate remedy was to establish a believable base for the show. He gave George Apple a job as a minority owner of the newspaper to provide a reason for his becoming involved with people.

He took away the look of affluence, and he put in the normal conflicts of family life. They will not be at each other's throats but they will bicker and argue.

"Apple's Way" was the first response to the success of "The Waltons." It sought to capitalize on its low-key drama and warm family appeal. The show was, in fact, created by Earl Hamner of "The Waltons."

CBS gave Lorimar Productions the go-ahead for the show on Nov. 1. It was rushed into production without a pilot, with little preparation and the cameras began to roll almost as soon as the first page of the script came out of the typewriter.

That haste was immediately evident on the screen when the show premiered Feb. 10. The show, plainly, was out of focus. The writers were not sure what direction to take. uncertain whether they were writing for "The Waltons" or "Father Knows Best."

Furia sat through all 13 shows, looked through the scripts to see how the material translated to the screen, then sat and brooded for a few days.

His conclusion was that the show had an air of unreality.

"It wavered on a tightrope between a warm family drama and a sitcom — in the worst sense of the word, jokes," he said. "The show had not found itself, which is a character drama. To do that you have to make people real."

The way the show is photographed was changed, too.

"Before, I thought it looked like a situation comedy," Furia said. "The scenes were flatly lighted. The show was shot in a series of closeups, from one person to the next, like in a comedy.

"You stage and photograph a character drama differently. There are subtle things that people may not be aware of, but they are aware of the results."

WITHOUT FANFARE

Integration Effort Proves Successful

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MINNEAPOLIS — Not all school-integration efforts are massive and elaborate. High school speech and drama teacher Jack Litowsky is getting results his own way — on a small scale and without fanfare.

Combining the talents of students from two schools in two vastly different communities, Litowsky has succeeded in racially mixing both actors and audiences for the first time at Edison High here.

His project is called "School and Community Theater Two" — meaning two schools, two communities, two plays. The schools are Edison High, devoid of black students, and neighboring North High, which has a 38 per cent minority-group enrollment, most of whom are black.

For years the two communities, though not in active conflict, have suffered from racial misunderstanding. When pictures from the plays appeared in the Edison yearbook, it was the first time in the school's history that black faces peered out from its pages.

"The barricades that have been broken down are truly incredible," says Litowsky, a teacher of 14 years — the past 10 at Edison — who, coincidentally, is a North High graduate of 20 years ago.

In 1971 Litowsky did "Dark of the Moon" and involved people from the community in technical areas. It worked well. About this time people began talking of improving the transition between junior and senior high school. Also, Litowsky began thinking about a northeast community theater.

"All these forces were working together in my mind," he says. "But then — and most important — the city's school-desegregation ruling took effect, and Edison was not included in the plans. I began to think that maybe a play could be a device for integration."

It was touchy ground. The concept of two schools from two racially diverse communities and one play, let alone two, was not looked upon as a great idea whose time had come. "Risky," "courting disaster," "unrealistic," and even "nontraditional" were some of the reasons used by the school administration to refuse funding and support for the program.

Hearing about the Governor's Council on Quality Education, Mr. Litowsky drafted a proposal and sent it off, hoping the council, just two years old and innovative in purpose, would be interested.

It was. Of 227 proposals received, Mr. Litowsky's was one of eight — and the only performing-arts program — funded for 1973-74.

With a $9,000 grant, Litowsky and company (drama teacher Roger Mahn from North High was his associate) set about putting together a cast and crew for the first production, given last December.

The play they chose was "The Me Nobody Knows," a successful rock musical written by a group of inner-city black children in New York.

People came, and not just from the North and Edison communities but from suburban areas as well. More than 1,000 people saw the productions at both schools, and the post-play reactions were 100 per cent favorable.

In April the second play, "Lilies of the Field," was presented on the same basis, three performances at North and three at Edison. and again the public responded with enthusiasm.

Success also was indicated by the fact that one cast member who attended classes irregularly at North never missed a rehearsal or a performance and now attends classes regularly.

"It's been beautiful to watch," Litowsky comments. "You must remember that many of them (Edison students) had never encountered blacks before and have backgrounds steeped in Archie Bunkerism. The eventual give-and-take interchange was marvelous. They all seemed to adopt the attitude, 'It's how you do your job, not who does it.' "

Fire Damage Set At $250,000

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Fire of undetermined origin did an estimated $250,000 damage to a packing shed and two small offices owned by Maricopa Packing Co. 20 miles northwest of here yesterday.

There were no injuries reported although the area had to be evacuated for two hours for fear that a 500 gallon tank car near the shed containing explosive anhydrous ammonia might explode.

The chemical is used to cool lettuce.

POINT REYES SEASHORE RIDE

Touch Of Heaven On Horseback

By MARY LEYDECKER

Out of the car they piled, a group of Californians and their Boston visitors, looking forward to a ride through the Point Reyes National Seashore either with confidence or trepidation, depending on their views of horses.

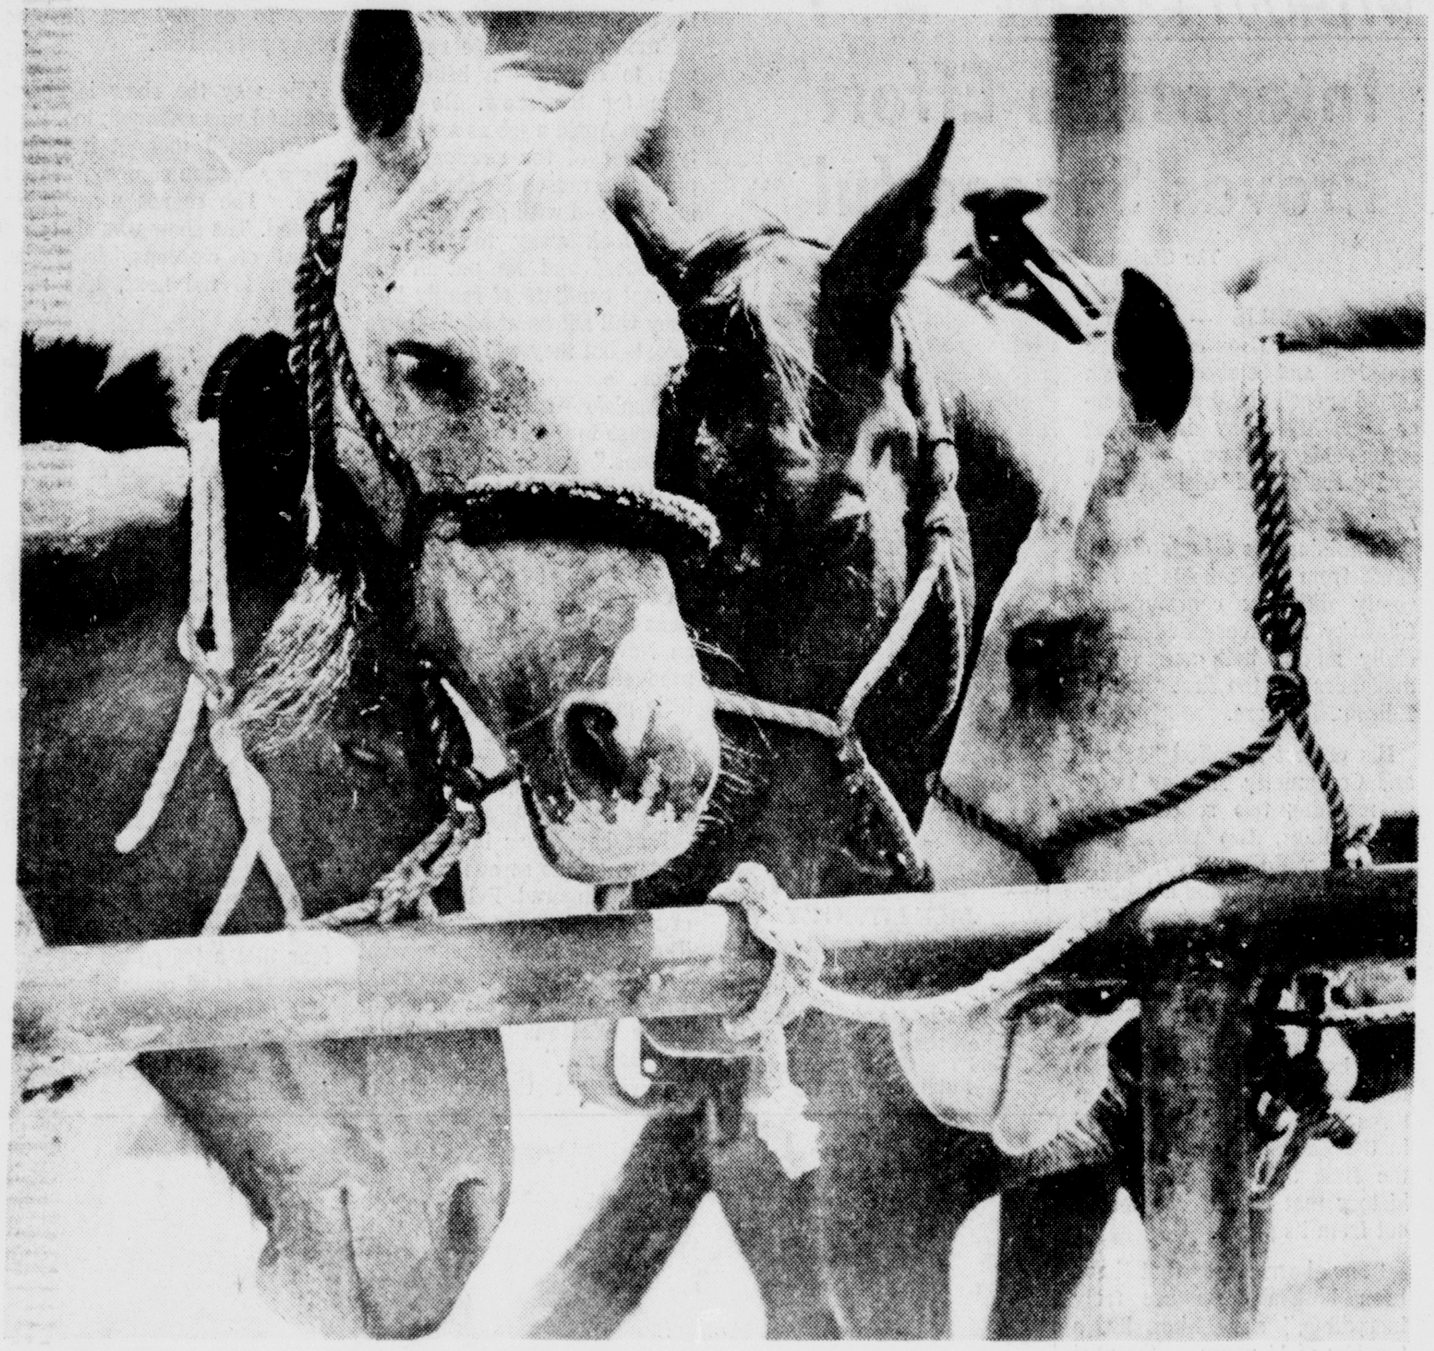
As the horses were bridled, comments like, "Where's the ignition?" and "I want a spirited horse," floated through the crisp afternoon air.

The horses, though, from one of the two stables near the park's entrance, seemed to have heard before all the old jokes of beginning riders plus the bragging of the more experienced ones.

They stood unperturbed, swishing away a few flies, as they awaited their daily exercise.

Riding the trails at the seashore may not be exactly the sport of kings, but as the group on a recent afternoon found out, it's a delightful way to view the meadows, creeks, flora and fauna and breeze-swept vistas of the park.

Riders may bring their own horses, according to Leroy Brock, the head ranger, or rent from one of the two stables on Bear Valley Road off Shoreline Highway near Olema.



BUDDIES — Four horses from a stable near the Point Reyes National Seashore nuzzle together, contentedly dozing in the afternoon sun. Accustomed to being mounted by those who can ride and those who can't, they come alive when headed up the familiar park trails.

(Photos by Alfred M. Arn)

The rules are few, he said — horsemen are advised to use common sense and courtesy when meeting hikers and to stay on the trails. On weekends Bear Valley trail is closed to stock, he said, but riders may choose the alternate fire trail, a beautiful ride among the trees and ferns to the top of the hill.

That was the trail chosen for a two-hour ride by guide Bruce Rich for the California-Massachusetts group and a couple of other riders.

The three Bostonians were not horsemen, as they quickly revealed. The two girls wore sandals on their bare feet ("we thought we were coming to sunny California and we wouldn't need shoes," one said. Their male companion also indicated his riding had been extremely limited.

They were accompanied by two young men from Marin and Sonoma, who assured them there would be no problem with "these horses," and he was right.

Soon the group, under the direction of Rich, a former office worker who recently answered an ad for a "stable person," was off. (Rich remarked in passing that he has found the outdoor life at the stables to his liking and plans to stay on.)

Once inside the park, he led the riders onto a path through a grassy meadow, where those who wished could trot or gallop their horses. The horses, who earlier had seemed unlikely to wish to move from their sleepy positions at the hitching post, responded to kicks and were off.

Soon the trail divided, and the group headed up the fire road. The trail was clearly marked through the bowers of ferns and trees — the scenery entrancing both the Californians and the out-of-staters.

"You'd never see air like this in Los Angeles," one remarked.

At the top of the hill, there was a pleasant rest stop on a flat grassy open space. The horses munched contentedly while the riders stretched out, looking off toward the oncoming fog from the ocean.

Rich explained that a longer ride takes one down to the beach, where a picnic is a delightful possibility.

Soon it was time to head down again, taking down the hillside, a trail which the horses knew well, across a creek, through the meadow and back to the stables.

"How did you like your horse?" asked a youngster riding out to meet the group.

Assured that all had gone well, he seemed pleased and rode on ahead. Like most of those who live near the park, he takes a proprietary interest in the beauty of the place.

The afternoon ride to the top of the hill had taken close to three hours, but those whose pocketbooks or physiques are limited, can choose rides as short as an hour.

The stable fees are $4 for the first hour and $3.50 for each additional hour or $18 a day, and reservations are recommended on weekends.

Those who have their own horses can park trailers at the park entrance and ride from there, ranger Brock said. Riders can even camp overnight if they get the necessary free permits.

Climbing down off her horse, one of the girls from Massachusetts pronounced the ride a success.

"That was fun — and maybe I won't even be sore tomorrow," she said.

stay on trail

TRAILS — "Stay on trail," a sign advises as a group of riders (left) heads into the Point Reyes National Seashore. Soon the trail leads up the hill and to the flat crest, (right), where three more riders return from a fog-misted "edge of the world," overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Funds Clear Panel For Computer Center

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Compromise legislation appropriating nearly $4 million and getting consolidation of the state's controversial computer center "back on the road" was approved yesterday by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The measures (AB4501-4502) by Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, passed the powerful committee 11-5.

One measure would appropriate $3.9 million to the Teale Data Center to include the sprawling Department of Motor Vehicles in the consolidated state computer complex, installed by International Business Machines (IBM).

The other bill would allow the DMV to transfer another $6 million from its budget to the center for the consolidation program.

Officials for DMV said if the legislation passes both the Assembly and Senate and signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan it could mean that California could be on staggered automobile registration by 1976.

The computerized registration program — which would stagger motor vehicle registration over 12 months — has been delayed because of computer installation problems.

The legislature earlier trimmed millions of dollars from Reagan's 1974-75 budget for the proposed computer consolidation program. The funds were designed to include DMV within the computer facility — which already serves more than 30 agencies and departments.

"I think the legislation puts the show back on the road," said Frank Walton, secretary of the Business and Transportation Agency, which includes the DMV.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post said presently there are some $8 million in claims against the state by IBM and another $4 million in claims against IBM by the state over the controversial contract with the computer company.

The Reagan administration has been pushing for the consolidation saying it would save the state money in the long run because of full utilization of computer equipment.

Livermore Growth Plan Challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal suit was on file yesterday against the City of Livermore, challenging its policies and ordinances that allegedly limit growth of the city.

The suit, similar to one successfully prosecuted against Petaluma, was filed by the Associated Building Industry of Northern California.

It claimed Livermore has adopted ordinances and regulations that "place burdens" on new residential construction and are designed to reduce the possible population of Livermore from 70,000 to 58,000.

The contractors said the Livermore City Council passed an ordinance in 1971 that required a written school board statement that there would be adequate school facilities before tentative subdivision maps could be approved.

Such a statement would be provided only on payment of $800 for each residential unit, the suit said, meaning a price increase that falls only on new home buyers and not on existing residents.

The suit said also that the council adopted an ordinance limiting issuance of residential permits to 1,500 per year.

The suit also charged the city with adopting excessive and arbitrary fees for construction of residential units and refusing to annex land that could be used for home development.

The city also rezoned a large part of Livermore from residential to agriculture.

Earlier this year U.S. District Judge Lloyd H. Burke declared unconstitutional an ordinance of the city of Petaluma limiting new housing units to 500 a year. He said this violated the constitutional right to travel.

A Pirate Trove May Lie Under New England Town

By COLIN STEWART
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LYNN, Mass. — The City of Lynn has housing problems, a rent-control controversy, arson investigations, and — perhaps — a buried pirate treasure.

An early history of Lynn tells of a pirate named Thomas Veal who was buried, along with his treasure, in a 1658 earthquake.

Many attempts have been made to find the treasure. Some people have relied on so-called clairvoyants, others on metal detectors to guide them to the legendary gold.

The most famous treasure-seeker, Hiram Marble, spent almost 30 years, starting in the 1850's, digging a tunnel 135 feet long.

This fall two Lynn Park Department employees plan an attempt, using a new theory about the location of the treasure cave.

Traditionally, the site of the pirate's home and cave was a rocky promontory in Lynn Woods. Veal is said to have moved there when he was chased from the coast by British troops.

After his sudden demise — trapped in his cave when one of New England's rare earthquakes occurred — the promontory was named Dungeon Rock.

There Hiram Marble dug a long, winding tunnel, believing he was directed by the ghost of Thomas Veal.

Unfortunately for Marble, the supposed route to the treasure was not straight, since he recorded in a book that his ghosts told him, "We have a reason for keeping you from entering the cave at once."

The result of Marble's digging and blasting with dynamite is a long, twisting tunnel, with metal stairs near the entrance, then a downward spiral to the right, a turn to the left, a steep slope down, then another twist to the left, ending in a pool of muddy water.

The tunnel was opened to tourists, for a fee, by Marble's daughter, who was impoverished by her father's expensive digging.

Now the land is owned by the City of Lynn and is frequently visited by schoolchildren who ride their bicycles to Dungeon Rock, carrying flashlights to explore the tunnel.

The new search for the treasure this fall will not take place in the tunnel, but at a nearby spot that the searchers think fits the description of Thomas Veal's home.

Robert Benson, Lynn's park planner, explains that he and a friend have built a large, homemade detector that can sense metal buried as deep as 20 feet. They will spend only part of a weekend in their search, he says, compared to the 30 years that Hiram Marble spent.

The story of the treasure could be entirely false, notes Susan Eastwood, associate director of the Lynn Historical Society.

The writer who included the tale of Thomas Veal in his history of Lynn refused to reveal his sources to a later historian, she explains.

Even the legend does not clearly state that Thomas Veal kept a treasure in his cave. It only mentions an earlier episode when Veal and three other pirates traded silver for iron shackles and handcuffs from the Saugus Ironworks.

The treasure, if it exists, may lie hidden until another of those rare New England earthquakes comes along and "unburies" it.

SEARCH FOR TREASURE — A boy with a flashlight stands at the top of Hiram Marble's staris, which may lead to the fabled treasure of pirate Thomas Veal. Veal was buried, supposedly along with his treasure, somewhere in the caves near Lynn, Mass., during a freak earthquake in 1658. Folks search for the booty still.

Their Bunco Ploys Don't Work On Honest People

By DAN McLEAN
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — "I'm a thief. I'm a good thief. I'm probably one of the best thieves in the United States.

"When I get out of prison, I'll still be a thief."

Police Detective C.L. Sanders is quoting a man he arrested a few years ago. The man escaped and was rearrested in another state. Extradited, he and Sanders became — to an extent — friends as they traveled first from the East to California, then back again.

"He told me that while in prison back East he had come up with an idea for a new con. I asked him what it was. He said, 'No way.' He planned to use it when he got out."

The man still is in prison in the East and he faces a five-year term in California.

After that, his new con may be learned — from experience. But for now, Sanders can't worry about it. There are too many cons going on right now.

Sanders worked fraud-bunco some years ago, but switched to auto theft. Recently he got back into fraud-bunco.

"I just get back," he says, "and what's the first case I get? Slow-walking."

Slow-walking refers to the end of the particular caper. It's not as famous as the pigeon-drop. Nor, in the field, as familiar as the similar "rock in the box" — involving the sale of a new television carton which winds up containing either rocks or a used, nonworking television set.

But slow-walking is going on.

There was a case June 14, another June 19, and a third June 29, all in suburban Torrance. Another popped up recently in nearby San Pedro.

"This one," says Sanders, looking at a stack of files, "is for $3,800. This one is for $2,000. And this one is for $450."

The scam — worked on large companies — usually works this way: The phone man makes contact with an employee, offering a television set at a reduced price, saying a large company is overstocked. Later he asks if any friends are interested, saying the company needs to rid itself of the sets for tax and inventory purposes.

A meeting place is arranged. The con artist takes the cash in advance — naturally, only cash is accepted — then walks toward the company's loading dock, ostensibly to load the sets onto a truck for delivery.

He just keeps walking which brought about the police term, "slow-walking."

Sanders says the victim is usually embarrassed. So much so, in fact, that he estimates there are at least twice as many incidents as are reported.

The same scam, Sanders says, can be worked with things other than television sets. It is used for bulk liquor sales, for instance.

People are constantly fooled. And there is no excuse.

"They normally claim to be selling Zenith sets," Sanders says. "And let's face it, Zenith television sets are fair-trade items. They cannot be sold below a certain price, except during factory sales.

"Also, two of the three here have gone down at Montgomery Ward. They sell their own product. They don't even carry Zenith."

Sanders says people should be aware of anyone offering something for nothing. If it helps, he says there are three rings known to be operating and accents can be a tip. One group is from Boston, one from New York, and a third from Florida.

When something is offered for nothing, the police should be contacted.

Still, he sees the warning as wishful thinking to an extent.

He's thinking of his friend in prison. The guy told Sanders he makes $30,000 a month on the outside and has no plans to change occupations. But he told him something else:

"He said bunco schemes don't work on honest people."

Puppets, Magic And More At Hobby Tree

Mike Blumberg and Bessie Lazzareno as the Mandrake puppeteers will perform several original puppet plays aimed at both children and adults on the Mall in front of the Hobby Tree tomorrow and Saturday.

These puppeteers design their own puppets and scenery as well as write and produce their own shows.

Free shows will be presented at 1:00 and 3:00 p.m. both days.

In addition, local magician Don Seitz will perform a magic show at 6:00 p.m. Friday Aug. 16, and 1:00 p.m. Sunday Aug. 18 in front of the Hobby Tree. Though still a teen, Don is a seasoned performer, displaying his tricks at the Straw Hat Pizza Parlor on Sunday nights as well as at the Hobby Tree, where he is a staff member.

A third attraction, Marv Thomas — better known professionally as Peanuts the Magical Clown — will appear on the Mall Saturday Aug. 17 between 1 and 3 p.m. Peanuts has been in existence longer than Marv wants to admit.

Recent shows and manufacturers catalogs indicate that the old favorites are being produced again. Bob Williamson, vice president of Hobby Tree Inc. reported that Lindberg is again producing its once top selling Biology — Physiology series including the old teaching favorites, "The Living Cell", "The Operating Pumping Heart", the "Operating Breathing Man", as well as the "Visible Head," the "Human Brain", the "Eye", Nose, and "Ear" Models as well as many more. These kits were very popular a few years back and until now, have not been readily available.

The turn of the century art of making paper models of castles trains, ships, balloons, European villages etc, is currently having a re-discovered boom for the adults and a new found, easy to handle, inexpensive hobby for the younger folk. Skill levels vary and many a pleasant hour or several can be spent with a cardboard model, a pair of sharp scissors and some fast drying glue.

Williamson also said that basket weaving kits and chair kits have been popular with the youth groups at camp this summer and several customers were taking advantage of the Hobby Tree's stock to continue this craft at home.
